HOOVER PREPARES DRY MESSAGE

PRESIDENT'S VIEWS WILL BE OFFERED CONGRESS MONDAY

Chief Executive's Judgment on Necessary Prohibition Legislation to Be Submitted Along With Recommendations of His Law Enforcement Commission—Expected to Urge the Need of Measures to Be Suggested by Investigators and Ask Prompt Action—Attack Made on Secretary of Navy Adams.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—President Hoover will submit his own views on necessary prohibition legislation to congress Monday along with the recommendations of his law enforcement commission, it was learned tonight.

No indication was given as to the exact nature of the president's new message, but it is understood he will urge the need of the measures to be suggested by the commission and ask prompt action.

The president's message, it was learned at the white house, will run about 600 words, as compared with a 60,000 word report from the law enforcement committee. Congressional leaders await submission of this report and the president's views.

The controversy in the senate of the last few days was shifted today temporarily by an attack in the house on Secretary of Navy Adams.

Representative Warren, democrat, North Carolina, charged that Adams has deliberately insulted the coast guard.

Claims Coast Guard Belittled.

Warren said Adams, speaking before the Boston chamber of commerce shortly before he sailed for Europe, sought to discredit the coast guard, by "sneers and innuendos."

Adams' speech followed a protest meeting in Boston common against

TRAFFIC IS NOT HALTED BY SNOW

Wires Coated With Ice But No Damage Reported.

Although snowfall of from two to five inches was reported generally throughout the state Saturday evening, Lincoln Telephone company and Burlington officials reported no damage or slowing down of traffic. Many of the wires leading out of Lincoln were ice coated but not heavy enough to do any harm, they said.

Less snow was reported west of Dorchester than fell in this community, according to railroad officials. Temperatures ranged from 22 to 32 degrees above zero over the three eastern divisions. The Ravenna agent reported a two-inch snow but a lesser fall west of there.

Superior reported clear weather and only a trace of snow, telephone officials said. Omaha recorded a temperature of 18 and no ice, David City 21 and some ice, York 26 and ice-scale, Plattsmouth 26 and five inches of snow, and Grand Island 21 and cloudy skies. Wahoo reported a light snow and Seward had about two inches.

Dry Agents Can Make Arrests Faster Than They Can Be Handled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—The federal prohibition bureau can make dry law arrests faster than federal prosecutors can handle them.

This declaration was made today by Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition matters in commenting on the preliminary statement of the wickersham law enforcement machinery.

Before congress takes steps to increase the prohibition detection machinery by appropriating large sums for new agents, the prosecuting branch of the government must be brought into balance, he said.

The justice department was silent on the commission's statement that the present legal machinery is adequate.

Boy Knocked From Bicycle By Auto; Leg Is Fractured

Alfred Hickerson, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hickerson, Cornhusker apartments, suffered a bad fracture of his left leg, when he was struck and knocked from his bicycle by an automobile driven by Edward E. Lanphere, 2358 South Twenty-seventh street, at the intersection of Twelfth and H streets shortly before 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Taken to the Lincoln General hospital in Castle, Roper and Matthews' ambulance Alfred was found to have sustained a bad fracture just above his knee. The bone was shattered, according to Dr. C. H. Arnold. Alfred was on his way home, after having spent the afternoon at the home of his uncle, Walter D. Rowden, 1133 D street, night sergeant of police.

Hoover Given Authority To Halt Appropriations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—The house today approved a provision in the war department bill giving President Hoover authority to halt appropriations if he can effect economies in his reorganization plan.

The house, however, upset the committee's plan to slash budget army housing estimates by $2,000,000. The budget recommended more than $16,000,000 for this work. Representative Snell, republican, New York, led the fight for the greater sum.

AKRON, O., Jan. 11—(UP) — A salvage crew had been ordered to Lee City, Ky., tonight to recover the wrecked Goodyear blimp "Puritan" which crashed into a rock on top of Breathitt mountain during a heavy snow storm today.

The "Puritan," which is considered Goodyear's hard luck dirigible, was on its way to Gadsden, Ala., on a non-stop flight. V. L. Smith and August O'Neill, both of Akron, the pilots, escaped injury.

CLUE TO FATE OF N. Y. AIRMEN THOUGHT FOUND

Officials Connecticut Airport Heard Roar Of Motor.

SCORE AIRPLANES JOIN IN SEARCH

Fly Low Over Sparsely Settled Land And Ocean Beach.

FARMINGDALE, L. I., Jan. 11—(UP)—Darkness temporarily halted the efforts of a fleet of twenty-eight biplanes to find the missing Fairchild monoplane carrying Pilot Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, who sailed into the fog Friday morning and have not been seen since.

Scanning Long Island, southern Connecticut, New Jersey, southern New York and portions of the Atlantic ocean, the searchers were unable to find a trace of the missing fliers.

Six planes will take off from here Sunday morning one heading for Gardner's island, at the head of Long Island, and the others flying to Connecticut.

BETHANY, Conn., Jan. 11—(INS)—The first clue to the possible fate of the missing Fairchild plane which took off from Farmingdale, L. I., yesterday on an attempted altitude flight and failed to return was believed uncovered here tonight.

Officials of the local airport declared they heard a plane pass over here shortly after the Fairchild took off and after circling uncertainly headed for Clinton, Conn., on Long Island sound. At the time the plane was heard there was a ceiling of only 100 feet and the ship was not visible.

A checkup by airport and aviation corporation officials revealed that

SEVEN MILLIONS GAS TAX TOTAL

$3,500,000 Gain Recorded In Collections For 1929 Over Previous Year.

Doubling Of Rate Held Largely Responsible For Increase.

Collections of gasoline tax by the state of Nebraska in 1929, the first three months at the 2-cent rate under the old law and the last nine months at 4 cents per gallon as fixed by the Bowring act of the last legislature, reached a total of $7,481,952. For the preceding year, figured entirely on the 2-cent basis, the revenue was $3,967,840.

An increase of $3,514,112 is thus shown for 1929 over the previous annum. Most of this gain, of course, was due to the doubling of the rate, but a part of it would have been realized in any event from natural increase in gasoline consumption.

Since April 1, last, when the 4-cent tax became effective, one-fourth of its net proceeds has been distributed among the counties of the state in proportion to their registration of motor vehicles during the year 1928. The total sum

An Air Mail Flier Lost in Snow Storm

Maury Graham Down Between Las Vegas and Salt Lake.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Jan. 11—(U. P.)—One of the winter's worst snow storms in the Nevada-Utah region tonight held secret the fate of Maury Graham, crack night air mail flier of the Western Air Express, down some where between Las Vegas and Salt Lake City.

Graham, flying an open cockpit plane, took off from Las Vegas toward Salt Lake City about 10 o'clock Friday night, shortly after he arrived from Los Angeles. He carried 640 pounds of mail and sixteen pounds of express.

About 11:30 p. m., according to men at the air field, his plane was heard droning through the storm. It was believed he found conditions in the air very severe and turned back with the intention of landing at Las Vegas. The field's lights were obscured by the snow storm, how-

1940 DEADLINE FOR LINCOLN'S WATER SUPPLY

Engineers Recommend New Sources Be Found Along Platte River.

ASHLAND SITE IS MORE ECONOMICAL

Pipeline From Wells In Old River Bed Would Yield Good Supply.

Lincoln dare not materially increase the draft on its present water supplies, according to the report of Burns & McDonnell, Kansas City engineers, submitted the past week to Commissioner Schroeder, head of the city water department. It cannot be said there is immediate danger of a shortage of water, the report adds, but the lowering of the present ground sources will increase more rapidly as the rate of pumpage grows. Beyond a certain pump rate the recession of the ground water will be rapid, the ultimate yield being reached probably in 1940.

This summation of the situation in Lincoln will apply to the entire water supply here, the report stated. Before this time comes, however, the report continues, many privately owned wells in and near the city will be seriously depleted. Courts have held that a city is liable for such a condition. When the writer of the report was in Lincoln a few weeks ago, the time which the city would not besafe in relying on its present sources was fixed at about 1935.

Platte Favored.

"Our investigation," the report states, "would seem to confirm our previous opinion that for a permanent and adequate supply for the city of Lincoln, there is no plan which more nearly meets all requirements than the Platte river

NEW WITNESSES GARRETT TRIAL

Box Butte County Attorney To Spring Some Surprises.

Second Hearing in Murder Case at Chadron Monday.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb. Jan. 11—County Attorney P. E. Romig will spring some surprise witnesses in his prosecution of Robert R. Garrett, 42, Alliance carpenter, on a charge of first degree murder when the trial opens at Chadron Monday. The case is tried there on a charge of venue from Box Butte to Dawes county. District Judge Earl Meyer will preside.

Garrett was convicted in District court here two years ago, but was granted a retrial when his attorneys appealed to the supreme court. He is alleged to have fired the shotgun charge on the night of November 26, 1927, that snuffed out the life of William "Bud" Kinsley, bo, well known Box Butte county ranchman, at his farm home 10 miles northwest of Alliance.

The county attorney says that he has eight additional witnesses to give some new and surprising testimony at the trial. He will also use the 14 witnesses who testified for the prosecution in the first trial.

Hutchins, Youngest College President in World, Tired But He is Not Discouraged

Chicago University's 30-Year-Old Leader Will Neither Admit Nor Deny That He is Making Progress In Laudable Aims.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(UP)—Three months as president of the hundred million dollar University of Chicago has left dark circles under the eyes of Robert Maynard Hutchins, 30-year-old former dean of the Yale law school.

Hutchins is thoroughly tired, but not discouraged. He set out to "make learning respectable." He set out to make the University of Chicago "a peacemaker and one of the three key universities of the country." He set out to raise money not for more buildings but for better professors. He set out to place scholarship above athletic prowess. He set out to avoid bromides.

Today, beginning his second quarter as head of one of the most reputable and populous institutions of thought in the world, President Hutchins sees some of his laudable goals still far away and others attained and passed. It is obvious, however, that he did not foresee many of the demands that the presidency of a great midwestern university would make upon his time and energies.

Not Spoiled by Fuss.

All the fuss that has been made over President Hutchins and all the tasks and honors that have been heaped upon him have not spoiled his philosophical outlook.

"I should say," he said as he sat in his office in Harper library today, "that I am not discouraged. Things," added President Hutchins, "take time."

The president of Chicago university was dressed in a baggy salt and pepper tweed suit. He wore a red tie with white diagonal stripe. He

City Put in Darkness by Sleet Storm

Ten Inches of Ice Disrupts Light Service in Springfield, Mo.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Springfield stumbled to bed tonight by candle light as the result of one of the worst sleet storms in the history of this city.

With railroad traffic crippled and telegraph and telephone wires down, electric light and power service was suspended tonight.

Sleet and rain which has prevailed here for the last thirty-six hours was still falling tonight with the end of the storm not in sight. Approximately ten inches of sleet already has fallen.

The roofs of two garages collapsed here today, but no one was injured. The streets are cluttered with wires and branches of trees, causing scores of minor motorcar accidents.

Brooklyn Officer Shot By Thief in Own Home, But He 'Gets His Man'

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(INS)—Bill Ryan, traffic cop, was working on his post in Brooklyn today when a taxi driver shouted at him that there was a burglar at such-and-such a number.

"That's my house," shouted Ryan, and off he went.

Gun in hand, he dashed up the stairs of his own home and met the robber coming down. There was an exchange of shots and a bullet took effect in the policeman's body. He leaped on the suspect and clubbed him.

Both were taken to the hospital, where they lay side by side unconscious. The policeman's condition is critical.

STIMSON FACES STRENUOUS DAYS BEFORE PARLEY

Head of American Envoys to Naval Limitation Conference Arranges by Radio at Sea for Preliminary Discussions With Chiefs of All Other Representatives Before Meeting Gets Under Way—S. S. George Washington Expected to Reach Plymouth Harbor Friday — Utmost Harmony Among U. S. Party.

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Visions of a golfing week-end on the English countryside for Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson before he plunges into work as head of the American delegation to the London naval conference went a-glimmering tonight.

While the rest of the passengers on this historic liner danced and dined to the accompaniment of perfect mid-Atlantic weather, Secretary Stimson spent his time arranging, by means of the ship's wireless, for preliminary conferences with the chiefs of all the other delegations before the disarmament parley gets under way.

There are several questions which are of the most vital concern to Europe, including the proposed "Mediterranean pact," on which a settlement will be sought prior to the opening of the conference.

While Secretary Stimson was silent concerning the American attitude toward this pact, it is understood he will inform his European conferees that the United States would have no objection to such a pact if it were modelled along the lines of the four power treaty, guaranteeing the peace of the Pacific, which was signed at the Washington conference of 1921.

The United States will emphasize,

Marine Plane Forced To Land in Florida

SEALAND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Adverse flying conditions this afternoon forced the tri-motored Ford transport of the United States marine air corps, bound from Quantico to Miami, to land here.

Eight men under command of Col. T. C. Turner, chief of the marine air corps, comprised the party which left Quantico at 7:40 a. m., stopping at Fayetteville, N. C., to refuel. Six pursuit planes of the corps also enroute are expected to spend the night here.

ACCIDENT LIST HIGH SATURDAY

Slippery Streets Keep Drivers Guessing; Few Serious.

Between twenty-five and thirty automobile accidents were reported to police Saturday as the result of slippery streets. Police estimate that more than 100 more were narrowly averted. Few of the accidents caused more serious damage than crumpled bumpers and fenders.

About half of the accidents reported to police were collisions. The remainder were due to sliding into stop buttons, curbs and other obstructions. Authorities believe that the fact that most people were driving carefully held the total to a low figure.

Few accidents were reported in the business section, although a bus narrowly missed figuring in a serious accident at Twelfth and O streets about 6:30 o'clock. The bus, going west, swirled badly, sliding until it was headed north, when the brakes were applied at the intersection.

Many of the accidents occurred at approaches to stop buttons where the streets had become exceedingly slippery. The street department relieved much of the danger at such approaches by spreading cinders at down-town intersections and on the approaches to through streets.

H. P. LAU CO. TO BUY PROPERTY

Site Opposite Burlington Station Purchased From St. Thomas Orphanage.

The H. P. Lau Co. has completed arrangements for the purchase of the old Chris Tiernan property on Seventh street opposite the Burlington station, it was learned Saturday night. The property is 140 by 142 feet and there are two buildings on it. This will give the Lau company the entire north half of the block. The price was not learned. The purchase is made from the St. Thomas orphanage.

One of the buildings on the property has been used by the Lau company in recent years as its coffee factory, the property being held under a lease that expires January 1932.

No decision has been reached as to what is to be done with the lots. It was understood on good authority, however, that a new structure is to be erected to house the company's Home Owned Stores activities.

As Rogers Sees It

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 — It seemed like old times to hear Mr. Coolidge quoting statistics over the "rodeo." No man can quote figures like he can. And he always pulls a new one for us. Since the Wall street crash, which the republicans refer to as a "business readjustment," prominent men have done nothing but tell us of the strength of the country. "Steel was strong." "T and T was strong." "Radio was strong." We have been "stronged" to death in speeches and statements, but Mr. Coolidge said "The heart of the American people is strong," and more than five hundred died of heart failure during the late "republican readjustment." What he really meant was that "The American public's head is strong, but his heart is weak."

Yours for true statistics,
WILL.

SUPREME COURT CLERK CHECKED

Auditor Finds Accounts Kept In First Class Shape.

Some Old and Uncollectable Bills Remain On Books.

Notwithstanding that the office of the Nebraska Supreme court clerk has outstanding some $1,300 of "frozen loans", in the shape of uncollected costs and fees due from litigants and their lawyers, of which amount little if any is likely ever to be paid in, the affairs of the office are found generally in good shape as the result of an examination and audit by State Accountant C. A. Sommer, finished within the last few days.

The delinquent items, which make a list covering half a dozen long typewritten pages, are appended to the report which Mr. Sommer has filed with State Auditor L. B. Johnson. They are mostly small sums of a few dollars each, but a few run up to $20 or more, the highest being $32.80, charged against a Lincoln attorney as the representative of his client who failed to pay.

Since a new law passed by the legislature in 1927 became effective, requiring an advance payment of $20 to be made by each litigant filing an appeal in the Supreme court and $5 by the opposing party, to cover all court costs, no more "charge accounts" have been opened on the clerk's books, State Accountant Sommer reports. In two cases the $25 payment was temporarily waived because of the litigants filing poverty affadavits, but the law provides that the counties from whom the suits came are liable for the money and bills have been sent to the county clerks. Cash deposits were made in all other cases.

Long overdue costs aggregate $1,-82, while fees owing to the Supreme court in these old cases amount to $154, making the grand total of "frozen loans" $1,336.

Five-Year Checkup Made.

The state accountant's examination covered a period of five years and three months, from September 1, 1924, the date of Mr. Sommer's last previous survey, to November 30, 1929. Slight shortages were found in the cash book, totalling $16.63, of which $15.75 was charged against H. C. Lindsay, the former clerk, and 88 cents to C. B. Letton, present incumbent of the office.

Mr. Lindsay, now practicing law at Lodi, Wis., sent his check to cover the error in his account, and Clerk Letton paid the 88 cents to square his records. "So at this writing the funds are intact," says the accountant.

"Considering that this audit covered a period of over five years and involved the handling of about $100,000 in collections, largely in small items of a dollar or two, discrepancies of but $16.63 may be considered insignificant," Sommer adds. "The showing indicates that the accounts have been carefully kept."

Total deposits made to cover court costs during the time covered by the audit were $18,526, which with a previous balance of $11,556 made a total fund of $30,082, the accountant reports. Of that amount all but $280 had been transferred to regular court costs account or refunded to litigants on December 1, last. To simplify bookkeeping, Sommer recommends that the "cost deposit" account be closed, since no refunds are made under the present law, the entire $25 being retained in every case.

Bar Commission Receipts.

The state bar commission, comprising five attorneys who examine candidates for the legal profession and recommend those found qualified for admission to practice, received 746 applications during the term of the audit. Each applicant paid a fee of $10, the total revenue thus being $7,460. There was a previous cash balance of $2,005, making the grand total $9,465.

Of this sum, $4,664 was retained by the five members of the bar commission for their compensation and expenses in preparing and conducting examinations and grading papers. The clerk's office received $1,164 as fees for its services in preparing certificates, filing the applications, and making a record of the applicants being admitted. Other disbursements swelled the total outlay to $7,250, leaving a cash balance of $2,215.

State Accountant Sommer says that the double entry system of bookkeeping installed in the clerk's office at his suggestion after the last previous audit has worked satisfactorily.

The office had combined cash on hand and bank balance of $18,070 at the beginning of the period covered by the recent audit. Its receipts during the five years and three months were $89,822, with disbursements of $85,688, leaving a balance of $4,134 on hand.

FISH REMOVED TO DEEP WATER

Save Over Million From Shallow Pools During Summer.

State seining crews saved more than a million and a quarter game fish from death when the water in streams and lakes receded during the summer drouth, State Warden Frank O'Connell said Saturday.

He estimated that the fish thus saved were valued at approximately $25,000, although, if the same number had been raised in the state hatcheries, the cost would have been double that amount.

Mostly Bullheads and Catfish.

The fish were taken by the thousands from deep pools in the Platte river which had been left after the spring floods had again when the river went down later in the summer. The fish were placed either in the main river or in other streams and lakes where sufficient water was assured. During the fall, lake which were likely to freeze to the bottom during the winter were also seined and the fish transferred to deeper ponds.

The greater portion of the fish saved were bullheads and catfish. More than 250,000 perch were taken from irrigation ditches in western Nebraska when the water was shut off.

In addition, the state took 110 tons of coarse fish, such as carp, gar, buffalo, and suckers, from lakes and streams, the greater portion of which were sold on the market. The sale of these fish brought a return of more than $6,000.

Following are the salvage records kept by the department:

Coon Branch crook, 100 sunfish, 11,500 bullheads.
Platte river, 5,210 croppies, 28,393 sunfish, 28,186 bullheads, 5,104 bass, 44,735 catfish, 17,995 pike, 9,000 perch.
Muhlhal's slough, 130 croppies, 300 sunfish, 3,800 bullheads, 24 bass, 10 pickeral.

Prolonged Advance Unlikely Until Business Trend Clearly Defined.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—The new year has as yet brought no indications of the progress which industry has made in throwing off the depressing influences which caused such a letdown in business activity in the closing months of 1929, but the few definite signs that have appeared have proven highly encouraging to the constructive forces.

The steel industry has shown gratifying recuperative powers. The United States Steel corporation in its unfilled tonnage report as of December 31 showed an increase of 291,848 tons over the total reported at the end of the previous month. This is a considerable larger amount than had commonly been estimated in Wall street circles where a figure approximating 200,000 tons had been looked forward to. The steel corporation is reported to have picked up operations to slightly above 65 per cent of capacity as compared with 60 per cent at the beginning of the week. The independent steels are also running at a much larger ratio than heretofore with the largest in this group currently operating at 71 per cent of capacity as against approximately 45 per cent during the holiday shutdown.

The stock market has pointed higher in an extremely dull week of trading. Movements in the first part were largely confined to meaningless professional manuevers, with the total transactions on Wednesday falling to the lowest total in some two years.

Little Public Following.

Improvement was evidenced in the latter part of the week, when special group sponsorship in a long list of issues brought a more buoyant tone to the market, although it is coming an increasingly difficult task to entice a public following into getting behind these movements. It is unlikely that there will be any prolonged advance until the future trend of business and industry becomes more clearly defined, and final quarter reports of leading industrial organizations come up for perusal.

Freight car loadings on complete reports for the year show that the total for 1929 was 52,789,079 cars, which is next to the record total for any year, the peak year being 1926, when total loadings were 53,098,819 cars, or 0.8 per cent above the total for 1929. For the week ended December 28, the total was 638,445 cars a decrease from the previous week of 204,038 cars, due mainly to the Christmas holidays included in that week.

The automobile industry, with the annual New York show in progress, is chiefly in an attitude of expectation, aside from the makers of the two chief low priced models. Steel orders have been increasing somewhat, but in the aggregate they are still somewhat small and do not as yet give any indication of what the volume of production will be when the season's operations are actually under way.

Little Building.

Building is at a low ebb, this is based on seasonal conditions in the country as a whole and the low ebb in permit operations reached in the late months of 1929. December permit values at 215 cities were the lightest in years, and 43 per cent below the like month a year ago. For the calendar year, the total value of building permits at 215 cities was the smallest since 1922, the decrease from 1928 was 11.8 per cent and the decline from the peak year 1925 was 24.9 per cent.

The money situation continues to be one of the outstanding favorable factors. Money rates, although not low in comparison with the average of the years 1926 and 1927, are very much below the 1928 and 1929 high records. The decline in business activity and commodity prices seems likely to release funds in large quantity for use in the local money market.

Another important development in the money situation during the week was a sharp drop in the leading European exchanges, particularly in sterling. On the failure of the Bank of England to lower its rate this week, a sharp rally took place, but even after this sterling remained well below the point at which gold exports are profitable.

Grains Stage a Rally.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11 — (INS) — Grains staged a sharp rally in late trade on the Chicago board of trade today after showing more than 1c decline for wheat shortly after the start. At the close net gains of 1 to 1⅜c were shown for wheat, ½ to ¾c for corn and ½ to ¾c for oats. Heavy short covering and commission house buying featured late trading.

The support was invigorated by a report from Omaha stating that the federal farm board representative there had been given authority to buy wheat on the tables there at a stipulated price of $1.15 for No. 2 hard track Omaha. At the time the market was very close to the board's figures.

For the week prices for wheat were off 1½ to 2½c, corn up ⅞ to 1⅞c and oats unchanged to ⅜c higher.

Heavy unloading by longs in view of continued slack export business and uncertainty concerning the Russian situation were chief depressing factor in wheat during the week. Favorable weather conditions over most of the belt also cut down the buying power.

Cables were irregular. Receipts were moderate here and cash demand fairly active with prices slightly easier.

Unfavorable weather conditions over the corn belt for the movement to market, was the chief buying factor in that commodity. Cash demand was active and country sales to arrive light.

Hogs Suffer Setback.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(INS)—Hog values suffered a setback of 20c compared with a week ago due to an exceptionally heavy run and limited demand. Shipments were rather heavy, but even that factor failed to balance the surplus arrivals. Week's receipts totalled 220,000 compared with 154,000 last week and 250,000 a year ago.

Top price for the week was $10.25, reached on Thursday. Today's top touched $9.80. Most of the light hogs sold at $9.60 to $9.80 late in the week and the heavy went at $9.25 to $9.50. Demand was strong for steers and although receipts were liberal prices gained 25 to 50c over last week. Arrivals for the week were 47,000 against 35,000 last week and 52,000 a year ago. Cows and heifers also advanced 25 to 50c.

Fancy yearlings reached $16.75 during the week. Choice heavy steers brought $16. Cows and heifers ranged from $6.50 to $15.00. The market for calves was active all week, with prices 50 to 75c higher. Top was $16.50.

During the week there were 68,000 sheep received compared with 47,000 last week and 79,000 a year ago. Demand was broad with prices from 50c to $1 higher. Top reached $14.75, the highest price paid this season. Most of the medium to good lambs cashed at $13.75 to $14.50.

Chicago Cotton Higher.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(INS)—Active commission house buying featured trade in cotton today. Pressure was light. Final prices were up from 16 to 25 points. Strength in outside markets and rather favorable trade advices were bullish factors. For the week prices show gains of 15 to 25 points.

The market was active and generally higher during the week. Favorable federal farm board news, steady cables and unfavorable weather conditions over a great part of the belt, were factors.

Devigne Enjoined In Suit Over Filling Station Contract

District Judge Frost issued a decree Saturday in which he enjoined Ire Devigne from handling petroleum products other than those of the Lincoln Oil Co. until May 17, 1932 unless the oil company violates its agreement. The order applies to a filling station at Havelock.

Litigation arose last summer after Devigne refused to handle the company's products, claiming that it had violated a contract signed in May 1927, through failure to pay rent at the proper time. The oil company charged that it was a bookkeeping oversight and that Devigne had refused to accept the money when offered after discovery of the mistake.

The oil company asked an injunction to compel Devigne to continue the 1927 agreement. The case was heard by District Judge Frost in equity court, September 30, October 1, and 2.

Prohibition Called 'Marvelous Success'

McBride, Anti-Saloon League Leader, Sees Eventual End of Liquor Traffic

DETROIT, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Terming the first ten years of prohibition "a decade of unexpected and marvelous success," Dr. F. Scott -McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, in an interview with International News Service today prophesied continued triumph of enforcement and an eventual cessation of liquor traffic.

McBride is here from Washington for the twenty-fourth national convention of the Anti-Saloon league of America to open a five-day meet Wednesday.

The Anti-Saloon league leader attributed the prosperity of the country in a great measure to prohibition and named Detroit, because of its border location, a troublesome foe in enforcement activity.

"Detroit is the battle ground. That is one reason we are holding the convention here," he declared.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Out of a "bleak and hopeless" party lethargy of a year ago has come a "militant spirit in democratic ranks," according to Jourtt Shouse, executive chairman of the party's national committee.

The democratic chief, who came here from Washington on business, believes the new party spirit will make itself felt in the coming biennial congressional elections.

"We will put a minimum of forty men in the house and four or five in the senate," Shouse predicted. He will address democrats at Dodge City and Hutchinson, Kas., early next week.

They have been dismissed from the Northampton school for girls because they smoked on a train between Northampton and Springfield, Mass.

The girls "committed a n unpardonable sin" in the opinion of Miss Sarah D Whitaker, co-principal of the school. She has informed their parents to that effect.

THREE OF FIVE LOST IN NORTH REPORTED SAFE

Captain Pat Reid And Two Mechanics Reach Unalakleet.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 11—(INS)—Capt. Pat Reid and his two mechanics missing a week in Alaskan wilds arrived safely this afternoon at Unalakleet.

Piloting a Fairchild monoplane of the Aviation Corporation in quest of Capt. Ben Carl Eielson and Earl Borland, missing in Siberia since November 9, Captain Reid with Mechanics Bill Huges and James Hutchinson hopped off from Fairbanks January 4 for Nome on the first leg of their flight to Siberia.

This was the last word from them until news was flashed here late today that they had reached Unalakleet safely at 12:45 p. m.

The first word received here added that "Pilot and mechanics were all well."

no planes from the airports in this vicinity were aloft at the time.

Anxiety Increases.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(INS)—Anxiety concerning the fate of two missing airmen, Pilot Daniel Marra and his observer, William Kirkpatrick, increased to the point of deepest pessimism tonight when no trace of them had been found after an all-day search by more than a score of airplanes that winged back and forth over the sparsely settled regions of Long Island, New Jersey and the adjacent coastal waters.

Marra and Kirkpatrick have been missing since 9 o'clock Friday morning when they took off from the Fairchild Aviation corporation's flying field at Farmingdale, L. I., on what was to have been an altitude test. They got away nicely, soared into the murky sky, going higher and higher—and they haven't been seen or heard from since.

So far as known this was the first time airmen became lost in an altitude flight. They should have been heard from yesterday afternoon, for they had only sufficient fuel to last six hours.

Intensive Search.

The search for the missing flyers was the most intensive ever engaged in by airmen from lying fields in the New York area. Six airplanes from the flying field at Farmingdale, a biplane and an amphibian owned by the New York police department, army ships from Mitchell field and other planes from the New Jersey airports participated in the search.

Not a sign of the missing airplane or its occupants was found. The searching planes zoomed close to hills and valleys in New Jersey and in Long Island and flew low over the water along the shore line but no trace of a wrecked plane—or of the two airmen—could be found.

Marra, 24 year old former army pilot, was seeking to determine the plane's "ceiling" when he took off, and had no intention of going far from the field at Farmingdale. Mist was creeping in steadily from the ocean when he took off, with Kirkpatrick in the observor's pit. Marra ascended almost directly. Persons on the ground heard his motor humming overhead for some minutes after the gray mist over the field had hid the ship itself.

Flight Depends On Wind.

Tonight it was the opinion of flyers who participated in the long search today that the two airmen were blown to sea. A strong wind was blowing shortly after they took to the air. The searching airmen based their hope of finding Marra and Kirkpatrick alive on the chance that the upper winds might have blown them toward land. In that event it was possible their ship had been forced down in some isolated section of New York or New Jersey.

Ships at sea were asked to keep a lookout for the missing airplane and a description of the plan, known as a "Fairchild 71," was broadcast. Residents of the New Jersey hills and isolated parts of Long Island were requested to telephone Lexington 2621 in the event they had any information of importance concerning the missing men.

Both Marra and Kirkpatrick were experienced airmen. Marra was graduated from the Army Flying School at Kelly field last year. He flew at McCook field, Dayton, O., at one time. Kirkpatrick was an observer employed by the Aviation corporation, of which the Fairchild corporation is a subsidiary.

SEVEN MILLIONS GAS TAX TOTAL

paid them according to this rule was $1,663,266, being one-fourth of the gross receipts for the nine months period, which were $6,660,566.

Increase in Consumption.

The first three months of 1929, during which the old law still remained in force, brought in $821,386, compared with $799,658 in the corresponding months of 1928—a gain of $21,728 before the Bowring act took effect.

The income of $6,660,566 realized during the last nine months of 1299 was considerably more than a 2-to-1 increase over the same months of the preceding year, which brought in $3,168,182. However the April income was in part based on 2-cent tax collected from [illegible] on their March shipments. For that reason, the actual gain [illegible] 4-cent tax is not wholly indicated by the comparative figures.

It appears from the showing thus far that by March 31, next, marking the completion of the first full year under the 4-cent tax, the amount of money taken in will reach approximately $8,500,000. The legislature estimated $8,400,000 a year as the income to be derived from it. If there is $100,000 more, the state will get $75,000 above the legislature's calculation and the counties will have an extra $25,000 to divide among themselves.

1930 Goal $9,000,000.

The average receipts per month from the 4-cent tax last year, while it was being collected, were $739,230 During 1930, it is expected the average will be not less than $750,000 a month. Should that amount be collected, it will make the year's total $9,000,000.

Morals of Geisha Girls a Perplexing Question

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Morals of the Japanese geisha girls and whether or not they would constitute a menace to the young manhood of America if imported to this country was the problem laid before the United States state department today.

It was being heatedly discussed in commercial, religious and even diplomatic circles here following efforts of missionaries to prevent the importing of geisha girls to Washington, D. C.

Whether or not the geisha girl is a "naughty hussy" is the question that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson has been asked.

"She is not," indignantly replied representatives of American business firms.

"She is," retort members of the Federation of Christian missions.

The geisha girl is a classic dancer, an artist, some of them demanding $50 to $100 an hour for performances.

HUTCHINS TIRED, BUT SAYS NOT DOWNHEARTED

is six feet tall and has retained his figure. He sat in lonely grandeur in a high-backed chair in a fumed oak-panelled room which had old English lettering on the door warning of "The President" and smoked a straight stemmed pipe which his wife may have given him for Christmas. The chin of the youthful university president is cleft. He is handsome. He looked, in fact, exactly like motion picture actors try to look when they are being photographed among their treasured volumes.

But there were circles under the eyes of President Hutchins. And his voice was a trifle hoarse.

Birthday This Week.

"In six days," he said without obvious relish, "I shall be thirty-one years old."

"He has been making eight to ten speeches a week," said the university publicity agent a few moments later. "But he is in good shape. ...e does not seem to mind it."

"My health is first rate," President Hutchinson said somewhat horsely. "I have had no disappointments to speak of."

But the youngest college president in the world would neither admit nor deny that he thought he was making progress. He was very firm in his refusals to generalize.

"Even agriculture is different in Oklahoma from agriculture in Maine," he parried one question. "How can I say whether the thirst for culture in the middlewest is more intense and more of a problem to educators than in the east?"

"Do you still enjoy your job?"

"Oh, yes, indeed," said President Hutchins warmly.

STRENUOUS DAYS BEFORE PARLEY STIMSON FACES

however, it was understood, that her interest in the Mediterranean pact is purely academic, and that she cannot be a party to it, but if it will give the European nations a greater sense of security, thereby permitting of greater reduction in naval armaments, the United States will gladly give its approval of such a pact.

Will Have Only Three Days.

Secretary Stimson is most anxious to obtain the maximum amount of preliminary understanding prior to the opening of the conference. According to present schedules, he will have only three days between his arrival in London and the opening session of the conference to achieve such preliminary accord, which accounts for the heavy schedule he has laid out for himself over next week-end.

At her present rate of speed, the George Washington is scheduled to arrive in Plymouth harbor sometime Friday. Mr. Stimson and his delegation will head immediately for London, and will have nothing more than a single night's sleep on solid land before he starts the conferences which will pave the way for the main parley.

According to present indications, Stimson will meet with Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain on the Saturday following his arrival, and if time and other arrangements permit, will also confer with Premier Andre Tardieu of France, leader of the French delegation, on the same day.

On Sunday, instead of spending his time in relaxation or in golfing on one of England's world famous links, the state secretary will hold a prolonged conference with Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, head of the Italian delegation to the parley.

Will Confer With Japanese.

This still leaves the Japanese delegation to be reckoned with. Although no definite arrangements have yet been made, it is likely that Stimson will also confer with former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki, head of the Japanese delegation.

As the parley is scheduled to open with a plenary session in the royal gallery of the house of lords on the following Tuesday, there seems to be little chance that Stimson will find more than a very few hours for relaxation before embarking upon the arduous work of the arms reduction conference itself.

The other members of the American delegation, Dwight W. Morrow, Secretary of the Navy Adams and Senators Joseph T. Robinson and David A. Reed may possibly have a little more time to themselves, for plans do not call for general conferences among the various delegations before the parley opens.

The meetings will be merely between Mr. Stimson and the accredited heads of the various delegations, but as it is highly probable the state secretary will meet, on several occasions before the parley, with Premier MacDonald, it appears he must relinquish all hope he might have had of a little "vacation" on English soil before the conference gets under way.

In the meantime, Stimson continued to hold meetings with his assistants aboard ship. A prolonged conference was held today, during which the delegates went into a detailed study of certain aspects of the coming conference, and the general attitude was one of utmost harmony.

U. S. Delegation United.

It is becoming increasingly obvious as this vessel approaches the European shore that the American delegation will plunge into the conference as one man, without the slightest dissension on any point whatever among its various members.

This complete harmony is regarded as an extremely favorbale sign, particularly as Mr. Stimson and his colleagues view with similar good will the published attitudes of the other participating nations toward the vexatious problem of limiting and reducing the naval armaments of the world.

For quite obvious reasons, Secretary Stimson refrained tonight from commenting on the announcement of H. V. Alexander, British first lord of the admirality, that Great Britain is now willing to regard fifty cruisers as her maximum empire requirements, in place of the seventy she demanded at Geneva.

It was stated on his behalf, however, that the announcement was greeted with profoundest satisfaction, and it was regarded as furnishing eloquent proof that Britain plans to enter into the conference fully prepared to make genuine sacrifices in the cause of disarmament.

Size An Important Factor.

There is only one factor that arouses any question in the minds of the American delegates, and that concerns the size and armament of the fifty cruisers that Britain has now set as the minimum to meet her needs. If Britain will be content with fifty cruisers of moderate size, there seems to be no possibility of American opposition, but should Britain demand the right to man and operate half a hundred such warships of indeterminate tonnage and heavy armament, there may be room for considerable discussion.

It was regarded as likely tonight that Mr. Stimson and his colleagues would participate in divine services aboard the liner tomorrow, and with the exception of essential routine matters, the entire delegation and its formidable corps of assistants and secretaries will probably enjoy a genuine "day of rest" on the high seas.

Everyone is still fervently hoping that the present fine weather will continue, although none of the party has yet suffered from seasickness, and by this time even the most inexperienced mariners among the official party have probably found their "sea legs."

Cross Country Air-Rail Travel Rates Cut From 12 to 5 Cents Per Mile

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—A reduction in passenger fare rates from 12 to 5 cents a mile, the most drastic cut in the history of transcontinental air travel rates, has been announced by the Transcontinental Air Transport-Maddux air lines, the company which in conjunction with the Pennsylvania and Santa Fe railroads operates a forty-eight-hour service between New York and Los Angeles.

The rate which brings the cost of a trip across the continent by plane and train to less than that for the same journey by extra-fare trains, with Pullman, will go into effect January 14, according to C. M. Keys, president of the line.

The reduction was recommended by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in a long distance conversation with Keys yesterday. Lindbergh is on the Pacific coast on an inspection tour of the line.

The rate is applicable to any part of the trip as well as to the entire journey. From New York to Los Angeles the price of a ticket will be $152.92, a reduction of $107.51.

HOOVER WRITES 'DRY' MESSAGE

the coast guard killing of three seamen aboard the black Duck, a rum runner.

The law enforcement commission's recommendations to be submitted Monday, which are understood to include transfer of the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the justice department, consolidation of border patrol forces, measures to relieve court congestion and codification of prohibition statutes, are expected to be adopted by congress, but not without considerable debate.

A bill proposing this transfer, with exception of the industrial alcohol section, of the prohibition unit, was introduced today by Senator King, democrat, Utah.

In his attack on the secretary of navy, Warren quoted Adams as saying:

"I want you to judge men of the navy as I see them, and not as you see them on Boston commons. Maybe the men on the commons are not navy men. Perhaps they are from the coast guard."

This was "listened to humorously" by Bostonians, Warren added.

Says a "Deliberate Insult."

"This statement is a deliberate insult and slur on one of the noblest organizations in the world," Warren told the house, "and it is utterly unworthy of a man who holds a high position in the official family of the president. The truth is that, man for man, and officer for officer, the coast guard will stand on the same plane with the navy 365 days of the year.

"I would hate to think that a man holding the high office of secretary of navy would engage in loose and irresponsible talk, and I believe the country is going to believe he meant exactly what he is quoted as saying.

"Secretary Adams exercised his usual propensity for saying the wrong thing at the wrong time, a habit as I recall, which has heretofore brought embarrassment to the administration."

Warren referred evidently to Adams' criticism of independent republicans in congress for failing to co-operate more fully with the administration.

Eyes on Main Objectives.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(UP)—Members of President Hoover's law enforcement commission regard the preliminary report on prohibition which President Hoover will submit to congress Monday as merely incidental to their main objectives.

Immediate release of its findings to date on prohibition is intended to still the demand from congress for a report, but the commission regards as of more far reaching social importance its comprehensive reports to be published months hence.

For the first time in the nation's history, the commission believes a searching inquiry on a national scale is being undertaken into all phases of the vexing crime problem. This task may require four or five years, but is expected to yield invaluable data of fundamental importance to society.

Compared with this survey, which the conumission hopes congress will continue to finance, its present prohibition report is thought to be merely a stop gap document that may be of some aid in the immediate emergency. Most of the recommendations in the report are understood to coincide with those made by President Hoover in his annual message.

Memorandum Received.

PARIS, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—The foreign office received today a British memorandum answering the recent French memorandum regarding the naval conference. The memorandum will be published simultaneously here and in London Monday morning. Nothing of its contents was revealed officially, but it was believed the note was regarded favorably by the French, since, although there are points of difference, there are many issues on which an accord is possible.

Slash Plan Wins Support.

LONDON, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Proposals for drastic reduction in the size of big war ships were mustering wide and influential support in Great Britain tonight with the opening of the five power naval conference less than two weeks away.

Powerful arguments were put forward in favor of limiting the biggest naval vessels to much less than 20,000 tons, the suggested limits ranging from 10,000 tons to 17,000 tons.

The League of Nations union issued a statement urging limitation to 10,000 tons—the size of the big present day cruisers—and pointing out that such craft would be powerful enough to meet all needs if the nations of the world all agreed to that maximum. The statement emphasized the Kellogg pact as limiting armaments to police protection.

Three Ill From Rabbit Fever in Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Three cases of tularemia, a rare disease contracted from handling infected wild rabbits and known as rabbit fever, have been discovered in Pennsylvania, according to Dr. J. M. Campbell, chief of the bureau of communicable diseases of the state health department.

VALUABLE GOATS KILLED BY DOGS

Breeder at Hildreth Loses Animals Worth $500.

(Special to The Star.)

HILDRETH, Neb., Jan. 11—Havoc was played here during the night when loose dogs of the neighborhood got into a pen at the goat farm of R. C. Mars, goat fancier, who lives in the edge of town, and maimed and killed 15 of his pure bred milk goats.

The place is known as the Franklin County Goat farm, and has been operated by Mr. Mars for several years, and he has been raising and selling fancy goats to breeders in several different states. He has sold milk over this vicinity. The value of the animals killed was estimated at about $500. They were confined in a pen by themselves over night, and not one escaped the fury of the dogs.

Mars has about 45 more goats at the farm, all of which were secured in pens into which the dogs could not get. The pen where the killings occurred was separated from the others and at a considerable distance from the home.

AN AIR MAIL FLIER LOST IN SNOW STORM

ever, and the plane soon droned away in the direction of Salt Lake City.

Airport officials said they believed Graham had landed in some clearing along the route, perhaps near Melford, Utah.

A swirling snow storm prevented any attempts to find the aviator tonight.

No Word at Salt Lake City.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Salt Lake airport officials had received no report today of Maury Graham, Western Air Express pilot, believed forced down somewhere between here and Las Vegas, Nev., by a snow storm which swept the region last night.

Officials Are Hopeful.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Maury Graham, 34, night air mail flier, probably is safe in some remote landing place in Utah attempting to communicate with headquarters, Western Air Express officials said tonight.

The flier holds the confidence of his company to such an extent that the officials refuse to believe he was unable to outride the storm into which he disappeared after leaving Las Vegas to complete his regular Los Angeles to Salt Lake run.

NEW WITNESSES GARRETT TRIAL

The defense will have 18 witnesses at the trial.

To Last Full Week.

The case is expected to occupy all this week. The prosecution will be deprived of the testimony of one of its key witnesses, Mrs. Clara Garrett, divorced wife of the defendant. The Supreme court held that an error in the Garrett divorce proceedings made her still the legal wife of the accused man at the time she testified against him.

County Attorney Romig states that the new evidence more than offsets that of which he is deprived. At the first trial Mrs. Garrett pointed out the defendant as the man who shot down William Kinsley and then kidnaped her and hauled her for ten miles in an automobile before turning her out on a country road six miles from Alliance.

William Hagner, 25, farm hand of Kinsley's at the time of the slaying, is another chief witness for the state. He was in the parlor of the Kinsley home with his employer when the latter was killed.

The police department of New York City plans to equip 500 police motorcars with receiving sets, which will be tuned in on a central broadcasting station at headuarters. To keep secrecy, the messages will be sent in code on a special wave length.

Heir to MacKay Fortune Starts $15 a Week Job

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Another rich man's son is starting at the bottom of the goldan ladder.

John William MacKay, 24-year-old son of Clarence H. MacKay, head of the Postal Telegraph Co., will go to work next Monday in his father's company as an apprentice automatic printer operator. His salary will be $15 a week.

John, who is the only son of the telegraph magnate, may inherit $100,000,000, the estimated fortune of his father.

Ellen MacKay, daughter of the telegraph king, married Irving Berlin, the song writer, to the disapproval of her father. However, after a child was born to the Berlins, it was reported that the elder MacKay had become reconciled with his daughter.

John MacKay has just returned from a honeymoon of nearly a year with his bride, the former Gwendolyn Rose.

If John makes good as a printer "puncher," he may some day get as much as $35 a week or maybe $40 if he will work overtime.

New optical instruments and mechanical devices are said to cure squinting without an operation.

During the Arctic weather in Denmark, dynamite had to be used in digging graves in Copenhagen.

ICE HARVEST ON AT CRETE MILLS WITH FINE CROP

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., Jan. 11—The annual ice harvest is on here in full swing, the Crete mills having started to cut from a fresh water pond north of the city Thursday. The ice is of a splendid quality, averaging eleven inches in thickness, being above the average in this respect. The crew has loaded and shipped fifty carloads so far, 43 cars being loaded out Friday, which was a record.

The work is done with electric machinery which will be able to handle from 25 to 40 carloads daily for several days now. A large order for ice has been placed with the firm by the Burlington railway, and will be shipped to Lincoln and other places in this vicinity to fill the railway company's storage. Funeral services were held Friday at Republic, the family home, with burial in Lake cemetery near there.

Sweden Plans To Subsidize Stork

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 11—(INS)—Subsidizing the stork to the extent of at least one million dollars annually is a proposal just delivered to the Swedish social service department by a committee of experts, appointed by the riksdag, or national legislature.

Part of this money would be paid to poor mothers as recompense for loss of wages in connection with child birth and part as help in defraying the lying-in expenses. A government bill to this effect is expected at the next session of the legislature which begins in January.

In an exhaustive report the experts, including Miss Kerstin Hesselgren, a member herself of the riksdag, and a woman physician, Dr. Ada Nilsson, as well as two men, propose, first, that medical advice should be furnished expectant mothers by authorized doctors or midwives and that half of the fees for these consultations should be paid by the state and other half by the mothers themselves; second, that more lying-in hospitals be provided at public expense; and, third, that more nurses and "mothers' helpers" be made available—and, finally, that to mothers with small incomes, certain amounts be paid in cash, of which two-thirds should be payable at the time of the birth and one-third three weeks later.

Work of Clearing Snow From County Roads Begins Today

All available road machinery was to be at work Sunday on the county's highway system clearing the heavy Saturday snow from the roads, L. W. Weaver, deputy county engineer announced Saturday afternoon.

No bad drifts had been reported to the engineer's office Saturday afternoon although heavy snows had fallen generally throughout the county. Mr. Weaver thought that the entire highway system of the county could be cleared of snow in two or three days if no more snow falls.

The snow is the first real test the county's new snow equipment has had. Five new giant caterpillar tractors will push snow plows, starting on the heavier traveled routes first. One truck will also be used with a snow plow. Several wooden v-shaped plows have also been made, Mr. Weaver stated, and will be used where the snow is not too heavy.

Even the county's regular road maintainers from the regional patrol stations will be brought into play to move snow where lighter falls were recorded or for follow-up work behind the larger plows, he stated.

MANKE UNAWARE CAR STRUCK MAN

right leg is but badly bruised. Dr. Becker stated.

Mr. Manke denies running from the scene of the accident. He told police that he never knew he hit anyone. His eye was bleeding profusly, he said, and he drove at once to the office of Dr. F. M. Andrus, who dressed his injury. Mr. Manke's wound was bleeding dangerously, Dr. Andrus stated. The gash narrowly missed the eyeball, the physician said.

Mr. Manke met his son, Richard, jr., a half-block from the doctor's office, and was driven home. The younger Manke declared that his father instructed him to call police after dinner.

In the meantime, police obtained from James Howard, University of Nebraska student, the number of the car which struck Mr. Carpenter, established its ownership, and called at Mr. Mankes home. Howard was driving a grocery truck. It was this machine, which Mr. Manke declares he was trying to avoid, when he drove his car over the curb.

From his hospital cot, Mr. Carpenter declared Saturday evening that he saw the impending accident, endeavored to avoid the oncoming sedan, and lost consciousness, as he was struck and knocked down to the snow-covered ground.

U. S. TO CONDUCT A FOREST SURVEY

Granger in Charge of Nationwide Project of All Private and Public Timber.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 11—(U. P.)—C. M. Granger, district forester for Oregon and Washington since 1924, has been promoted to head a nationwide survey which will have for its object the determination of the exact amount of standing timber in the United States and its annual rate of depletion, it was announced at forestry headquarters here today.

The survey will be started within the next few weeks and the first territory to be checked will be Washington and Oregon. It will be extended to California, the lakes region and the lower Mississippi by July 1.

Granger left last night for Washington to see Secretary Stuart, chief of the forest department, but will probably return here within a fortnight to start the survey.

The survey will concern itself with all of the timber in the country, including that privately known, as well as that in the government forests.

McCulla Ready To Hop to Chamber Met In Arizona

Arrangements were completed Saturday night by H. F. McCulla to leave early Tuesday morning for the mid-winter conference of the officers and directors of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce at Phoenix, Ariz., of which Mr. McCulla is president.

Besides Mr. McCulla there will be four other Lincoln men and the pilot, Jack Kolbenschlag. They will fly in a Ryan brougham and will return to Lincoln a week from Tuesday morning. From here they will hop to Wichita. After leaving there they will touch at Amarillo, El Paso and other southwestern cities.

The decision of the junior chamber officers to make the trip to Phoenix in a plane, is in line with the policy of the conference. All of the officers are flying to the meeting.

This trip is expected by Kolbenschlag to be one of his last in regular passenger pilot service. Soon after his return he expects to go to Hastings where he is to become manager of an aviation company recently organized there.

He is 82 years old, the oldest archbishop in the Catholic church in America.

near Ashland." In addition to giving his reasons for this opinion the engineer also gives his reasons why Wahoo, Emerald, Beaver Crossing and Milford are given lesser ratings. The estimated cost of bringing the water to Lincoln from these places, and the operating expense after the plant is set up, also are contained in the report.

Some salt water has been found in wells in this vicinity, it is pointed out. This is particularly true along the Salt creek valley west of the city. It is found that where there is salt in a well, a gravity separation will occur, the salt being heavier than the fresh water, remaining near the bottom. It is possible to pump a well at such a low rate and obtain fresh water from the upper portion. When the rate is increased the water will then become salty.

Salt Might Increase.

Because of this condition, it is possible that with an increased rate of pumping the salt content of the present city supply will increase. This is cerified in some of the experiences of the water department. "Springs" are in the underlying stratum of clay. The city has found that when this clay layer, found at depths of about 200 feet near the A street station and Van Dorn street, is pierced by wells, salt water is encountered.

The drainage area of Lincoln is about 800 square miles. A layer of water somewhat less than one-quarter of an inch over this area would equal the total pumpage for 1929. The report then goes into a detailed study of the water bearing formation under Lincoln and almost the entire state. It also goes into present and future demands, and past consumption, this latter being used with population, growth of the city and possible future growth, to determine the usage demand to come. Maps show the geology of the country, the city's distribution system, including the stations and location of the pumps and pipe lines. These even go into the mineral constituents of the water, and the surface contours of the Dakota limestone underlying the city.

Recommend Platte River.

"The largest and most reliable source of water supply available to Lincoln is the Platte river, the report states. It rises in the Rocky Mountains in Colorado and Wyoming and affords an unfailing supply. The drainage area at Columbus is 56,000 square miles and at Ashland, somewhat larger. The channel is wide and made up of gravel and shifting sands. Much of the flow occurs in the sand and gravel below the surface, which are from 100 to 200 feet or more deep northeast of Lincoln."

After describing the course of the river, the report says that the "water might be taken directly from the river. Because of the shifting character of the sands, however, this would entail intake troubles. Also open river water would have to be treated to remove sediment. Therefore, it would be much better to draw the supply from wells sunk in the river bed, thus insuring a clear water and avoiding the intake difficulties.

Ashland Plan Cheaper.

"A water supply developed near Cedar Bluffs would have an advantage over that at Ashland in that it is approximately 140 feet higher in elevation. The cost of obtaining water from these two sources has been studied and the cost shows conclusively that Ashland is the more economical.

"In prehistoric days the river left its channel near Morse Bluffs on the west side and Cedar Bluff on the east. The channel, about six miles wide extended southeasterly about fifteen miles to Wahoo. It then continued southeasterly and joined the main stream at Ashland. When the river adopted its present course the old channel filled with sand and gravel of the same composition as the modern valley.

"There can be little doubt that there is a large volume of underground flow southeasterly along this old valley. A maximum pumping rate of approximately 400,000 gallons a day lowers the ground surface two feet only and it recovers immediately when pumping stops. The water rises to within 10 to 25 feet of the surface. It is of good quality and does not require treatment.

Build Power Units.

Instead of furnishing power from Lincoln over a transmission line the engineer proposes building power units at the pumping stations, equipping them with Diesel engines. The cost of these plants at Ashland would be $136,800 for project A. Total cost Diesel plant project, $3,139,100; operating cost, $280,700.

Project B—Total cost, $3,190,400; operating cost, $289,700.

Project C—$3,163,100; operating cost, $287,700.

Project D includes two 12-million gallon daily pumps driven by Diesel engines with auxiliary generator for well pump motors.

Project B—Two Diesel engines with directly connected generators, duplicate installation, and three motor driven pumps of twelve, nine and six million gallons capacity.

Project C—One Diesel engine with directly connected generator as in B and also electric transmission line from Lincoln and three motor pumps same as in B.

The equipment for the Wahoo plant is virtually the same as the other.

As soon as Commissioner Schroeder received the report of the engineers, he called a meeting of the advisory committee of the water department, and the members went into the study in detail. Afterward they declared they were "absolutely open minded on the whole proposal." They have no preference, one averred, and before any decision is made they will make a visit to each proposed site. Members of the committee are H. K. Burket, chairman; J. E. Miller, F. C. Zehrung, L. M. Troup and F. D. Eager.

Valuable Russian Art Collection To Be Exhibited Here

A most interesting and unusual exhibit of Russian arts and crafts is to be on display Monday and all of next week on the fifth floor of the Rudge and Guenzel company. The exhibit, which is the property of the soviet government, is valued at between $50,000 and $75,000, and is largely the work of the country's disabled soldiers. The display has not been shown near Lincoln previously, and it will be seen in Omaha later.

Lovely and delicate pieces are included in the showing consisting of tapestries, beautifully embroidered linens, carved wood and ivories, samovars, embroideries, rugs, and woven scarfs, throws, covers, tiny coffee tables inlaid in brilliant colors, miniature divans, composition boxes with bright colored scenes of Russian life, bowls, jugs, and jars, with a colorful design heightened with lacquer finish.

The exhibit has as its center of interest an enameled and jeweled gold punch bowl, with its heavy ladle, once the property of the czars, and taken from the palace after the revolution. Of quite equal interest is a tankard of solid gold, said to have been presented by czar Nicholas to the Grand Duke Michael. In this portion of the collection are the czarina's jeweled jewel box, which she used for her ordinary jewels, and little silver mirrors, silver cigarette cases, boxes and drinking glass, all once part of the palace service. A gold and cloisonne tea set and odd pieces of gold and silver ware add to the interest of these historic relics.

Among the more remarkable pieces are slim ivory knives and cutters, made from the tusks of prehistoric animals by Siberian Eskimos, some of whom live 3000 miles from a railroad. The most intricate and fragile carvings, depicting Russian customs or Russian native and animal life, are carved into the ivory.

AFFIRM CONTROL OF RURAL RATES

Opinion Says Commission Jurisdiction Extends Outside City Limits.

In a lengthy opinion given Saturday by the attorney general's department, the state railway commission is reassured that it has jurisdiction over the rates to be charged by power companies for service given outside the limits of the cities and towns of the state.

While the commission is given authority by the constitution to regulate rates of common carriers, the constitution does not give it authority over rates of public service companies. This power has been generally left to the cities and towns in their franchise power. However, in 1923 the legislature enacted a law intended to extend the commission's authority to rates of power companies in rural districts. The validity of the act was questioned with the result that it has never been enforced, although the commission was advised in 1924 by the attorney general that the law was valid. In 1925 the law was amended to take care of alleged defects, but the commission continued to doubt if it had established authority.

Recently the question was raised again. It is understood that certain residents of Omaha who live outside the city limits are dissatisfied with the rates they must pay for electricity and are asking the aid of the commission to get them reduced.

It is expected that in the near future the matter will be presented before the commission and that action will be taken on authority of the opinion obtained Saturday from the attorney general.

Should any doubt still exist as to the power of the commission, an appeal could then be taken to the courts and the question definitely settled. With the rapid extension of power lines into the rural districts of the state, it is felt that some regulation will be necessary in the near future.

O. C. BELL NOT TO ASK RE-ELECTION

Other County Officers Are Expected to Enter the Primaries.

O. C. Bell, county assessor who passed his eighty-third birthday during the past week, will not be a candidate for re-election next fall, he announced Saturday. All other county officers are expected to run for re-election, they or friends indicated in a check-up Saturday afternoon following announcement that Claude P. Hensel was signifying by letter to his friends his intention of running for sheriff again.

No filings have been made for any county office yet, County Clerk Morgan stated Saturday afternoon. Nor have any possible applicants appeared seeking information regarding filing. Most of the county officers do not expect filings to begin until the latter part of the spring with the primaries coming in a non-presidential year, in August.

It is expected that deputy assessor James A. Sheffield, county assessor preceding Bell, will be a candidate for the office, although Mr. Sheffield has made no statement concerning the matter.

Towle To Run.

Max G. Towle, entering the last year of his first term as county attorney, is known to be planning to seek to retain his post. J. B. Morgan, county clerk, had little to say about the coming elections, considering them too far distant. He admitted he would again be a candidate for re-election. J. S. Baer, clerk of the District court, is also considered certain of running for re-election.

Two county commissioners will be elected this year. The two whose terms expire are J. R. Bennett and J. M. Cameron. Neither has yet given any indication they would file again, but their friends have expressed confidence that they would run again. County Engineer Arthur H. Edgren, out of the city at present, on his vacation, is also expected to run to succeed himself.

Sheriff Claude P. Hensel has not filed yet but assurance of his running was indicated in letters mailed to some of his friends Friday. T. E. Wheeler, register of deeds, indicated recently that he would run again.

Miss Charlotte Alexander, county superintendent of education, in her first term of office, is considered certain of standing for re-election next summer. William Albers is expected to file again for treasurer although he had little to say Saturday, declaring it was too early.

M. W. A. OFFICERS ASK REHEARING

A rehearing in the Illinois Supreme court of the opinion sustaining objections to increased insurance rates for the Modern Woodmen of America has been asked by the society and its head officers, according to word received in Lincoln by the law firm of Sanden, Anderson, Laughlin and Gradwohl, attorneys for the insurgent Modern Woodmen members.

The Illinois court on December 20 sustained contentions of Beatrice Camp No. 270 and other complaining members that the June 1929 rate was illegal and discriminatory. The action brought by the Nebraska complainants to the Nebraska courts was dismissed Thursday. Attorneys explained that the Illinois decision protected the Beatrice complainants and others in this state.

Kip Rhinelander Marooned in Camp

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Snow drifts piled ten feet deep along mountain paths and a severe storm which prevented attempts at rescue tonight locked a party led by Kip Rhinelander, member of a prominent New York family, in Campbell Park camp, thirty-five miles from here in a mountain canyon.

With Rhinelander, it was said, was Mike Mahlan, a friend, and two rangers named Mooney and Simms. The party left Las Vegas about a week ago and became marooned by heavy snows which started in the mountains last Thursday.

Fear was felt tonight that the supplies taken by the party may be running low. Friends in Las Vegas said they believed that with the greatest conservation the food supply would run out by Sunday night.

FITTS RENEWS MURDER PROBE

Hefner and Peavey To Be Quizzed in Taylor Slaying Mystery.

Prosecutor Says He Has Sufficient Evidence For Indictment.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 11—(UP)—Snarled threads of a mystery as thrilling as a motion picture melodrama were being unravelled tonight and it was believed that solution of the murder of William Desmond Taylor was near.

During the past week the United Press found and interviewed two heretofore missing witnesses and the information obtained was given to Buron Fitts, Los Angeles district attorney, who has started an investigation into the circumstances of Taylor's death.

Otis Hefner, one of the witnesses, a paroled convict, said that he was leagued wtih Taylor and Edward Sands, former valet for Taylor, in a dope ring and that Taylor was in danger because members of a southern California drug ring thought he was informing federal authorities.

Thinks Movie Star Is Slayer.

Hefner contended, however, that he thought a motion picture star killed Taylor because of jealousy.

Henry Peavey, negro personal servant for Taylor at the time the noted picture director was killed in February, 1922, was the other witness.

Peavey was questioned at the coroner's inquest, but told the United Press that part of his story never was made public because the district attorney's office would not hear him.

In Los Angeles, Fitts said that information obtained from Hefner and Peavey was valuable and that it fitted in with reports made by his investigators.

"We have sufficient evidence for an indictment now," Fitts was quoted as saying. He added, however, that he wanted a complete case, with facts instead of presumption in all instances.

Ed King, investigator for Fitts, has been assigned to the Peavey and Hefner phase of the case and will obtain official statements from both and will probably take Hefner to Los Angeles.

Heard Woman Quarreling.

The significant part of Peavey's story is that he heard a woman quarreling bitterly with Taylor the night the director was shot.

Hefner said he saw the same woman, a prominent movie star, leaving the bungalow shortly after midnight of the evening Peavey heard the quarrel. Peavey did not tell of the quarrel at the coroner's inquest.

Nothing was known of Hefner by Los Angeles authorities at the time Taylor was killed.

According to Hefner, he left Los and later was convicted and sent to San Quentin. He was paroled from San Quentin, violated the parole and was brought back.

FORMER GOVERNOR ASKS VINDICATION

Oklahoma's Second Impeached Head, Henry Johnston, Runs For Senate.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Oklahoma's second impeached governor, around whom the maelstrom of the Sooner state's politics have revolved the past two years, tonight sat in his modest home at Perry and laid plans for a "vindication" fight in his campaign for the United States senate.

Former Gov. Henry S. Johnston, who again took up the business of a small town lawyer after the legislature impeached him, will be the second Oklahoma governor to make such a campaign.

Oklahomans remember well the campaign of Jack Walton, fiery orator and self-declared rank enemy of the Ku Klux Klan, waged for the senate after he was ousted from the governor's chair in one of the greatest political upheavals of the southwest.

Walton was defeated, and today is engaged in private business in Houston.

Although the political careers of Johnston and Walton run along much the same channel, Walton made his appeal to the "downtrodden masses" and vigorously attacked the klan.

Cost of Doffing Hats In Elevator Amounts To $25,000 a Building

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(INS)—Gallantry costs the average large office building $25,000 a year.

If four gentlemen doff their hats while riding up an elevator with a young lady, space for one more individual is destroyed, R. H. Bell, jr., owner of a large building in the dowtown section, said here today.

The cost to hoist all the leftover passengers because of this gallantry is approximately $25,000, he declared.

SIMMONS AGAIN IN SENATE RACE

Smith Democrats Threaten to Fight Him for Backing Hoover.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, now serving his fifth term in the senate, tonight announced he would be a candidate for re-election in the June primaries.

Simmons bolted the democratic party last fall, opposed the candidacy of Gov. Al Smith and turned North Carolina into the republican column. The Smith democrats have threatened to fight him for renomination and re-election. In 1924 Simmons was unopposed in the primary and won the election by the greatest plurality ever given a senatorial candidate in his state.

In his announcement, Simmons said he would not "be able personally to conduct or finance an active primary campaign." He said it would be his last primary.

"I am obliged," he added, "but quite content to leave my candidacy in the hands of my friends and the people of North Carolina."

RUTH M'CORMICK OPENS CAMPAIGN

To Personally Canvass Illinois In Senate Race.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Ruth Hanna McCormick, a human dynamo in sheer hose, high heels and rich furs, arrived in Chicago today for the opening of the campaign by which she hopes to become the first woman elected to the United States senate.

On Monday, Mrs. McCormick starts out into the corn fields and crossroads of Illinois, traveling in an open car with a secretary and two assistants determined to visit twenty-two towns a week until she has covered the state.

The woman, who is a millionaire in her own right and a fixture in the high society of the nation's capitol, knows the language of Illinois farm hamlets as well as the parlance of the pralor and the business office. In addition to being a congresswoman-at-large from Illinois, Mrs. McCormick is a successful farmer and newspaper owner.

She feels that she knows the farmers' problems so much better than Senator Charles S. Deneen that she will be able to win the farm vote for the republican senatorial nomination in the April primary.

As the daughter and former "right hand man" of the late Mark Hanna, famous Ohio president marker" and the widow of a former Illinois senator, Mrs. McCormick intends to introduce the political tactics of both of these successful politicians into her campaign. Her first training, however, was under the illustrious Hanna, and his formula of carrying the fight to the people is her formula.

FEAR FREIGHTER TOTAL LOSS.

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—A wrecking tug and a lighter today went to the scene of the stranded freighter steamship Edward Luckenbach, which went aground off here, with officers and crew of forty aboard. Pounded by heavy seas, the Luckenbach, being slowly broken to pieces, was left high on the rocky reef by the incoming tide this morning. Fears were expressed that the freighter, bound from New York for Boston and Pacific coast points with a general cargo of freight, would be a total loss.

Bobcats Claw Cornhuskers In Cage Clash at Coliseum

Montana Cagers Ring Up Victory

Westerners Round Out 3 Weeks' Trip By Turning Back Black Team In Thrilling Basket Battle.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

If the Pasadena boys decide to get up a Tournament of Roses basketball game at the close of the 1930 cage season, Nebraska fans will cast their ballots for Montana State college as a logical contender for a position in such a classic. Coach Schubert Dyche's Montana State tossers polished off the University of Nebraska, 61-30, before a crowd of over 3,500 spectators at the coliseum Saturday evening and nonchalantly turned the trick as if the game was all in an evening's work.

That "Wonder" Team.

While the showing of the Bozeman collegians left little to dispute why they are acclaimed the "wonder team," Ashworth Thompson, stocky forward, gave convincing evidence of why he has been rated All-American caliber. The "Cat" caged 10 baskets, potting the ball from all angles and scoring seven of the field goals during the first half, which wound up with the Bobcats on the heavy end of a 30-16 score.

Playing a man-for-man defense and a fast breaking attack, in which four of the five cagesters flashed into scoring action, Montana State swept the Cornhuskers off their feet. With Thompson dropping into the background after his first half brilliant display, other stars shot across the Montana State horizon. Olin Ward and Worthington each caged four baskets, while Center Frank Ward shot three goals from the floor, all the result of some clever work beneath the basket.

Thompson the Show.

This Thompson youth, however, was the big show. Although only 5 feet 8 inches in height, he was quick as a cat and whirled and spun away from the Nebraska defense to flip the ball in at short range or slipped away to bombard the hoop at fairly long distance. Most of the Montana State efforts were at short range.

RECORD NUMBER HI CAGE TEAMS

State Title Tourneys Attract 462 Teams This Season.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

A record number of interscholastic basketball teams have enrolled for the program of tournaments which will decide the 1930 Nebraska high school basketball championship. Secretary Walter I. Black of the Nebraska High School Athletic association, the organization sponsoring the tourney program, announced Saturday a total of 462 teams had enrolled. This is an increase of six over the 456 total of last year.

With the entry books closed, Secretary Black has tackled the job of compiling the team rosters for the various tournament centers. District tournaments are scheduled for Feb. 28 and March 1; regional meets will be held March 7 and 8; with the state championship tourney announced for March 13, 14 and 15.

District Meets First.

District tournaments will include the schools of smaller enrollment and upwards to 32 such centers will be designated. Winners from the district meets will be eligible for participation in the regional tournaments, competing with the larger schools. There will be sixteen regional meets.

The 1930 state tourney entry list:

Adams, Ainsworth, Albion, Alexandria, Allen, Alliance, St. Agnes of Alliance, Alma, Alvo, Amherst, Anselmo, Arapahoe, Arlington, Arnold, Arthur, Ashland, Ashton, Atkinson, Atlanta, Auburn, Aurora, Avoca, Axtell.

LINCOLN DOWNS BENTON OUTFIT

Red and Black Ahead 31-19 Over Rivals At St. Joseph.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 11—Taking the lead early in the first quarter, the Lincoln high school cagers defeated the Benton high school tossers, 31 to 19, here tonight. The invaders, the best high school team to play on a local court in years, led throughout the game.

Although handicapped by playing on a small court, the Brownies took the lead during the first two minutes and held it throughout the melee.

Masterson started the fireworks with a heave from the center of the court and Brown followed with a toss from the foul line, Lincoln leading, 4 to 3, at the end of the quarter.

Witte connected twice for four points as the second quarter started, followed by two field goals by Lewinson. Bauer, Masterson and Witte scored during the remainder of the half.

Both teams came back after the half and the play was fast and furious during the remainder of the game, Lincoln becoming more accustomed to the small court.

Witte starred on offense, scoring 15 points, and Bauer was outstand-

Georgia U. Prexy Defends School

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Defending his institution against the allegations contained in the report of the Carnegie Foundation concerning the subsidizing of athletics, Dr. Charles Mercer Snelling, chancellor of the University of Georgia, today in his annual message to the board of trustees advocated some plan under which students possessing athletic skill might make use of their ability in helping to meet college expenses.

"Such a plan would have the merit of openness at least and will do away with much of the suspicion and innuendo now directed against intercollegiate athletics," the chancellor declared.

Asserting that officials of the university assisted investigators for the Carnegie Foundation when they visited the school, Dr. Snelling said that the criticism of the institution made in the report apparently was based on the failure of those investigators to receive certain information sent them by mail.

"The University of Georgia has not been a party to any sort of pretense," the college head's message said in direct answer to the Foundation's accusations.

Short Ship Circuit To Meet In Lincoln

GENEVA, Neb., Jan. 11—Secretary H. P. Wilson of Geneva has issued a call for the annual meeting of the Nebraska Short Ship circuit Jan. 22, 1:30 p. m., at the Hotel Cornhusker in Lincoln. Representatives of the following Nebraska towns which sponsored harness racing meetings during 1929 will be present at the Lincoln session: Hastings, Nelson, Aurora, Geneva, Clay Center, Beatrice and Pawnee City.

Gargantuan Aspirant for Fistic Title.

Introducing the skyscraper of the ring—Primo Carnera, alias the Genoa Giant, who measures his punches by horsepower. Fistiana's newest sensation has come to town and has more than lived up to the fabulous stories that Tunney and other visitors to Europe have told of him. The Italian boxer, who until two years ago was a circus performer with his enormous "tootsies" wrapped in burlaps, is regarded by experts as exceptionally promising material. A far better prospect, in fact, than was Jess Willard at the corresponding stage of his career.

Carnera is six feet ten inches tall weighs nearly 300 pounds, and carries a 14-pound cane to support his hefty frame. He wears size 17 shoes and encases his neck in a size 20 collar. When he was an itinerant circus performer his best meal consisted of seven pounds of bread, but now his breakfast includes such trifles as six eggs, 20 slices of toast, two quarts of milk, an enormous slice of ham, and maybe, a pint of orange juice. And after this modest repast he is ready for a limbering up at the gymnasium.

It is hoped late this month to stage Carnera a first bout in this country. Just now they are paging all the great fighters to find one to challenge conclusions with the Italian's fourteen - ounce boxing gloves, which measure sixteen and one-half inches, against the average ten and one-half "mitt." Up to now there has been no great rush of giant boxers to offer themselves as a sacrifice to Primo Carnera. George Godfrey, the human ton of coal, would be a logical opponent after the Italian has had some experience of American ring methods.

Carnera is having his work-outs at Stillman's Gymnasium and proving that he is not just another ring agility and is remarkably limber. He does not rest heavily on his enormous "dogs" nor does he lumber around. He knows how to use his left and carefully pulls his punches against lighter opponents. At all events, he is a life-saver just when the ring was devoid of colorful personalities and thrills.

TECH COMING TO LINCOLN COURT

Maroons and Brownies Slated Get Together Friday Night.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

The spotlight will shift on the city teams in Nebraska high school circles this week, with the metropolitan cage combinations in an important series of tilts.

The feture of the week will be the appearance of Omaha Tech on the Lincoln court, the first game of a home-and-home series between the two quintets. The capital city five, in view of its early season performances, will be the favorite, although the Maroons have been improving rapidly during the past week.

Stiff Preparation.

Before the Friday engagement, Lincoln and Tech each will have traditional opposition to down. The Red and Black must defeat Jackson, the University Place outfit being stronger than usual this winter; while Tech has its annual argument with Omaha Central.

Benson at South, Central vs. Creighton Prep and South at North are other Omaha prep features.

Basketball Rules Discussion Monday

Officials, coaches and fans of Lincoln vicinity will gather at the "N" club room in the coliseum Monday evening for a basketball rules discussion. The meeting is called for 7:30 p. m.

Reserves Line Up String Cage Dates

Under the tutorship of Sed Hartman, former University of Nebraska athlete, Lincoln high school's reserve basketball squad is gradually rounding into shape and gives promise of presenting a formidable lineup by the second semester. The first two games, Mead and Bethany, were dropped by scores of 31-11 and 21-17, respectively.

The reserves are an aggregation of midgets, the candidates ranging from five feet six and five feet ten. Various combinations have been tried by Hartman in an effort to perfect a quintet, but only passing success has been his reward. In an early week practice scrimmage, however, the junior Brownies out-

Cash Customers Wrought Up by Quick Kayoes In Rapid Ring.

BY GEORGE AXELSSON.

PARIS, Jan. 11—Prize fight customers are supposed to pray for knockouts, but the crowd that came to see Kid Francis, first-rate French bantam, show his wares against an apocryphal colored American named George Mack at the Prado arena in Marseilles, proved an exception to the rule.

When the kid's right glove connected with Georgie's chin in the second round, sending the colored boy down for the required 10 seconds a murmur something less than polite was heard from the audience.

And when, in the following and concluding bout, the Kid's brother, Guy Bonaugure, disposed of his opponent, a boy named Treves, by the knockout route, also in the second round, the people took matters into their own hands and wrecked the place. Not a stone was left standing of what was once the proud Prado arena.

The fighters were chased from the ring, their seconds were beaten up

CORNHUSKER hopes that the National Collegiate Athletic association might see fit to award the national collegiate track and field meet of 1930 to the University of Nebraska were given a smashing turndown at the recent convention of the national body in New York City. And thereby hangs a tale involving shattered idols.

Nebraska's hopes, in the first place, were founded on the action of the track coaches present at the national meet last June in Chicago. The said coaches, to the number of nearly 50, representing most of the prominent educational institutions in the middlewest, south and far west, went on record in favor of transferring the meet to Nebraska. To be exact, the ballot lacked but one vote of being unanimous.

The coaches, cognizant of the fact that the meet, held annually in Chicago for the past 10 years, had not been a financial success, were in hearty agreement with the suggestion that the Lake City was lacking in its appreciation of the national carnival and when the Nebraska proposal to underwrite the event and all its expenses was presented, they quickly gave approval to the Cornhuskers' invitation.

UNDER ordinary conditions, any recommendation by the coaches is given approval by the national body, so Nebraska's delegates, departing for the New York pow-wow, had every reason to hope, if not believe, that the Cornhusker university would be chosen as the scene of the 1930 meet.

Just what happened in the executive council, which has the last word in such matters, is mostly conjecture on the part of Cornhusker followers, as it develops that the selection of Chicago, instead of Lincoln, was made when none of Nebraska's five delegates was present.

Nevertheless, sufficient information has leaked from the executive council session to indicate that the council's action was based on the recommendation of the national track meet committee, rather than the wishes of the coaches, as expressed last June.

REJECTION of the coaches' recommendation and Nebraska's invitation implies no unpardonable crime, nevertheless the public is entitled to at least an explanation concerning the personnel of that track committee, which wielded such an overwhelming influence with the executive council.

So that the public may know, I here explain that this all-powerful committee comprises:

Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Western conference, of Chicago.

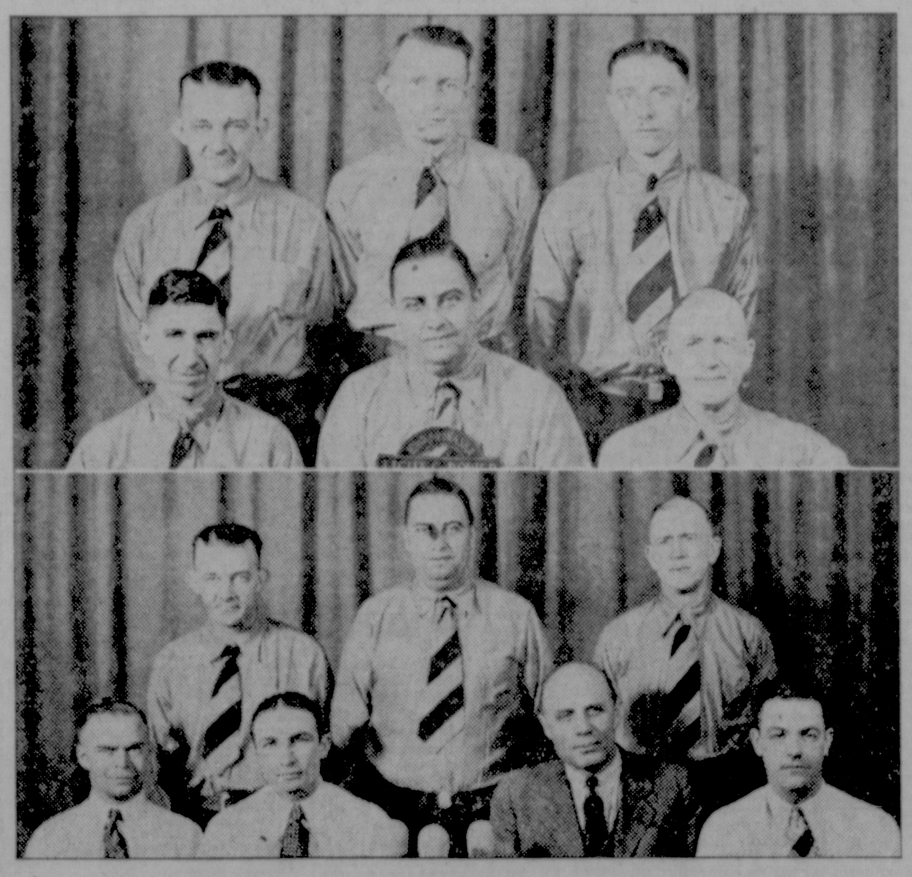

Amos Alonzo Stagg, director of athletics University of Chicago.

Thomas Jones, head track coach University of Wisconsin.

Perusal of the committee roster quickly solves the riddle, if riddle there is. The influence of Mr. Griffith and Mr. Stagg was responsible for the award of the meet to Chicago in the first place and for its continuous selection during subsequent years. Both were opposed

Uncle Sam's Best In Walker Match

U. S. G. A. Officials Nominate Team to Try for Cup Laurels In Links Combat On British Course.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—American golf declared war on Great Britain today by naming a Walker cup team that, on sheer ability and man power, made war an inevitability, if the remnant of British prestige on the links was to survive.

The team, as nominated at the annual meeting of the United States Golf association, was made up of these immortal names:

Bobby Heads List.

1—Bobby Jones, captan, four times national amateur champion, thrice national open champion and twice open champion of Great Britain.

2—Harrison Johnston, the current national amateur champion.

3—George Von Elm, the only champion to personally beat Jones out of the amateur title since 1923.

4—Francis Ouimet, open and amateur champion of another day.

5—Jesse W. Sweetser, amateur champion in 1922 and British amateur champion in 1926, the last time he appeared in Great Britain.

Others on the team include the 1929 national finalist, Dr. O. F. Willing; the 1928 medalist and semi-finalist, George Voigt, and the most promising young golfer of the nation, Don Moe. The alternates are Roland MacKenzie, much experienced in international play, and another rising young man of the links, Maurice McCarthy, former intercollegiate champion.

Never A Stronger Team.

There may have been Walker cup teams of the past as strong as this. It is the writer's opinion that there has been none stronger.

The name of Chick Evans, another old champion, is conspicuously missing from the list. So is that of Watts Gunn, the sensation of 1925, his first year in big time golf. Both have fallen away from the pace, the former because his old mastery is no more; the latter because of other interests. They were members of the 1928 team that swept the British off the course at Chicago. Eugene Homans, an alternate of that time, also finds himself in the limbo of the forgotten at this time.

Yanks Best In Cup Play.

Walker cup play usually shows the American amateur in his most flattering light, therefore, it is difficult to see how this 1930 team is to go wrong. Starting with Jones, the greatest the world ever has known, it has Von Elm, generally rated as the No. 2 amateur of the universe: Sweetser, whose shot making is second only to his 'fight," and the finest kind of competitive souls in Johnston, Ouimet and Willing.

Voigt and Moe, meantime, are maiden members of the international team, but in no sense are they unknown to the heat of big time competition. Great golfers, both, they have duly earned the honor that goes with the Walker cup nomination.

Terms It Fool-Proof.

Indeed, this team is so fool-proof that it would surprise nobody if one of its members repeated Sweetser's victory in the British championship itself. We don't win that one very often, there being something like 22 years between the championship brackets of Sweetser and Walter J. Travis, the only two gained by American amateurs in England. But if we must send teams like the 1930 entry, the third title can't be far away.

Jones, of course, is the natural choice in both the British amateur and open, the former being the only major title that has eluded his bag of trophies to date.

Session Somewhat Drab.

Barring the cup selections, the annual meeting promised little and developed less. There was a bit of

Michigan Moguls Hope Shires Quits

YPSILANTI, Mich., Jan. 11—(UP)—If Arthur (The Great) Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman, prolongs his stormy ring career, the Michigan boxing commission probably will not bother him, but James (Bingo) Brown, commission chairman, thinks "he's a fool" to continue.

The Michigan commission in exonerating Shires of ring fraud charges Thursday, counted on his promise to quit boxing forever, if cleared. Dwight Barker, secretary of the Lansing today.

Barker predicted the commission would bar him from boxing in Michigan.

JACKSON ON TOP IN CAGE COMBAT

Ballermen Beat Kansans In Basket Thriller of Extra Periods.

It took Jackson high two extra periods to down Manhattan, Kas., high, 29-27, in a second-half rally after the Ballermen had trailed the visitors 15-6 at half time. A tip-in shot by Pixley, lanky Jackson center, won the game for the Baller quint in the final seconds of the second extra period.

The Kansans started with a rush and held a safe lead at the end of the first quarter and added to their advantage in the second quarter. The third quarter was nip and tuck, with the visitors holding a slight edge. The suburbanites tied the score several times, but a scoring spree by Wreath, captain of the visitors, put Jackson on the short end of a 20-15 score at the end of the third quarter.

Rally by Jackson.

Baller's cagers came back strong in the final quarter and went into the lead for the first time in the game when Smith sank one from the side to give Jackson a one-point margin. With a minute and a

Mr. Shires and His Blah-Blah Have Been Great Plenty

Critic Propels Hint Down Groove Baseball Could Well Spare Him

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—It is a pity that there is not some law that would permit officials to shove Al Shires into a container and clamp down the lid.

A little noise from that braggart is a great plenty. A lot of it, such as the public has had dinned into its ears of late, provokes violent nausea.

The fellow doesn't seem to be normal. He suffers from many complexes.

Freaks Belong In Circuses.

As a ball player he is just so-so. As a ringman he is a joke. As a human he is splendid material for the freak department of a circus.

It requires a strange sort of brain for a man to carry on a la Shires. Shires has that sort of brain.

He has done nothing to uplift or ennoble baseball. But he has debased it. He assaulted his manager—a man much older, perhaps a smaller and lighter. Probably he sneaked in his punches, yet he gloried over his "triumph"—boasted blatantly.

He Whined and Moaned.

Much to his surprise, he was fined and suspended. Then like all moral cowards when caught and punished, he whined and moaned.

He should have been barred from baseball. The game is better without his kind.

His conceit and his arrogance made him decide he was fit material for ring wars. Somebody trained him—perhaps by brushing his hair. Then they dug up an opponent for him. There is still mystification as to who was his "rival." Anyway Shires knocked him out in less than a round, possibly by prior arrangement.

Trafton Took Him.

He then met a football player, one George Trafton, who made no pretense of being a fighter. He merely said he figured he was better than Shires at doing anything and he proved it by giving Shires a terrible beating.

Shires recovered in time to knock out another mysterious opponent—possibly the same "tanker" who took the bow for him the first time. After which Shires was dated to battle somebody known as Battling Criss in Michigan.

But they didn't "battle." It was discovered by the Michigan state athletic commission that somebody representing Shires had propositioned Cross to do a fast and fancy diving act in behalf of Shires. That "cooked" the braggart in Michigan. It may "cook" him elsewhere, too.

Time Ripe for Action.

The situation seems to demand action on the part of either Ken Landis or E. S. Barnard, prexy of the American league. For if a ball player will get himself involved in a crooked deal in one form of athletic combat, where is the guarantee that he won't wander into the same evil ways while baseballing?

Shires was a persistent troublemaker while with the White Sox in 1929. Possessed of the fantastic idea that he is a great fist thrower—the very best in baseball—he is quite likely to be more so in 1930 and also provoke some fist fights with rival players by his bragging, his challenges or his threats.

Just Doesn't Belong.

Gaze upon the braggart from every conceivable angle and he sizes up as somebody who certainly will not help the moral part of baseball nor add to its peace, its tranquility anditssportsmanship.

Some folks have called Shires "good newspaper copy." Perhaps he is. So is a two-headed cow, a five-tailed horse, a sword swallower and the fattest of fat ladies.

But they don't belong on a ball field.

Neither does Shires!

Good Golf.

BY CHESTER HORTON.
Golf's Greatest Teacher.

THE new larger-lighter golf ball easily ranks as the most important change in golf in a hundred years partly because it is going to give us a better game, largely because it will contribute to a considerable extent to that longsought goal of making golf cost less money. As far as you individually are concerned the decrease in golf cost will be about the same thing as spreading one pound of butter over 600 slices of toast, but as a club member you may feel it beneficially. There are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of golf clubs scattered over the country which stood sorely in need of remodeling because of the speed of the current ball, and many of these courses, being older, are among the very best of layouts, age having given them fairways and greens unsurpassed. Now, because of the forthcoming new ball, all thoughts of remodeling can be tossed out the window. It will not be necessary—or desirable. So if you happen to be a member of such a club the new ball will mean considerable in the way of decreased golf costs. And possibly the golf ball makers, being freed of the terrific costs of constant experimenting, which involved the creating of new machinery at great costs, may see their way clear to produce the new ball so it can be sold at a considerably compressed retail price. Let's hope so—it costs us nothing to hope.

half to play, Jackson high was in the lead, 25-23, but Wreath knotted the score when he made good on two free throws after being fouled by Pixley.

Neither team scored in the first extra period. In the second extra period, Fitz tipped one in, but Wreath, Kansas center, followed this up with a goal under the basket. Pixley, Jackson center, put the game on ice in the final seconds of play when he tipped in a goal during a scrimmage under the basket.

Pixley and Smith.

Pixley and Smith were the stars of the Baller team, Pixley getting 10 points and Smith eight. The guarding of Fitz and Jordan held the Kansas forwards down. Wreath, captain of the losers, made 14 points for high scoring honors.

BRANDS KEN AS PICTURE POSER

Menke Pokes Landis For Failure to Suppress Series Rowdies.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—In some of those dear, dead years when there was no prohibition, no income tax and folks were immune from tribulations, there was also an era when a world baseball series was not an affair conducted under the auspices of Judge Ken Landis, the great strut-and-pose boy of modern balldom.

The national commission ruled affairs then—and ruled them extraordinarily well. It handled those world series shows in deft fashion and saw to it that the performers conducted themselves with much decorum and quiet dignity.

Cussing and More of It.

But since Landis has become the chief comp-bah of the sport, the lads have gone along baiting umpires, cussing each other with great fluency and, although it has happened right under the eyes of Landis, nobody has been punished. Apparently baseball has a double standard—one for season play, another for the world series.

If a player, during a regular season, cut up half the capers that some boys do during a blue ribbon show, an umpire, acting under orders from a league president, promptly would expunge him from the frolic and the athlete later would find himself fined about $29,000,000 and maybe sentenced to serve 45 years in the nearest bastille.

They Snort, Even Hiss.

But in world series of late nothing that the boys do causes an umpire to chase them from the field. They can snort, hiss, pollute the air with their verbal ideas of an umpire or a rival athlete, and it is all quite hotsy totsy.

There is not an instance since Landis has been supervising the post-season extravaganzas, where a single player has been effaced from the pasture. And the kindly heavens know that there have been many reasons for such expulsions.

In the late conflict the Cubs spoke violent ideas right into the ears of the Athletics, and the men of Connie Mack handed back the same sort of language, plus interest. Landis must have heard it—or heard about it. Repartee of the kind indulged in by those folks would not be countenanced during a regular season.

Managers Protested.

Yet the umpires appointed by Landis took no action. Nor did Ken. If the foul language offended some of the patrons—well, they shouldn't have such sensitive feelings or they could poke cotton into their ears.

The profane repartee finally reached such a disgusting state that Connie Mack walked across the field and demanded that Landis put an end to it. Joe McCarthy, chieftain of the Cubs, entered a protest, too. Landis then—and only then—issued an order that the boys must be nice to each other and that anyone who broke the anti-cussing rule thereafter was liable to seizure of his end of the purse.

Strange If Not Startling.

Strange, isn't it, that Landis, who is paid an enormous salary to keep the game clean, chose to wait until rival managers protested over the conduct of the rival players before he took any decided action in a matter that was contaminating the something that is clean and sportsmanlike baseball.

Seems to be an unwritten law—at least, since Landis came into power—that no player is to be chased off the greensward, no matter what outrage he may commit during the afternoon of combat.

Increasing Wonderment.

All of which is a strange, strange situation, detrimental to the best interests of the game.

And it merely causes increase in wonderment as to what this person Landis really does, besides posing for pictures, to assist and uplift the noble art of swatting horsehides or pursuing those already swatted.

College View at Bethany and Holdrege at Havelock are other Lincoln games worth watching, while the crack Wesleyan high team, still undefeated, meets Valparaiso, Nebraska City and Syracuse.

Crete Squad On Road.

Crete hits the road again to meet Kearney and Lexington. Columbus invades Hastings and Broken Bow travels to York.

Saunders county honors will be in dispute when Mead meets Wahoo and Ashland. Southern Nebraska games of interest include Fairbury vs. Hebron and Geneva and the latter team's appearance against Holdrege. Franklin and Minden clash in an important Republican Valley league game. McCook travels to Gothenburg for the Southwest league headliner.

MAJORS SOON IN SPRING CAMPS

Giants Dated Set Pace In Pitching Their Tents On Dixie Soil.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(UP)—A month from today the frst squad of major league players will start south to open the 1930 training season and by the end of February practically all of the 16 clubs will be in camp.

The New York Giants will send the battervmen and young infielders to San Antonio, Texas, Feb. 11. Dave Bancroft, new Giants coach, will have charge of the players until Manager John J. McGraw arrives from Havana. The entire squad has been ordered to report by March 1.

Although the general exodus will not commence until next Month, many ball players already are in the south.

Ruth Away to Florida.

Babe Ruth left today for Florida, a holdout, but confident that Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, would meet his terms of a three-year contract at $85,000 per season.

Connie Mack, manager of the world's champions Philadelphia Athletics, will send several of his players to Hot Springs, Ark., early. The first squad of Athletics is due to report at Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 22, and the rest five days later.

Cubs to Catalina.

The Chicago Cubs, National league champions, will get an early training start at Catalina Island, California. The vanguard of the Cubs will start work Feb. 15.

Another National league club will get started early, the Pittsburgh Pirates' batterymen leaving for Paso Robles, Feb. 18. They will start training Feb. 23 and the regulars will join them eight days later.

The last major league club to reach camp will be the Cincinnati Reds. Dan Howley, new manager of the Reds, has not ordered his squad to report to Orlando, Fla., until March 3. There will be no preliminary work for the batterymen.

The Cleveland batterymen will report at New Orleans February 25, but the rest of the squad will not get to camp until March 10.

PARIS FIST FANS DESTROY ARENA

and the mob set about to revenge themselves.

After tearing up the seats, demolishing the ring and wrecking the arena, matches were applied to the debris. Last minute intervention by the police prevented the bonfire from reaching serious proportions.

Gossip of Fixed Fights.

The Prado arena was some times used for bull fights of the mild and denatured French kind. It was also the outdoor scene for such fistic battles as local promoters would stage from time to time.

The suspicion of the fans that the glove battles had become just as denatured as the bull ring entertainments provoked the disaster. Rumors of "fixed fights" had gone the rounds in circles where salaried fisticuffs provides conversation. Therefore when Mack, the colored element of the main fight, lay down twice, the crowd believed he was feigning a knockout.

He was subsequently disqualified, but the fans were not to be appeased. They hooted and demanded their money back. Came Treves next and he laid down, refusing to fight on the claim he had been fouled. The customers looked for no better incentive.

Shires Take Poke In Federal Court

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 11—Chester Arthur Shires, the boxing ball player, took one on the chin today when an agreed judgment against him for $500 was entered in federal court.

The suit, brought by Mrs. Ida Lawson, alleged that Shires, while playing first base with the Waco team of the Texas league, maliciously threw a ball into the stands and struck William Lawson, her husband. Lawson was injured so badly that he never full regained his health, the plaintiff claimed. The suit did not claim that Lawson died as a result of the injury received when the ball struck him. Mrs. Lawson originally asked for $25,411. damages.

Shires was represented in court by Tom Shires, his cousin.

Maccabee Girls In Win Over "Y" Team

In the second game of the Y. W. C. A. recreational league basketball tournament, the Maccabees girls team No. 2 won from the Y. W. C. A. team, 47-4.

Sinking baskets from all angles, Martha Neill scored 42 points. Helen Riller made the two goals for the Y. W. C. A. team.

The Iowa-Nebraska girls team won from the Nebraska Buick outfit, 18-17. Mildred Kolm of the Buicks scored 12 points and Petie Bowlby of the Iowa-Nebraska team counted the same number.

a debate between Alvah Rydstrom, president of the Massachusetts association, and H. H. Ramsay, national vice president, on the question of expenses for Lesley cup players and those of other team events, irrespective of Walker cup play. But when the boys stopped talking, it still was a question. There was no vote taken.

After they got through adding up the good and bad news, financially speaking, it was discovered that a balance of $10,089.91 remained on hand.

A total of $36,636.16 was realized from admissions to the amateur, the open, the women's and the Walker cup events, the latter being included in the report, although conducted in 1928. The open affair at Winged Foot topped the list with a gate of $20,456, the amateur proceeds at Pebble Beach totaling $12,000.

Roster of Officers.

The following officers were elected unanimously: President, Findlay S. Douglas, Apawamis, re-elected; vice-presidents, H. H. Ramsay, the Creek club, and R. M. Cutting, Hinsdale G. C.; secretary, Prescott S. Bush, Round Hill; treasurer, Charles H. Sabin, National Links; counsel, John G. Jackson, Deepdale.

Executive committee, Messrs. Douglas, Ramsay, Bush, Sabin and Cutting; E. H. Seaver, Los Angeles; Herbert Jacques, Brooklyn; R. E. Griscom, Merion; A. S. Kerry, Seattle; Bobby Jones, Atlanta; Ganson Depew, Buffalo; C. S. Lee, Tuxedo, and Harrison Johnston, Minneapolis.

Tuned Up for Trip.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—"I'm looking forward to our British trip," Bobby Jones, famous American golf star, told International News Service tonight before taking a train for his home in Atlanta. Jones will captain the American Walker cup team, the personnel of which was announced today. Bobby has been in New York City on business for the last few days.

"I haven't been playing much golf—only three games in the last four months," said Jones. "I've been too busy practicing law in Atlanta. I hope to get in condition for our British invasion, however."

Jones probably will co-star in the British open with Walter Hagen. Jones will play in both the British open and the British amateur. Hagen's entry in the open abroad will be viewed with the same intense interest as Jones' presence in that tourney. Both have a tremendous following in England. Hagen has not definitely indicated whether or not he will go over, but it is generally assumed that he will.

Miss Brown Reinstated.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—The United States Golf association announced today that Mary K. Browne of Cleveland, who lost her amateur standing as a golfer by playing professional tennis, had been reinstated.

The golf association declared Miss Browne a professional after she had joined C. C. Pyle's tennis entourage in 1926. Miss Browne won the women's single tennis championship three times and in 1904 was runner-up for the women's national golf championship.

The golf association later placed Miss Browne on a three-year probation term, which was to expire on Feb. 8 next.

Elon Chester Hoggsett, Detroit's pitching recruit from the Montreal club, is a Cherokee Indian, the first redskin to get a major league trial for some time.

COAST CLASSIC BALKED BY RAIN

Links Well Drenched By Downpour, and Golfers Have Idle Day.

BY RONALD W. WAGONER.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Blustery southern California weather, including rain squalls ushered in on chill winds, today forced postponement of the second round of the fifth annual $10,000 Los Angeles golf tournament until Sunday.

The play was called off as the contestants scheduled for an early start this morning gathered at the first tee and surveyed a boggy course. The greens were soaked from an all-night rain and pools of water stood on the fairways and filled the traps.

Officials of the junior chamber of commerce, backers of the tournament immediately got in touch with the management of the $25,000 Agua Caliente tournament and a compromise was reached whereby the Los Angeles tournament could be held up without interfering with the big event below the border in Lower California.

Agua Caliente Postponed.

The Agua Caliente torney was to have opened next Tuesday with practically the same field of players now contesting at the Riviera Country club for the Los Angeles open big money. It was agreed that the Mexican tournament would be called off until Jan. 20.

Johnny Rogers, long driving young professional from Denver, Colo., will start out on the second round tomorrow two strokes ahead of the field tomorrow if the weather clears enough to resume play. Rogers found conditions to his liking in the opening round and came through with a 70, one under par for 18 holes.

The Denver professional was followed by Charlie Seaver, young Los Angeles amateur recently returned from a prepatory school in New Jersey, and Al Espinsoa, veteran professional player from Chicago. They each made 72s by consistent shooting in every department of the game.

Horton Smith Shoots 73.

Bunched behind Seaver and Espinosa at 73 are Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., one of the outstanding favorites; Leo Diegel, professional at Agua Caliente and national P. G. A. champion, and Denny Shute, professional from Columbus, Ohio.

The 74 class, still considered in the first rank for final honors, are Bobby Cruickshank, New York; Abe Espinosa, Chicago; Fay Coleman, Los Angeles amateur; Tommy Armour, Detroit, and Massie Miller, Norwich, Conn.

Willie Hunter, Montebello, Calif.; Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, Wash., and Arthur Bell, Honolulu, had cards of 75.

Hagen Far in Rear.

Johnny Farrell, former national open champion, was the leading light in the division which made the round in 76.

MacDonald Smith, winner of the last two Los Angeles opens, had a rather disappointing 77, while Walter Hagen, British open champion, faced an uphill comeback to the money ranks, due to his 81 strokes.

If the weather allows resumption of the tournament tomorrow, the players will turn in 18 holes of the second round and the 50 low scorers will shoot it out over 36 hole Monday.

East Clings to Theory Pitt U. Jinxed By Coast Climate

Folks Along Eastern Rim Assert Panthers Have Perfect "Alibi"

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 — Those Pittsburgh Panthers haven't even attempted to mutter "climate" as alibi for their crushing defeat at the hands of the University of Southern California. But they could do it if they weren't such superb sportsmen.

Without attempting to detract an iota from the glory that is due U. S. C. for its triumph, it can be said that Pitt wasn't 50 per cent its rugged and powerful self the day it combatted the Californians. And the climate was responsible.

It Gets Them All.

Those who go from northern and eastern lands into sunny California readily realize what happened to those Pittsburgh footballers. It is the same as happens to all other humans.

"Come to California and relax" they urge in Los Angeles. And that's what you do when you get there.

Within 24 hours after arrival the semi-tropical climate snatches at one. The tension on the nerves is released; the owner of them suddenly finds that he doesn't care to scoot around. He just grows languid and desires to loll in a chair or snooze in his boudoir.

Let George Do It.

He's at peace with the world; completely relaxed; willing to let one or another of the Georges do the buzzing around. Of course, after a week or so he recovers from the attack of lassitude and proceeds to carry on where he left off when he arrived.

But those first few days in Southern California are devastating to ambition and leave a person sans energy, gimp and all the other accessories so vitally needed especially in athletic combat.

The Pittsburgh Panthers arrived in Los Angeles only a short time before the scheduled start of the game.

Old Kid Apathy.

Old Kid Apathy had 'em in a stranglehold about the time they told the field for action. No longer were they athletes keyed up to a high tension. They were just a band of youths suffering from the California brand of climate that left them limp and longing for some place to snooze.

Their condition was evident in their play. The old up-and-at-'em spirit was wholly lacking. They were slow and listless. Not much speed; very little alertness. Their play was mechanical, like sleepwalkers. And, as a result, the Californians, long since accustomed to that climate, romped right through the Pittsburgh lines to an overwhelming victory.

East Out of Its Sphere.

It's two to one against the chance of any eastern team beating a California outfit in Southern California if that eastern team takes the field 24 to 48 hours after its arrival. For the drug-like effect of the climate is still upon them. They are floppy and slow, lazy and tired.

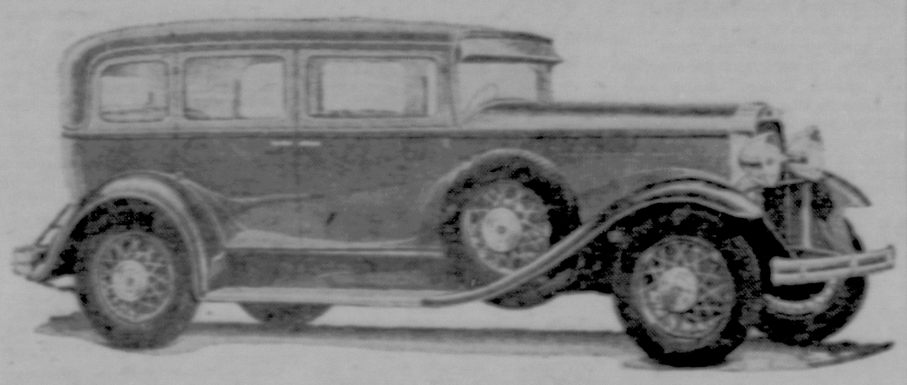

An eastern team which goes to Southern California to mingle in any form of athletic duelling should be on the scene at least a week before trying conclusions. By that time it will have become acclimated. If it attempts the combat before such a lapse of time it will still be under the spell of California's relaxing climate and unalmost certain to go down to defeat.

Climate All They Say.

For years and years those Southern Californians have been extolling the climate, telling the world how it cures nervousness and leaves one peaceful and contended. Those Pittsburgh Panthers can add a testimonial to many that the various chambers of commerce have gathered, although it is hardly possible that Pitt will include in its endorsement any such word as "contented."

A 47 to 14 beating is not synonymous with content.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN by "Columbus"

THE leading Nebraska race-winning trainer of 1929 was Warren Dennis of David City, with 30 first moneys to his credit. It is a so interesting to learn that Billy Mac' by Carlokin, 2:07¼, raced by Mr. Dennis four seasons and now owned by Ben Morgan, well known Iowa trainer, won 11 races during 1929, and only four pacers in all of America won more. When we write America, that includes Canada, where racing is far more general than many imagine.

Of the pacers winning more than 11 races last year, Chancellor Cigar, 2:02¼, heads the list with 15 races and 19 wins, a record not equaled in America.

Gentry Todd, 2:07, winner of 15 races, lost six, which places him second to Chancellor Cigar. The other two were May E. Grattan, 2:05¼, winner of 12 and Peter Patch, 2:07, winner of 12.

Only 17 pacers won 10 or more races during 1929, which proves that racing is becoming more strenuous each season.

TO illustrate just how difficult it is to win 10 or more races in one season we have prepared a table showing all Nebraska-bred trotters and pacers winning five or more races last year—the trotters led by Edna Kyle and the pacers by Kinney Silk. In preparing this table, we were compelled to check the campaigns of 189 trotters and pacers bred in the state of Nebraska and the compilation shows a small per cent winning as many as five races in the season referred to. The table follows:

TROTTERS—
Edna Kyle, 2:11, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, winner of 7.
Silk Bond, 2:13, by Bingen Silk, 2:07¼, winner of 6.
Douglas Silk, 2:09¾, by Bingen Silk, 2:07¼, winner of 5.
Prince Pete, 3, 2:17¼, by Peter Vladimir, 2:08¼, winner of 5.
Gano Maxey, 2, 2:21½, by Judge Maxey, 2:04½, winner of 5.
Golden Worthy, 2:12, by Gold Bingen, 2:01¼, winner of 8.
Kid McKlyo, 2:07¼, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, winner of 5.
PACERS—
Kinney Silk, 2:06¼, by Bingen Silk, 2:07¼, winner of 9.
Peter Keene, 3, 2:10, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, winner of 8.
Peter Dale, 2:09¼, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, winner of 7.
Golden Zolock, 2:11¼, by Gold Bingen, 2:01¼, winner of 6.
Chih Worthy, 2:17¼, by Harvestworthy, 2:16¼, winner of 5.
Dorothy Meadows, 3, 2:13, by Peter Vladimir, 2:08¼, winner of 5.
Mickey Maxey, 2:14, by Judge Maxey, 2:04½, winner of 5.
Park Silk, 2:14, by Bingen Silk, 2:07¼, winner of 5.
Sister Rose, 2:09¼, by Archdale, 37286, winner of 5.

IN the two tables presented we find seven trotters and nine pacers, out of 189 trotters and pacers bred in Nebraska and starting in races during the season of 1929, that were equal to the task of winning five or more races. And that is not all we learned while compiling these tables, as from the long list of 189 trotters and pacers, 64 failed to win a single race in 1929. Among those 64 non-race winners were several with fast records, notably Shadeland Silk, p., 2:07¼; Silver Belle, p., 2:07¼; Louis N., 2:08¼; Peter Hancock, p., 2:08¼, and Norvaldale, 2:11¼.

We learned that the fastest Nebraska-bred trotter of 1929 was Betty Ann Maxey, 2:03¼, by Judge Maxey, 2:24½, winner of three races. The fastest Nebraska-bred pacer of 1929 was Zev McKlyo, 2:03¼, winner of two races. However, Betty Ann Maxey was second twice and only started in five races. Zev McKlyo was five times second, three times third and twice fourth, out of 12 starts. Kinney Silk, winner of nine races, was once second and twice third, out of 12 starts—a very good showing. Peter Keene, 3, winner of eight races, was second in his other race and that's a fine exhibit for any three-year-old racing in the company. Peter Keene did. The two-year-old trotter, Gano Maxey, which raced wholly over Nebraska tracks, is the only one named in either table with a clean record, as that colt trotter started five times, winning five races.

A TABLE showing some Nebraska records for 1929 follows:
Fastest mile in Nebraska by a trotter, 2:09¼, by Peter Price at Lincoln.
Fastest mile in Nebraska by a pacer, 2:09¼, by Peter Dale at Hastings.
Fastest mile in Nebraska by a two-year-old trotter, 2:21¼, by Gano Maxey at Clay Center.
Fastest mile in Nebraska by three-year-old trotter, 2:13, by Prisco Pete at Clay Center.
Fastest mile in Nebraska by two-year-old pacer, 2:13, by Duster at Beatrice, and Maxine Great at Lincoln.
Fastest mile in Nebraska by three-year-old pacer, 2:12¼, by Peter Keene at Lincoln.
Fastest mile in Nebraska by a Nebraska-bred trotter, was 2:09¼, by Douglas Silk at Hastings.
Fastest mile in Nebraska by a Nebraska-bred pacer, 2:09¼, by Peter Dale at Hastings.

MUCH may be learned from a continued study of the list of 189 Nebraska-bred trotters and pacers starting in races during season of 1929 for instance:

That Nick Silk, 3, 2:11, started six times, was first once, second once, fourth three times and outside the money twice. That son of Bingen Silk was thought to be a possible 2:06 trotter, with a great future as a race horse. For that reason he sold at a long price, but has accomplished nothing of moment since sold to parties living in Pennsylvania.

A parallel case is that Subito McKlyo, p., 3, 2:06¼, sold at $5,000 to Frank C. Niles, Kansas City, Mo., through the continued boosting of an amateur writer on turf topics.

That mare has never earned the oats fed her since leaving Nebraska as a three-year-old, and last year started in eight races, placing first once, second twice, third and fourth once each and finishing outside the money three times.

THAT genuine race trotter, Gold King, 2:07½, by Gold Bingen, was sold a year ago at a mere pittance owing to fact that he was believed to be a "has-been," but the bay gelding fooled everyone by starting 11 times during 1929, finishing first in four races, second in three, third in two and fourth in two, never being outside the money.

It is a notable fact that the trotters sired by Gold Bingen, 2:21¼, always have raced well. In 1929 more than a dozen of his trotters started in races, all making a creditable showing, more especially Golden Worthy, Gold King, Goldie Bingen and Ivan Bingen.

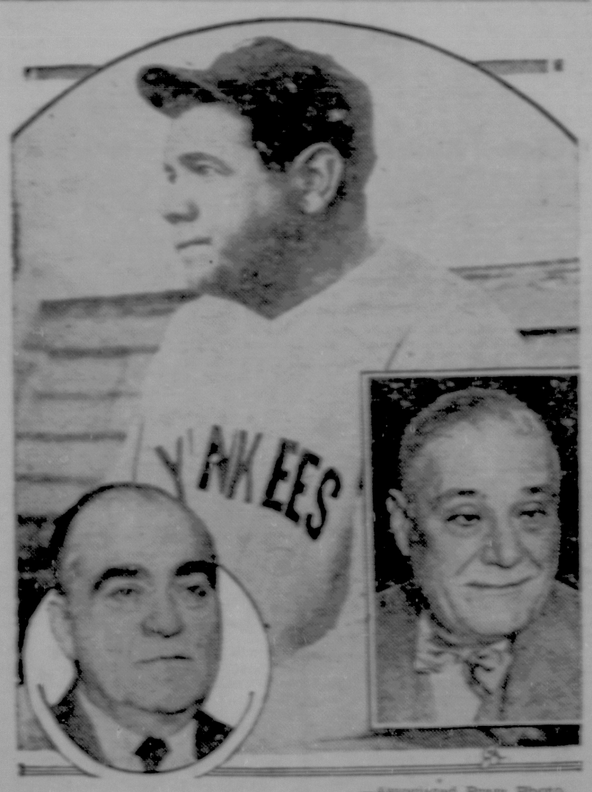

We are not able to recall a single Gold Bingen trotter selling at any such price as was obtained for Nick Silk, while the $5,000 paid for Subito McKlyo more than equaled the sum paid for a half-dozen Gold Bingen trotters that later raced well and proved a source of satisfaction to their owners.

MENTION of Gold Bingen reminds us that his name was omitted from the list of Nebraska stallions published in The Star for Sunday, Jan. 5, and why we cannot say, as his name appears on the original draft for that table. To make amends, the 1929 showing of Gold Bingen is now offered:

Gold Bingen, 2:21¼, by Bingen, 2:06¼, sire of—

Revetta Bingen	2:20
Golden Worthy, 2:17¼ to	2:12
Gold Morgan, 2:16¼ to	2:16
Miss Gold Dale, 2:22 to	2:19¼
Nettie Bingen, 2:19¼ to	2:14¼
The Great Bingen, 2:23¼ to	2:14¼
Golden Zolock, p., 2:17 to	2:11¼

The Way Side Tee.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

NAMING the Walker cup team for 1930 is easy enough for the first few names, but the last three or four must have given the committee in charge no end of bother and worry.

Such golfers as Jones, Johnston, Von Elm, Voight, Willing, Sweetser and Quimet almost name themselves. But then one runs into Finlay, McCarthy, Egan, Homans and several others who add to the general complications. The next U. S. Walker cup team will be unusually strong.

Any team that can open fire with Bobby Jones, Harrison Johnston and George Von Elm has a strong running start. After this Francis Ouimet, George Voight, Doc Willing and Jess Sweetser are all fine match players. But it will be nothing like the easy romp it was here in 1928, two years ago. Tolley is playing far better golf than for some time, and the advantage of home conditions makes a vast difference, especially if cold, raw winds happen to blast their way around the course.

THE pressure of "big money" in the way of golf reward will be put on this week at Agua Caliente, where they have strung up $25,000 for the pros to shoot at. This is the largest prize money ever offered in an open competition of any sort, and the winner, in taking his share, will have no financial bother for the rest of the season.

Agua Caliente is Diegel's home course, but there are too many good ones shooting at all this gold for any one candidate to stand out as a leading favorite. Horton Smith is always dangerous and he has shown before that big money doesn't clog up his swing or shake his putting nerves in a pinch. Hagen, always rated one of the greatest, of all money golfers, will make a desperate effort to collect before starting on his tour of Australia.

Macdonald Smith, another fine money player, will have to be reckoned with. So will Craig Wood, John Golden and at least ten others. With this much money in sight, there is less chance that some younger star or some outside choice will break through.

Breaking through a barrier of gold is none too easy for the younger set, barring a Horton Smith who is not yet twenty-two.

L. H. wants to know if the wrists are to be broken or allowed to bend at the top of the swing. If they are not broken, or cocked, how are they to figure in the swing? Wrists that are locked at the start, or at the top of the swing are like rusty hinges that won't operate. The next move will be for the body to take over the action and practically render the hands useless. Hands and wrists play a vital part in swinging the club, but they must have life and elasticity before they can get to work in building speed for the club head. The wrists should always be supple, not turned into solid iron, as they so often are. One shouldn't think of the wrists or the action of the wrists, except to let them act normally and flexibly, without tension or tightening. No one should throw a baseball as if he were putting the shot. No one should swing the head of a golf club as if he were pushing it or shoving it.

INMAN OPENS WITH WIN.

INMAN, Neb., Jan. 11—Inman high opened its home basketball season with a 48-16 victory over Johnstown. Vere Butler, sophomore, scored seven points in two minutes of play. Captain Bud Smith led the winning with 17 points. Lefgren reporting include Leonard Leitz, Ervin Renner and Captain Smith. The schedule:

Jan. 14—O'Neill at Inman.
Jan. 17—St. Mary's at Inman.
Jan. 24—Page at Page.
Jan. 27—Atkinson at Inman.
Jan. 31—Orchard at Inman.
Feb. 3—Page at Inman.
Feb. 11—Atkinson at Atkinson.

Among the numerous hits made by Gus Suhr, San Francisco first baseman, now the property of the Pirates, were 81 home runs.

Cleveland has seven outfielders lined up for the 1930 baseball campaign in Falk, Averill, Morgan, Porter, Seeds, Gill and Jamieson.

SIGNS FORETELL WHAT TO EXPECT

BY AL DEMAREE.

ONE of the most prevalent and time-honored superstitions among ball players pertains to remarks made in the dugout.

If a pitcher has been going along for six or seven innings without allowing a base hit, it's just one degree under murder for any other player to mention the fact. To do so will break the spell and a no-hit game is promptly ruined.

Many major league managers break the news the night before to the pitcher who is going to start the following day. But not so with John McGraw. He considers it the height of bad luck to notify a pitcher more than a few minutes before game time, that he is slated to labor on the mound.

A wagon load of empty barrels is always a good omen. McGraw used to hire such a wagon to drive by as the Giants were leaving the hotel for the ball park, thus giving an unconscious lesson in practical psychology.

Diamond Stars' Salary Demands Add to Magnates' Woes

Babe Ruth Sets Pace; Tells Yanks Must Have Contract For 3 Years

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 — (INS) — That same hilarious, comforting and delightfully soothing sensation which travels up your spinal cord when rent day draws around and the landlord's envoy comes clamoring at your door, pervades the somewhat ruffled disposition of the baseball magnate when the new year rings in the historic question of baring the club's exchequer to the diamond heroes of the past season.

Why Hairs Grow Grey.

Authorities will vouch for the fact that more than half of the grey hair in the baseball mogul's head is directly attributable to the worries, aggravation and downright fright which every important salary discussion involves.

For instance, consider the disputes in line when the 1930 contracts of such figures as Ruth, Herman, Vance, Grimes, Shires, Ferrel, Frederick, etc., are being considered. Babe Ruth, still the most dominating individual in the national pastime, has demanded $85,000 and a three year contract to display his robust self and home run streak before the public.

Time Contract Worries.

Every sane baseball fan and owner knows he is worth his price. The chief difficulty is Ruth's request for a contract over a period more than a year, a sure fire move to cast the Yankee executives into the greatest fit of reluctance yet to be seen around the circuit. Ruppert, Barrow, Inc., realize that the Babe might accidentally fold up in 1931 and deprive them from capitalization on his full value, and are inclined to be more wary this winter.

The National league's "Babe," Floyd Herman, will put in a bid for a big increase over the $10,500 he received last year. Herman is positive that anything short of $20,000 for 1930 would be practically robbery.

Herman's Fat Average.

The Babe's .384 average and his tremendous improvement in the field for the Robins surely should warrant a figure somewhere around what he asks for.

Another member of the Dodgers who should be tendered a substantial increase is Johnny Frederick, probably the best rookie to win a major league berth last season. Johnny smacked out the most homers for his club and hung up a new two base record, smashing Hornsby's old marks, as his contribution toward impressing the Brooklyn potentates of his worth.

Vance's Demands.

"Dazzy" Vance, though, will yodel for another $25,000 and take nothing less. Vance claims he will desert the team if his request is snubbed. With better health this coming season, the Dazzler maintains he will be his old self, but a scrap is bound to ensue if the salary distributors think otherwise.

Burley Grimes, considered by many as the most valuable man to his team during 1929, will ask for a fat increase to assume his duties upon the Pittsburgh Pirate mound. While Burleigh is a staid veteran in service, his pitching prowess seems to refuse to deteriorate and Grimes intends to see to it that his contract is adjusted to his complete satisfaction before playing.

PIN MAULERS IN LOCAL TOURNEY

up. Class B double combinations are rated at from 320 to 350, with singles at 160 to 175. Class C includes doubles of less than 320 and singles below 160, all taken from existing league averages.

All Prize Money Returned.

Here is one tournament in which prize money will be returned 100 cents on the dollar. It is sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress and is held under the auspices of the Greater Lincoln Bowling association. The executive committee in charge includes Lud Vicek, chairman, Ted Sick, Dad Huntington, Art Runge and Hal Gildersleve.

In the team events, the team average counts rather than that of the individual in determining who is who. At least, the individual is not required to take his top league average unless bowling with his top league team. For instance, the bowler who bowls regularly in two or more leagues will count his average two or more ways. If he belongs to three leagues, he can bowl the team event three times, each time taking his average of the separate league.

This, however, is not true of the doubles and singles. Each bowler will be limited to one appearance in each of these events. All members of the Greater Lincoln league must bowl singles and doubles under class A rating. If a member of this league pairs in doubles with a bowler not of the organization, the two of them take class A rating.

Hebron Hoopsters Win Over Luther

HEBRON, Neb., Jan. 11—Hebron college took its first step in defense of its Junior College conference basketball title last night when Coach W. H. Rosellius' tossers defeated Luther college of Wahoo, 19-10.

Heuer led the attack with eight points and Baum played a great guarding game. Anderson and Olsen looked the best for Luther. Score:

WESLEYAN STEPS ON GRAND ISLAND

Dowmen Easily Double Score at Expense Of Zebras.

Nebraska Wesleyan rang up its first conference victory of the season last night when the Methodists romped away from Grand Island college, 37-14. Wesleyan was never in danger and Coach Dow used his substitutes freely.

Wesleyan started with Gibb and Captain Johnson caging three attempts from the field. Grand Island pulled up even, but the Methodists resumed hitting the hoop and held a safe lead the rest of the period, the half ending 24-6.

Dow used his substitutes freely during the second period and held the visitors to eight points while the Coyotes were scoring thirteen. Fellers, Smith and Killenger were hitting the basket regularly for Wesleyan, while the close guarding of Johnson and Dickson was smothering the Islanders' attempts.

Fellers and Smith lead the Wesleyan bombardment with 10 points apiece. Gibb and Killenger each accounted for six points. Aurand and Redbird were the only Islanders who had any luck hitting the hoop. The score:

MONTANA CAGERS RING UP VICTORY

their fast breaking offense always seeming to have one man loose for the shot. Thompson caged four of his first five tries from the floor and the game was in the bag.

Nebraska led but once during the game. This was at the outset when Don Maclay, Nebraska center, tipped in a follow-in shot and drew first blood. Sadler soon tossed one from the side for the Bobcats. Thompson rang the bell twice in two chances and Worthington caged one from back of the foul ring to send the Montana five away to an 8-2 lead.

Always Thompson.

Witte and Fisher brought Nebraska to within two points of the Bobcat total, but Thompson was good for enough points to stretch the margin to 15-8.

Grace and Witte collaborated to bring the count to 12-15, when Coach Schubert Dyche replaced Sadler with Olin Ward and the Bobcats were off with a spurt which soon had the game on ice.

The work of Steve Hokuf and Adolph Lewandowski stood out for Nebraska. Some busy guarding on the part of these two defenders was all that appeared to keep the Bobcats from running up a still more lop-sided score. In behalf of the Nebraskans, it should be mentioned that the Cornhuskers had been through the mill in a 41-39 game at Manhattan the previous evening and apparently had gone stale on the art of basket-shooting.

Bobcats Real Goods.

However, a team that can score 61 points without being pressed is not to be denied and, following the game, their was no disposition on the part of Nebraska enthusiasts to detract from the glory of the greatest team that ever displayed its basketball wares on the maple boards of the University of Nebraska coliseum.

The Saturday victory was the final game of nearly a month's barnstorming trip which precedes the Bobcats' entrance into Rocky Mountain conference competition.

Two games are on the Nebraska schedule for this week. The Cornhuskers will entertain South Dakota State, North Central conference titleholder, at the coliseum Tuesday night and travel to Columbia Saturday for a Big Six conference clash with the University of Missouri. The score:

scored their bif brothers in the short melee.

Ayers Scoring Ace.

Leo Ayres, diminutive forward, has been the scoring ace of the understudies in their early season combats, while his running mate, Baldwin, has exhibited classy floor play. Glenfall Barnes and Red Davis have been alternating at the center post, although Davis has been getting the call more often because of his distinct advantage in heights, in spite of the fact that Barnes is a more finished product in the floor play.

Three players have been shifting back and forth at guard positions during practices, Les Allen, Jack Cassity and Wacker giving way to each other at intervals. Cassity, however, will be out of the game for a few weeks because of an injury to his knee which is causing the stocky guard candidate much trouble.

Bauer Files Bid.

Billy Bauer, younger brother of Henry, regular guard on Coach Browne's first string, is the outstanding forward on the group of substitutes and is threatening to relegate Baldwin to a substitute berth, although Baldwin may return to guard, a position he is able to play easily, to fill the vacancy left by Cassity. The schedule:

Feb. 15—Omaha Tech reserves at Omaha.

to the transfer of the meet to Lincoln when proposed last June.

Despite the fact that the coaches had spoken almost unanimously for Lincoln, the Chicago duo was sufficiently influential to convince the executive council that the meet should stay in the Windy City and again run the risk of failing to achieve a financial success.

MAJOR GRIFFITH owes no apology for his persistence in holding out for the choice of the Windy City, which likewise applies to Coach Stagg. Both are estimable gentlemen of high standing in amateur and collegiate athletics, but the fact remains that the Big Ten commissioner, in recommending Chicago, in face of the action of the coaches, stands convicted of an inconsistency which scarcely keeps step with his professions in other matters pertaining to amateur sports.

That record discloses that Major Griffith has for years conducted an unceasing campaign against the domination of the Amateur Athletic Union, which body he has denounced on numerous occasions in terms nothing less than bitter.

The major's stock indictment of the A. A. U. was and is that it has none of the elements of a democratic organization; that it is controlled by a coterie of Tammany politicians in New York City, and that it has practically ignored the existence of the colleges and universities throughout the nation.

NEITHER Major Griffith nor Coach Stagg was present during the deliberations of the executive council in New York, although their recommendation that Chicago be awarded the meet was on file. In fact, both the major and the coach were enjoying a vacation trip on the far western rim, which merely goes to prove that their pull with the council was even more potent than was anticipated, as it stretched from coast to coast.

Major Griffith will be coming home from the golden west after a few days and possibly will be in a mood to enlighten a confused public as to his ability to denounce the A. A. U. as an undemocratic body in one breath and then so quickly flop to the position of dictator in track affairs by ignoring as democratic a body as the national association of track coaches, which had declared in favor of Lincoln as the scene of the national meet.

The major may have been pitching the truth right down the middle when he denounced the A. A. U., but I am not so all-fired certain that all the cunning politicians answer "here" when the roll is called at Tammany hall.

Sprinters On Marks For Season Indoors

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—International tangles having been straightened out, the 1930 indoor track season has reached its early stages and will be off to a real start in games scheduled for next week.

Two attractions are scheduled to follow the Columbus council K. of C. games of last Saturday and the Brooklyn evening high school games tonight.

The first comes Monday. It is the welfare fund meet of the New York County American Legion. A majority of events in this meet are dashes and runs of middle distance.

The second is carded for next Saturday. It is the famous Brooklyn college meet. Its feature event is the Olympic spring series.

Jack Elder, Notre Dame football player and track man, has entered the Olympic spring series. He will be opposed by Percy Williams, double deck Olympic winner from Canada; Jim Daley, Holy Cross; Karl Wildermuth, Georgetown, and Eddy Tolan, University of Michigan.

The Prout memorial games will be held in Boston, Jan. 25. Among the entries will be Stanislaw Petklewicz, Polish distance runner.

SLATED TRY FOR 2-MINUTE MARK

McDonald Hopes to Give Speedy Pacing Mare Fast Record.

It seems rather strange to arrange nearly a year in advance for a trainer to try with a horse for a two-minute record, but that is the case with the grey pacing mare, Gilda Gray, 2:01¾, which Lon McDonald of Indianapolis recently sold to a California sportswoman for $10,000.

One of the conditions of the sale was that McDonald is to make the journey to the Arizona state fair meeting at Phoenix next November and endeavor to give the grey mare a record inside the two-minute list. The Phoenix track is one of the fastest in the country. Guy McKinney, 1:58¾, and Mr. McElwyn, 1:59¼, both took their best records there.

McDonald is the dean of Grand Circuit drivers, yet he has not as yet driven a horse faster than two minutes, although he marked Miss Harris M. in even time at Atlanta back in 1917, a record she later reduced. Gilda Gray looked like a two-minute pacer at the close of the past season, but she was racing her stake engagements and no effort was made to point her for a fast mark.

Bronx To Race As A Pacer.

According to late reports, the angular eastern trotting gelding, Bronx, 2:04½, is to be raced as a pacer the coming season and if he is even half as successful as he was racing on the trot over the eastern half-mile tracks, he will be a good money earner, for the son of Belwin won a big majority of his races during the past two seasons and took his best record in winning a heat at the Grand Circuit meeting at Goshen.

Bronx first got into the limelight when a three-year-old in 1926, winning a heat in the Championship Stallion stake at North Randall. The inaugural of the Hambletonian stake, worth $73,000, was to be raced at Syracuse the following week, and Walter T. Candler of Atlanta paid a five-figure price for the gelding just before the racing of that event.

Bronx failed to get in the money in the big stake, however; in fact, he failed to do anything for the Candler stable and finally was sold for a song to an eastern horseman.

As before mentioned, he has been a real star on the half-mile tracks, proving himself a big money-maker, although always a terror to the starter, for Bronx never entirely reformed and usually is a troublesome factor at the score.

HOOF BEATS.

Guy Axworthy is but three credits behing the dead Peter the Great as a sire of 2:10 trotters, now having 108, while Peter the Great has 111.

The board of appeals of the Harness Horse association decided that Main McElwyn was not eligible to start in the third heat of the $10,000 two-year-old trot at Toledo last July so first money in that event was awarded to Pola McElwyn.

The eastern reinsman, Walter R. Cox, who winters his stable at Goshen, is going to visit the winter training camp at Orlando, Florida, in the near future.

Jack Fournier, for many years manager of the express shipment of horses through the Grand Circuit, died recently at his home in Cleveland.

One of the best-liked two-year-olds at Orlando is Jenny Dean's Girl, by Mr. McElwyn, 1:59¼, out of Jenny Dean, 2:09¼, dame of Guy Dean, 2:06½. She is owned by Fred F. Field of Brockton, Mass.

The Grand Circuit stewards meet on Monday and Tuesday of this coming week at Kalamazoo to arrange for the "Big Ring" lineup of 1930.

Dick McMahon, superintendent of Calumet Farm at Lexington, is vacationing in California.

DAVEY RETAINS BILLIARD LEAD

Leader Grabs Two Games To Stretch Margin In Cue Compet.

COAST TOO GOOD IN GRID RACKET

Far West Holds the Edge and East Ready Admit It Has Enough.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—In the light of recent developments, the chances are that the next eastern football team that is asked to go out to Pasadena and lay itself down like a carpet for the pageantry of the rose carnival will gaze very pensively at the distant skyline. Yes, it will become much engrossed in the subconscious; its thoughts will wander absently, it is doubtful whether its hearing will be sufficiently acute.

The east knows when it is licked and not without reason. It has had plenty of experience.

Anyhow, it knows that it can't beat Southern California at Pasadena and rathre strongly suspects that it can't beat either California or Stanford at San Francisco. In fact, it will bet you no money in a very marked manner that it can beat any of the Coast's Big Three more than once in three times even on neutral ground.

Material Too Good.

As a matter of fact, football material at the three coast universities is too good for the east on an average and the east ,beaten overwhelmingly in three post-season games by Southern California and Stanford, is willing to admit it. It will do even do more than that. It is willing to forget the fact and asks only that it be allowed to do so.

In all the years this section and the middle west have been sending teams to the post-season games to California, they have returned with prestige unimpaired on only three occasions. About 10 years ago, Harvard went out there and beat Oregon by a point. On another occasion, W. & J. played a scoreless tie with California. They still talk about that out there as a great moral victory for the east, because the California team in question was the greatest in its history. Finally the Four Horsemen outfit at Notre Dame romped over Stanford in 1924.

South Can Deliver.

There has been a lot of sniping back and forth in other games between the sections, but those mentioned represent major meetings at Pasadena. In recent years, the south sent Alabama to beat Washington and tie Stanford and Georgia Tech to win from California, with the aid of Roy Riegels' run in the wrong direction.

This data is significant. It shows for instance, that the temperate south can move in among the floral decorations and play better football than can the frigid east. It also shows that teams from the northwest like Washington and Oregon are at a disadvantage almost equal to that of the east, which suffers more only because of the longer trip.

Three to One.

The data is significant but far from conclusive. It becomes conclusive only when the admission is made that California, Stanford and Southern California have three good football players to every one in the east. To start with, the state produces far better athletic material. In the second place, his material is concentrated largely at the three schools mentioned, whereas what we have here is spread over the east like so much honey on a huge slice of bread.

It is obvious, then, that the east is licked before it starts. Why then go out of its way to get the licking? Many an eastern athletic head is asking himself that question today and finding the answer a comparatively simple one.

If we must get licked in transcontinental games, says he, let the coast come on here and do it. Privately, it may be added, that the coast has proved itself fully capable of doing so.

1930 BURLINGTON BUDGET LISTED

Total Expenditures For System This Year To Be $36,039,000.

Number of Improvements Planned In Lincoln And Havelock.

The 1930 budget of the Burlington system calls for expenditures of $36,039,000 exclusive of ordinary maintenance and replacement work according to budget figures as given out Saturday by E. P. Flynn, general superintendent of the Burlington at Omaha.

A new yard office will be installed at Lincoln with all modern facilities at a cost of about $12,500, additional trackage will be put in at the freight yard at a cost of about $25,000 and additional fire protection lines will be provided at the roundhouse and shop terminal here at an approximate cost of $7,000. Provision also is made for a dry kiln to be installed at Havelock for drying and seasoning lumber for the Missouri river territory. The expenditure for this will be $29,000.

Other expenditures in Nebraska and the nearby territory as listed by Mr. Flynn follow:

"The budget for Omaha includes an item for $104,000 for the new power plant, boilers, buildings and coal and ash handling conveyors at the passenger station, this being brought about by necessity for a large plant because of the larger station and additional trackage which the old plant was found incapable of taking care of. There is also included in this a small amount of money for the enlargement of steam lines to carry proper head of steam to outlying points in the passenger terminal.

"It also provides for the replacement of the present wooden cream dock at Omaha with a new concrete dock and doubling its capacity at an expenditure of about $7,500.

"The construction of additional trackage at the Gibson yard will permit storage of additional cars of grain brought about by the increased use of combines in the Nebraska territory increasing considerably the amount of grain reaching the Omaha market at harvest time at peak periods. This expenditure will approximate $25,000.

"Replacement of water tank at South Omaha with a new and larger tank will cost $7,500. A concrete engine washing platform at the Omaha roundhouse requires an expenditure of $6,300.

The budget also provides for building a new brick and concrete storehouse in the Omaha terminal at an expenditure of about $55,000. Our present storehouse is an old wooden affair which we have been unable to replace until a program covering some other roundhouse improvements and track changes should be made so as to permit locating the new building in satisfactory location with respect to the new terminal facilities. This we completed in 1929 and we are now ready to go ahead with the new storehouse this year. The building will be so designed as to permit housing the master mechanic's office in it and the present master mechanic's office will be remodeled into a lunch room for terminal employes replacing the present lunch room which it will be necessary to tear down to make way for future trackage and facilities in the development of the Omaha terminal.

"A new concrete roadway will also be constructed at the Omaha repair track at an expenditure of about $4,500, replacing a makeshift roadway that was put in temporarily last year to serve stock car rebuilding layout.

"The budget also provides for installation of automatic signals in the territory between Ravenna and Broken Bow at an expenditure of about $125,000.

"Also additional storage tracks at Louisville, Nebraska City and Superior at an expenditure of approximately $40,000 to take care of development and growth at those points.

"Water tanks at Yutan, Nebraska City, and Seneca, will be replaced at approximate cost of $9,000 each.

"New tanks will be installed to take care of additional water storage capacity at Alliance and at Edgemont, S. D. Expenditure of about $16,000 each.

"A new yard office will be built at Hastings, replacing present old structure at cost of about $10,000. Additional trackage installed at Hastings at cost of about $30,000.

Several Projects at McCook.

"New well will be installed at McCook at cost of about $7,500. New drop pit will be put in at McCook roundhouse at cost of about $1,800.

A new 110 foot turntable will be installed at Denver to take care of new mountain type engines which will be delivered in the spring for service on the Chicago-Omaha-Denver fast freight trains, also in connection with this new power, five additional stalls will be built at the Denver roundhouse to permit housing same. The cost of the total improvements together with the track changes will approximate $130,000. New tracks will also be installed at the Denver Thirty-first street freight yard at cost of about $45,000.

"Five old stalls will be replaced with new modern extended stalls at the roundhouse at Alliance at cost of approximately $85,000. A new hay barn will be installed at Alliance at a cost of about $7,200.

"New mill building will be installed at Sheridan, Wyo., at cost of about $80,000. New coal shed, enlarged machine shop and extension to roundhouse at Sterling, Colo., will be built at approximate cost of $90,000. This necessitated by growth in northeastern Colorado.

"At Council Bluffs additional trackage will be provided to take care of increased traffic into and out of Council Bluffs at an approximate cost of $20,000. Some signaling work will also be done at Council Bluffs through the yard at a cost of approximately $7,500 to expedite movement of trains and switching operations within the yard. A new 150 ton track scale will be installed replacing an old light scale at an approximate cost of $12,000."

LICENSE SUSPENDED.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 11—(AP)—Federal steamboat inspectors today suspended for six months the license of Capt. Walter F. Amsbary, master of the ore boat Marquette, for his responsibility in the Senator-Marquette collision in a fog off Port Washington, Wis., October 31. The Senator sank in Lake Michigan with the loss of nine lives, one a woman. Amsbary admitted the Marquette was running full speed ahead at the time of the collision. Senator survivors testified the boat failed to stand by to offer aid. The suspension dates from January 1.

Papers in his clothing indicated his name was J. Eubank. Half a loaf of bread and a little bag of beans were found in a handbag he carried.

NEW SOURCE OF INCOME IS SEEN IN CORNSTALKS

Wealthy Men Back Corporation to Manufacture By-Products.

First Plant to Make Wallboard to Be Located at Dubuque, Ia.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—(I. N. S.)—The year of 1930 presents the cornbelt farmer with a startling new source of income.

A corporation formed at Chicago and backed by men who represent enough capital to liquidate the war debt expressed faith today in the wisdom of manufacturing products from cornstalks, and subscribed a million dollars as a testimonial to the practicality of this hitherto experimental project.

The incorporated company, known as the National Cornstalks Processes, Inc., with headquarters here and the first operating plant at Dubuque, Ia., will launch its enterprise activity this week. Using patents and processes developed by Dr. O. R. Sweeney, head of the chemical engineering department at Iowa State college, the producers at present will confine their output to insulating wallboard, enlarging into numerous by-products possible from cornstalks as wider foothold is secured on the market.

Thirty Major Products.

The vast possibilities a tiny kernel of corn represents in the way of raw material for more than thirty major products essential to civilized usage, ranging from all qualities of paper to furniture, wallboard, medicines, clothing, building material, and the like, has been a subject of scientific search for several years. The spectre of dwindling forests and its adverse effect on climate; the plight of the farmer and the fascination of a rare achievement tended to spur the efforts for practical accomplishment in this field.

While a less strongly entrenched group, using its own developed patents and process, assumed the pioneer task of manufacturing cornstalk paper in its plant at Danville, Ill., for commerical purposes some time ago, no project hitherto launched has been started on the road on the extensive scale and powerful backing represented by the Chicago group.

A few of the financiers whose names were affixed to the documents of incorporation include Joseph Otis, chairman of the board of directors of the Central Trust Co., Chicago; former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, Herbert F. Perkins, president of International Harvester Co.; Charles D. Wiman, president of Deere & Co., Moline, Ill.; Bernard M. Baruch, New York; H. B. Hurd, of Pam & Hurd, Chicago; George N. Peek, Maizewood Product corporation, Chicago; Frank H. Woods, Woods Brothers, Lincoln, Neb.; Henry A. Wallace, Des Moines, Ia., and others. Dr. Sweeney has been retained as consulting engineer.

The primary object is to develop an industry which promises to have considerable value to the agriculture of the cornbelt states and to communities in which the plants are to be located. If successful, it will solve many age-old problems cornbelt farmers have been confronted with.

The average cost of clearing an acre of ground where corn has been shucked annually nips the producer for $3. The manufacturers of cornstalk products, on the other hand, offer him $10 a ton delivered. Estimates show that a farmer, deducting transportation, harvesting and binding costs from that amount per ton may reasonably expect a net profit of $3 per acre from his cornstalks. In addition, he retains his crop of corn, as only the stalks are wanted by manufacturers.

Doom of Corn Borer.

The doom of the borer, pest of the cornfields, is also sounded with the event of cornstalk products. He is carried to the point in the stalks and ground to death in the pulp making process. Tests have shown that his presence in a crop of stalks does not affect the fibrous material. Consequently, the farmer's profit destroyer is nearing extinction.

Production experts have determined that $500,000 will allow for a plant with a capacity production of 100,000 feet of wallboard daily, consuming in that time approximately fifty tons of cornstalks. A radius of eight miles in any corn growing section would supply enough stalks to keep the plant functioning at full speed the year around, tests have shown.

It is the intention of the new corporation to extend its operations and products as rapidly as circumstances deem it advisable. The factories will be located in the midst of the most productive corn growing areas, presumably in cities with handy transportation facilities.

Refuses to Name Assailants; Dies

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 11—(U. P.)—Joseph R. Guzzardo, 47, ex-convict and owner of a concession in a public amusement park, was shot and fatally wounded here tonight as he was walking from his garage to his home.

He died in a hospital without telling police the names of his assailants.

Guzzardo was fired on from a closed car. Removed to General hospital, where he died shortly after, Guzzardo told police he knew the two men in the machine, but said he "would take care of the matter himself."

When his wife visited him he told her that "Sam did it."

Guzzardo was sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary in 1921 after pleading guilty to charges of violating the Harrison anti-narcotic law.

TWO IMPORTANT TAX SUITS WILL BE HEARD SOON

Veto Of Appropriations For University Under Attack In One Case.

Banks Seeking Refund of $28,000 From Schools In Another Action.

Two cases involving important tax questions which are expected to be carried to the state Supreme court eventually, probably will be heard in the Lancaster county District court during the next two weeks. District cort judges are anxious to get the cases out of the way before the January jury gathers on the 27th. Several of the attorneys involved in the cases would like to have them heard during the coming week, they indicated Saturday.

One case is that brought to challenge Governor Weaver's veto of fourteen items in the appropriation bills of the last legislature for a total of $495,500. The vetoed portions included appropriations of $145,500 for University of Nebraska maintenance, $40,000 for equiupment at the medical college, and various amounts for new buildings at the state institutions at Beatrice, Grand Island, Norfolk and Omaha.

The other case is the action brought against the Lincoln school district in an attempt to force it to refund sums paid under the unconstitutional intangible tax law of 19925, which were paid without protest. The suit was brought in behalf of individual stockholders in banks whose stock was taxed and the tax paid by the bank without consultation with the stockholders.

Both cases have been complicated by the interposition of interveners.

Seek To Upset Veto.

The suit over the vetoed appropriations was brought by opponents of the governor's veto although it appeared to be in support of the veto. W. M. Elmen, local attorney, filed the action in behalf of the objectors. He charged that state officials were planning to override the governor's veto and to make the levy and issue warrants on the basis of the legislature's appropriations.

State officials, against whom the suit was brought, denied that they were intending to defy the veto. Thereafter the University of Nebraska entered the actoin as an interveuer, claiming that the governor's veto was unconstitutional and if permitted to go into effect, would seriously handicap the university.

The chief issue of the suit is whether appropriations to be passed above the veto power have to be passed separately by a three-fifths majority of the legislature or whether it is sufficient for the bill as a whole to be passed by a three-fifths majority.

The constitution provides that the legislature may by a three-fifths vote increase any item above the recommendations of the governor's budget. Another section provides that the governor shall not have power to veto any item so raised.

Attack Partial Veto.

Opponents of the governor's veto of items aggregating more than $500,000 claim that since the legislature passed the appropriation bill as a whole with the increased items by a three-fifths majority, no part of the bill can be vetoed. It has been the governor's contention that the legislature did not pass on the increased items separately with a three-fifths majority and that he, consequently, has the right to veto them.

No attempt was made to force the payment of the vetoed items during the present fiscal year. Opponents of the veto held that if their objections were sustained, the state board of equalization could make up the deficiency for this year in handling the state's tax problem for next year.

The suit against the Lincoln school district has already gone through one stage. The suit brought on behalf of Verna Crider, ostensibly involves less than $40 taxes paid on her stock in the Federal Trust Co. in 1925 and 1926. Actually it is estimated to involve more than $28,000 paid into the school district.

Refused Judgment After Pleading.

C. Petrus Peterson, her attorney, asked for a judgment on the pleadings early last fall. After arguments lasting several hours, and submission of numerous briefs over a period of several weeks, District Judge Shepherd ruled in favor of the school board, denying the motion.

The suit was held in abeyance for some time while attorneys debated whether to take testimony or to stand on the motion for an appeal to the Supreme court. Before action was taken, Leonard W. Reynolds, to whom had been assigned claims of a number of stockholders in the Federal Trust Co., filed a petition in intervention.

The corporations were denied a refund for failing to declare the taxes were paid under protest. Corporations who so signed secured their refunds. The suit was brought by an individual stockholder, claiming she was entitled to recover the illegal tax since she had no chance to protest.

Fee Fight to Be Resumed.

Two other cases which have attracted more than usual attention are already definitely set to be heard in District court during the coming week on Thursday.

Judge Shepherd will hear arguments expected to cover two days over the division of the $50,000 attorneys' fee allowed lawyers who successfully attacked the transfer of two million dollars of Woodmen of the World funds to the Globe Life Insurance Co.

Judge Chappell will hear arguments over a request of George Bainbridge, 89-year-old Lancaster county pioneer, that the First National bank of Havelock be compelled to honor his checks pending outcome of his appeal in District court from the County court decision which appointed a guardian for him. The bank was ordered by the guardian not to accept his checks.

Chamber Junior Division Has Party

About 125 couples attended the annual "First of the Year" party of the junior division of the chamber held at the chamber of commerce Saturday night. An entertainment at the intermission included a boxing match between the small twin sons of Frank Mills and a vocal trio specialty by University of Nebraska students. Ten prizes were given away to lady guests during the evening. Dr. A. H. Schmidt was in charge of arrangements.

Wealthy Chicago Man Shoots Self

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(INS)—Blair McElroy, member of the firm of Fitzpatrick-McElroy, Inc., theatrical booking agents and said to possess a fortune of $6,000,000, committed suicide here today by shooting himself at the home of a business partner.

McElroy had apparently been dead since yesterday. The body was found by a janitor's son, who reported the death to police. The multi-millionaire had shot himself through the brain after placing the muzzle of the pistol in his mouth.

The Fitzpatrick-McElroy firm started twelve years ago. Eight years ago it secured the rights of the Henry Ford industrial picture and reaped a tremendous fortune.

The firm then became an agency for chains of theaters throughout the country.

Last summer the firm sold one-half of its holdings to Balaban & Katz for $3,000,000 and the other half to Paramount-Lasky for a similar sum.

No reason is known for the suicide.

MIDWEST FEARS FLOOD DAMAGE

Thousands Homeless In Arkansas And Indiana.

Two-thirds of Nation Is Covered By Snow.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(U. P.)—The rising tides of mid-winter floods in two states piled misery and suffering on the middlewest today as it dug out of the big snow storm of the season.

Thousands whose homes are on the lowlands bordering rivers in Arkansas and Indiana have been driven to the bluffs by rivers rising at flood stage and fed by heavy rains and melting snow.

Northeastern Arkansas, drenched earlier this week by from nine to twelve inches of rain, reported additional precipitation and fear that levees would crumble under the strain. Moderating temperatures lifted part of the burden of refuge, but more rain sent the rivers higher.

Farmers Patrol Levees.

The St. Francis and Big Lake rivers have risen five feet in three days and lapped at the top of the levees patrolled by farmers who live in the danger zone. Both rivers had spread over the lowlands not protected by dikes and hundreds of the refugees were dependent on the Red Cross for food and shelter.

The White river, always a potential trouble-maker, became a lake 200 miles long and from three to five miles wide as the record rains poured from the hills to the stream.

The pace of the muddy Mississippi quickened around Memphis from the heavy flow of its tributaries, but little danger is feared from this source unless heavy rains in its watershed follow.

Southern Indiana rivers ran at flood stage tonight with more rain in sight. The Wabash river ran eight feet above flood stage at Vincennes, and the worst flood since 1913 was feared. Lowlands were over flowed and the peak apparently not yet reached. Damage ran into the thousands when corn fields not yet harvested and wheat plantings were inundated. More rain was forecast for the area tonight and tomorrow.

Snow General.

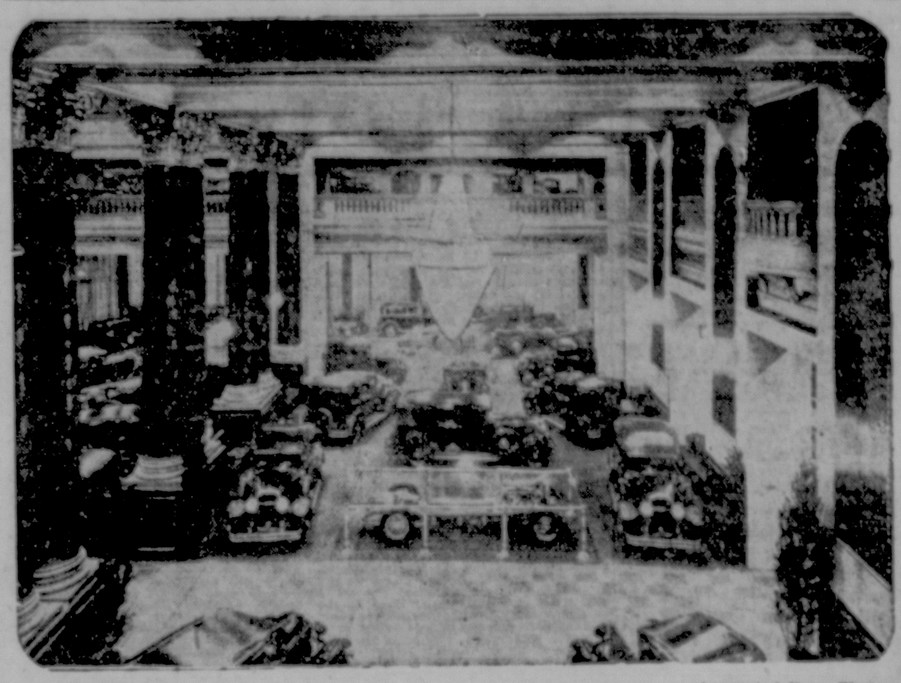

With the rivers carrying their icy burdens of flood waters, two-thirds of the nation labored under a snow blanket, one fringe of which rested on the Pacific coast and the other beyond the Great Lakes.

Most of the central west reported higher temperatures but in the northwest and Canada sub-zero readings were the rule. Battleford, Sask., was the coldest spot at 36 below zero. In some places the snow attained the depth of twenty inches on the level, and in central Oregon drifts measured twenty feet deep.

Deaths and suffering followed in the wake of the blizzard, some thirty deaths being recorded and scores injured on icy streets and in traffic accidents.

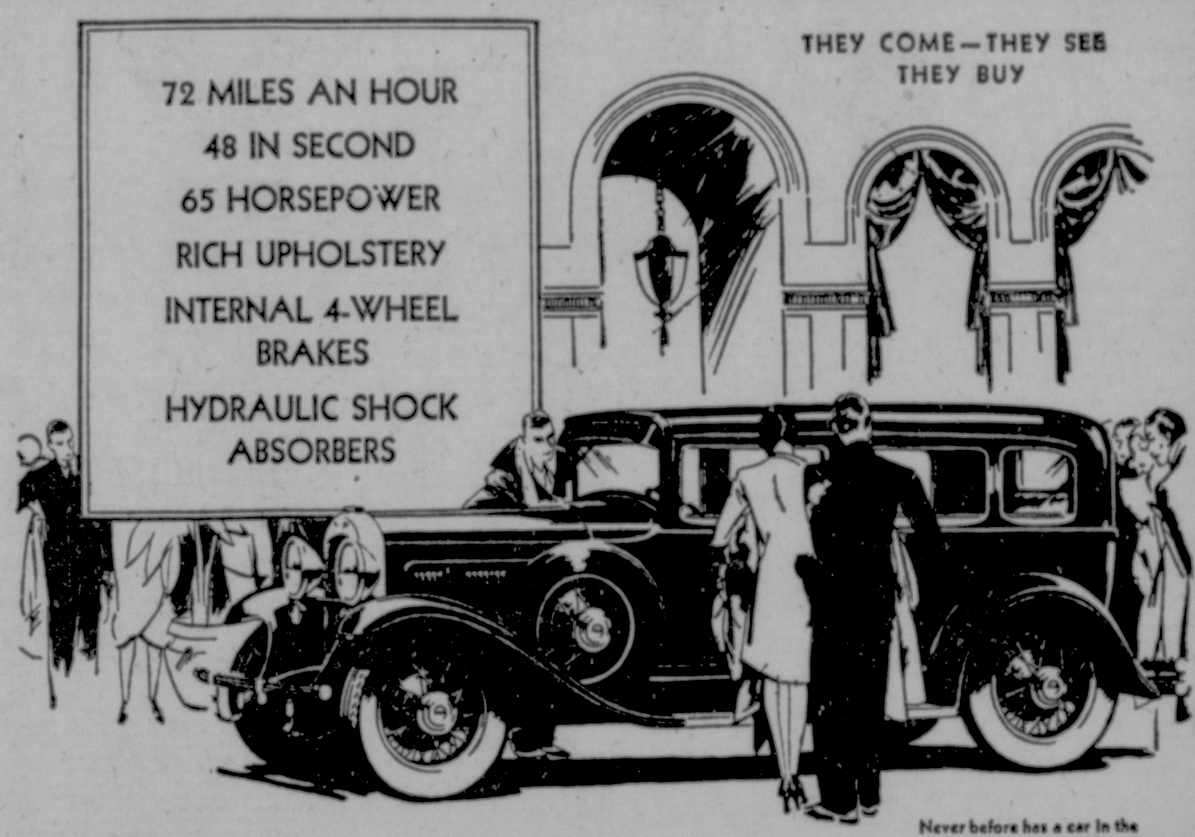

Train and automobile traffic continued late throughout the storm area. Commercial flying was at a standstill. Sleet and snow snapped telegraph lines and in some sections, cut off communication.

Annual Automobile Show Opens In New York

The thirtieth annual indoor automobile show opened in Grand Central Palace, New York, with 300 of the latest creations of the automobile world displayed by 46 American and two foreign manufacturers. A section of the main floor is shown above.

Never before has a car in the Willys Six price class afforded such a high degree of luxurious transportation.

Place your order now for this record value—

THE NEW WILLYS SIX

Beauty, speed and power beyond its price!

Already the Willys Six is hailed by an enthusiastic motoring public as one of the outstanding new car offerings of the year. This spectacular automobile meets the widespread popular demand for a low-priced Six with the external beauty and interior luxury of costlier cars, and with the speed and power development previously found only in cars above the $1000 class.

The low lines—from the trim, narrow radiator to the smartly tailored back—give a graceful streamline effect. The harmonious color combinations reveal a finer concept of tone and dignity for inexpensive cars.

The interiors, with their two-tone broadcloth upholstery, Butler silver-finish hardware and rich woodwork, reflect the faultless taste of master decorators.

In engineering, the Willys Six sweeps beyond all precedent and establishes new high standards for all low-priced cars. Its high-compression motor is rubber-insulated against vibration and develops 65 horsepower, with easily sustained speed of 72 miles an hour—48 miles an hour in second gear for dashing pick-up—hill-climbing ability that will prove a revelation to even the most experienced motorist.

At the same time, this big engine is remarkably economical to operate, achieving exceptional mileage per gallon of gas at the modern cruising speeds of 35 to 45 miles an hour.

Come in and give the new Willys Six your most exacting scrutiny.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.
International News Service.
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.

Dullness and sluggishness, rather than wide fluctuations in prices, featured the week-end trading on the New York stock exchange today. For the first time since July, 1928, the volume of Saturday trading fell below 1,000,000 shares, the total turnover today being 871,400 shares, compared with 810,310 on July 14, 1928.

The trend of prices was downward throughout the session, with very little rallying power in any sections of the list. The bears hammered the motor stocks in the first hour, on the prospect of a long period of dullnes sand uncertainty in the motor industry. Oil stocks held fairly steady on the improved outlook in the crude oil production, while steel and rails were inactive rather than weak.

Heavy selling of the industrials at the close carried values downward and final prices were generaly lower. United States Steel lost 1⅞ at 169⅝. Anaconda Copper was down 1⅝ at 74⅞; American Can down 1½ at 122; American & Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas and Columbia Gas fractionally lower. Fox Film A up ½ at 20¾. The industrial stocks average was down about 1½ points and the rails unchanged.

Heavy selling of stocks on week-end profit-taking forced prices of the active industrials to slightly lower levels in the first hour today, but the market was ready to snap back as soon as this selling pressure was withdrawn. The bears launched another attack on General Motors, which fell away on heavy selling to 38⅝, carrying with it a few other minor shares, including Hudson and Chrysler. Hudgon declined about 2 points to 55¼ and Chrysler was down fractionally at 35.

United States Steel sold down about 2 points at 169½ but the eagerness of the bears to take their profits resulted in a sharp rally all along the line, after which the market again turned dull. Attempts to unsettle the utility stocks were not as successful, most of the active utilities holding their grounds. The favorable turn in the crude oil production situation was also reflected in the strong market for the oil stocks, particularly the Standards and high grade independents like Texas Corp. and Sinclair.

The week-end trade reviews noted the revival in mercantile and retail buying, after the holiday and inventory shutdowns. Good reports come from the steel trade, and the automobile industry heads are apparently satisfied with the results of the big motor show, closing today.

Though industrial favorites like American Can and Anaconda Copper failed to recover their early losses, the selling of these stocks dwindled to a comparatively small volume in the second hour and the whole market lapsed again into dullness. Fox Film A rallied, too, 20½ on reports of a better prospect of selling the affairs of the company, together with the announcement expansion of its theatrical facilities in other cities.

The bull movement in Standard Brands, Gulf Dust, International Nickel and Bethelhem Steel, which appeared to be in full bloom a day or two ago, flattened out today, with comparatively little ground lost. American Can also slumped off a point, but it is too early to form conclusions as to whether or not these advances are but a flash in the pan. The week-end investment and commodity markets were steady, with cotton recovering its early losses and grain prices firm under the promise of direct aid from the government's new agriculture board. Spanish pesetas made a better showing in the foreign exchange.

The downward trend in prices spread to all sections of the market at the opening today. The exceptions were the steel stocks and a few of the rails and specialties. United States Steel was unchanged at 171½, Bethlehem and specialties. United States Steel stocks and a few of the rails and specialties. United States Steel was unchanged at 171⅛, Bethlehem up ¼ at 96⅝.

Katy was firm with a gain of ⅝ at 54⅝. Union Pacific moved up 2 points to 220. Allegheny corporation was up ⅛ at 25¼ and New York Central down ¼ at 167¾.

Weakness in General Motors unsettled the motor shares. General Motors opened fractionally lower, at 39¼ and dropped to 38⅝ under heavy selling pressure in the first period. Chrysler Motor was down at 35¼; Hudson down ½ at 56½; Studebaker down ¼ at 43¾.

American Can was down ⅝ at 123½; American Telephone and Telegraph down ⅝ at 218½; General Electric down 3 at 242½; Gold Dust unchanged at 42½; Sears Roebuck down ⅝ at 86⅝; United Corporation up ⅛ at 32⅜; American and Foreign Power down ¼ at 94½; Standard Gas down ⅛ at 115.

BEST LAND OPPORTUNITIES—West of the Missouri River in South Dakota. Rich, virgin lands that offer you real opportunity for securing a grain or diversified farm or small stock ranch. Clean, strong land at prices and terms favorable to the buyer of moderate means. Lands that will produce profitable crops of wheat, flax, corn, oats, barley, alfalfa, sweet clover, potatoes and vegetables. Well adopted to raising cattle, hogs, sheep, horses and poultry. These lands lie in the north central portion of the state and are served by the main line as well as Faith and Isabel extensions of The Milwaukee Road. They are in a proven country with schools, churches, good roads and markets. Experiences of successful farmers in this territory have developed practical farm profit programs which are a certain guide to success for the new settler. The Milwaukee Road desires to aid you in finding the farm or ranch meeting your requirements at a reasonable price and on terms you can meet without worry. We recommend only localities of proven merit. We have no lands to sell but can put you in contact with thoroughly reliable real estate men and land owners. Prices range from $5.00 to $25.00 per acre for unimproved, and from $15.00 to $40.00 per acre for improved lands. Write for illustrated book. Tell us what you want. Ask questions—they will be carefully and accurately answered. "Young Man, Go West" is as good advice today as when given. Homeseekers' excursion fares. R. W. Reynolds, Commissioner, The Milwaukee Road, 938-C Union Station, Chicago.

MONEY MAKING FARM HOMES—In Central Montana, including the Judith Basin. This Home land, where stock ranching, grain, dairy and general farms are producing with profit, offers wonderful opportunities to the ambitious man with moderate capital. Hard winter and spring wheats with high weights and protein content make high average yields. Oats, flax, barley, rye, profitably produced. Alfalfa and sweet clover successfully grown for hay and seed. Timothy, red and alsike clovers extensively grown in the foothills. Farm gardens, poultry, hogs, sheep, beef cattle, dairy cattle, bees, beans and high grade seeds contribute to the high per capita wealth of this territory. Lands are low priced and can be purchased on terms favorable to the new settler. Climate healthful, invigorating and favorable for successful crop and livestock production, rural mail delivery and good railroad service assure pleasing living conditions and good marketing facilities. We employ our corps of Agricultural Development Agents to learn and secure the adoption of best proven farm profit plans in localities we serve for the benefit of those now living along our lines and that new settlers may adopt such programs, avoiding necessity of expensive experiments. AUTOMOBILE NEWS

VIKING ANNOUNCES LUXURIOUS SEDAN MODEL FOR 1930

A "super de luxe" sedan has been introduced as the latest member of the Vikwing Eight family, which already consists of sedan, brougham and convertible coupe models. Standard equipment on the new body type includes trunk platform, Chromium plated bumper, six wire wheels, Broadcloth upholstering inside and side torchiere light on the outside are among the refining elements in its construction.

The Viking, brought out late last spring, has an eight-cylinder V-type motor. Special mechanical features introduced in the model are a mono-block crankcase, horizontal valves with simplified operation, a quasi-overhead type of valve arrangement, downdraft manifolding and an advanced type of cooling and lubricating system.

The manufacturers also claim these advantagesc for the V-type engine: short, heavy crankshaft, large bearings, equal overlapping power impulses which occur at each ninety degrees of the crankshaft are, and extreme rigidity and smoothness due to the comparative shortness of the engine.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Importance of Fan Operation.

A fan should be set as close to the radiator as possible. The blades should be set at an angle to deliver the quantity of air necessary for adequate cooling under the varying conditions that may arise and the fan should be driven at a speed that will deliver this quantity of air.

Reverse Rotation of Tires.

Reverse the direction of rotation of tires to get the most mileage from them. This will reduce the wear through "scuffing." Tests show that much tire wear is due to a constant slipping action known as "scuffing" and much of the peculiar wear on the treads can be spared by occasionally reversing the direction of rotation of the tires.

Attention to Battery Terminals.

Care should be taken that the battery terminals do not become corroded with acid, which not only interferes with the proper current from battery into cable, but also destroys the wires. Have ends thoroughly cleaned and then after they are replaced, cover them with cup grease. Ordinary stiff trowel roofing cement pressed under and over the terminals and cable ends is also an excellent material not only in keeping them clean, but in preventing the battery acid from working out. A graphite grease is also an excellent preventive.

Clean Plugs Stop Balky Motors.

Dirty and defective spark plugs cause stubborn starting of the engine, and missing at low or idling speeds. If insulator is covered with dry black soot, clean plug; check carburetor setting for being too rich; use choke sparingly. If sooting of insulator is habitual, change to hotter plug. If insulator is covered with wet, soft carbon, clean or replace plug; check oil level for being too high or for oil dilution; pistons and rings may need attention.

Getting More Mileage From Tires.

The small stone cuts in the casing should be kept filled with some good tire filler. This will keep out water and oil, two of the worst enemies to tire fabric, and put hundreds of extra miles on every casing. Oil will ruin an inner tube in a week. Never throw the extra inner tubes in promiscuously with the spare tools and oil can. Wrap them carefully in cloth or better still get a couple of good strong cloth bags for them. Some of the tire companies supply these bags free or they can be made at home with very little trouble.

Good Spark Plugs Necessary in Cold Weather.

Spark plugs must be in good condition and the electrodes must be adjusted correctly for not only satisfactory all-around performance, but especially to relieve strain on the battery and facilitate easy starting, which is so important during the winter season. A surprisingly large percentage of poor performance may be traced and often eliminated by an examination of the spark plugs. Hard starting, missing at low speeds, sluggishness and power loss on hills and hard pulls are often traceable to the spark plugs. This is why car manufacturers recommend that spark plugs be renewed every 10,000 miles and inspected at least twice a year.

The Ammeter and Its Operation.

Every motorist should have a working knowledge of the ammeter. This instrument indicates in amperes the amount of current passing to or from the battery. The pointer resting on the scale marked "charge" indicates that the generator is charging the battery. The pointer resting on the scale marked "discharge" indicates that more power is being used than is being used than is being produced by the generator, or in other words that the battery is discharging. With all of the lights off the ammeter should read "charge" at speeds above ten miles an hour. If the motor is idling it should read "discharge," but the pointer should swing to the "charge" side of the dial when the motor is accelerated.

Rear tires of an automobile wear one-fifth faster than front tires.

The dragging of brakes wears the friction surfaces so that it is impossible to adjust them properly after a time.

Never start out on a motor tour during the wintry months until the condition of the roads is known from some of the touring bureaus of motor clubs.

The surface of large, fancy hub caps on the late model cars can be protected when removing a wheel if a large piece of soft cloth is placed under the wrench.

CHEVROLET SALES DRIVE FEATURES TRAVELING SHOW

A national sales campaign, featured by a traveling show carrying stage equipment costing about $50,000, was launched Wednesday, Jan. 8, at a huge Chevrolet dealers' meeting in New York.

A series of forty-one dealer meetings throughout the country, lasting into the third week in February has been planned. Each gathering is to be a one day affair in which the sales ideas are to be presented in a number of playlets. For this purpose a carload of stage equipment and a force of professional stage hands will travel from city to city.

In anticipation of the success of the campaign, the sixteen Chevrolet plants have been keyed up to maximum production, according to their officials. Employment is reported to be at the highest level for the month of January of any year in the company's history, some of the plants maintaining two shifts.

Ritticisms.

By "BILL" RITT.

The bob sledding season has opened with no change of rules. You ride down, but you've got to pull the sled up.

A bob sled is an express train with no engineer.

Sled riding is like playing the stock market. You get in and ride down, scared to death.

The sled starts off on a runway that is 100 degrees slicker than a varnished banana peel.

There are no way stations on the road down, though passengers keep getting off and landing on their ears.

When the sled climbs a tree, you know it has gone into the shop for repairs.

At the end of the ride, surviving passengers know they've been places but haven't seen much.

The best part about bob sledding is that snow isn't made of cement.

Sport Briefs.

One of the so-called veterans of the prize ring, Jimmy McLarnin, has just passed his twenty-third birthday.

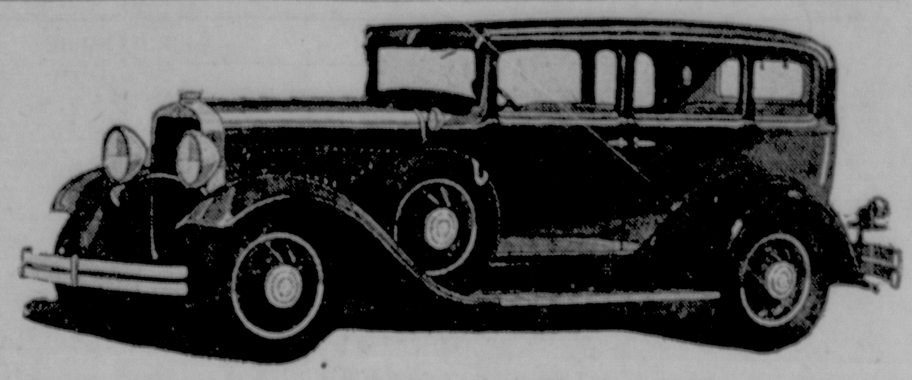

Jim Jeffries is boosting a young California heavyweight named Al Morrow.

Perry Leary, Auburn, N. Y., lawyer, has been named football coach at Union college for another year.

New Eight-In-Line Joins Dodge Family

The "Eight-in-line" shown above is a distinctively new addition to the Dodge Brothers family. Solid comfort, power and artistic design have been the guiding aims of its builders. The new eight cylinder motor is also incorporated in a few other models besides the pretentious four-door sedan above.

High Speed Features New Willys Six

The 1930 Willys Six shown above is powered by a sixty-five horsepower motor that is capable of driving it at a speed of seventy-two miles an hour in high and forty-eight in second. Many new engineering developments have been incorporated in its construction.

POWERFUL MOTOR GIVES SPEED TO NEW WILLYS SIX

Power is the dominating feature in the new Willys Six announced by the Willys-Overland Co. It houses a sixty-five horse power engine which is capable of developing seventy-two miles an hour in high and forty-eight in second.

Among the developments incorporated in the model are the rubber-insulated engine to eliminate vibration, extra high compression, internal type four wheel brakes, Monroe double acting hydraulic shock eliminators, manual heat control, full force feed lubrication, three spoke rubber covered steering wheel, "Finger Tip" control, crankcase ventilation, heavy counterbalanced crankshaft, hand brake lever at extreme left, adjustable front seats in sedan models, stury frame construction, oversize tires, and unusual oil and gas economy at cruising speeds of thirty-five to forty-five miles per hour.

DODGE BROTHERS SHOW NEW EIGHT AND SIX MODELS

Dodge Brothers have announced two distinct models to supplement the Dodge Six and Dodge Senior in 1930. One, an eight-in-line, appears in four-door sedan, coupe with rumble seat, roadster and phaeton body types, while the other, a six cylinder model, sells in these five types and a business coupe in addition.

One of the principle assets of the 1930 innovations is a mono-piece body, incorporating the latest developments in stamping and welding processes. This single unit construction makes possible conformity with the prevailing lower lines, elimination of body squeaks, and greater safety.

The down-draft carburetor, introducing a new fuelization principle, is an outstanding feature of the eight cylinder model. Fuel is "dropped" into the engine, assisted rather than resisted by the force of gravity.

OLDSMOBILE ADDS PATRICIAN SEDAN TO FORMER LINES

The 1930 line of Oldsmobile sixes add a de luxe sedan to the body types previously marketed. This, the Patrician, will be furnished with six wire wheels and folding trunk platform as standard equipment. The other modes are the four and two door sedans, business coupe, sport coupe, phaeton and convertible roadster.

The Patrician is upholstered in broadcloth, while silk mohair is the predominating covering for most of the other closed models.

Principally, the mechanical changes for 1930 are designed to improve acceleration and hill climbing. Fundamentally, Oldsmobile officials state, the models adhere to those features which they believe have already proven thier merit.

The new cars have received particular attention in the matter of artistic body design. Also, an additional inch and a half more width has been provided for the seats.

White or blue smoke from the exhaust indicates excess supply of oil in crankcase or worn rings, while gray smoke may indicate too much oil as well as fuel. Black, foul-smelling smoke indicates too rich a mixture.

Do You Know—

BY GENE KESSLER.

MAYBE Joe McCarthy, manager of the National League Champion Cubs, had a right to yelp when only Rogers Hornsby, of his Cubs was able to play in every game during the heat of his successful flag campaign.

Most of Joe's regulars were forced out with injuries from time to time last summer.

Joe himself played second base in an infield at Louisville in 1916 when every man went through a 168 game schedule without missing an inning or a time at bat.

This is a record. J. Corriden played third, Wilbur Roach short and Jay Kirk first for the Colonels then.

McCarthy while not a big leaguer, was a star second baseman and has been very successful in developing young infielders. Woody English in his leading protege at Chicago.

Make the SAFETY POINT your guide in battery buying

There is no true economy in buying a battery at too low a price, and later paying more than you save for a tow-in, or for recharging or repairs.

Buy at the safety point of fair price and high quality and you'll get satisfying service, and be money ahead in the end. Choose a Willard.

A STATEMENT OF OLDSMOBILE-VIKING POLICY for 1930

A message of interest to everyone who expects to buy a car this year.

AT THIS TIME, when the public is accustomed to look for changes in motor car design, it is only natural that Olds Motor Works should make an announcement concerning both its policy and its products for the coming year.

Olds Motor Works is pledged to a policy of progress—a policy that promises, in part . . . "Changes in design solely for the sake of progress—never for the sake of change alone."

This policy, as it applies to the two products of Olds Motor Works, is briefly . . .

. . . to give still greater value in the Oldsmobile Six, the Fine Car of Low Price . . .

. . . to provide, in the Viking, a modern 90-degree, V-type Eight of high quality, at medium price.

Certain changes have been made in Oldsmobile design. These changes are chiefly in the body of the car, although advancements have also been made in the chassis. In every case, the changes tend to add to Oldsmobile value, without affecting the fundamental design of the car.

Naturally, no changes have been made in the great Viking Eight. The Viking is a new car—a thoroughly modern 90° V-eight, incorporating advancements in V-eight design that establish it as one of the outstanding engineering achievements of recent years.

Viking, as well as Oldsmobile, represents true progress in modern motoring. Viking, as well as Oldsmobile, is the splendid result of an ideal—an ideal that is exemplified by the four great responsibilities Olds Motor Works recognizes toward every Oldsmobile and Viking owner.

The first of these responsibilities is to design progressively, utilizing the full resources of the General Motors Research Laboratories, the Proving Ground, and Fisher Body, as well as its own broad facilities.

The second is to build faithfully . . . maintaining standards of quality and workmanship which are best expressed by the pledge every worker follows, "Anything short of my best is not acceptable."

And not content merely with designing and building well, Olds Motor Works goes further, and pledges itself to sell honestly—representing its products, in every detail and to every buyer, exactly as they are . . . and, finally, to service sincerely—maintaining an interest in every sale far beyond the time of purchase, and joining with its dealers in carrying out the most equitable service policy in existence today.

While Olds Motor Works builds two cars, in two major price classes, each represents the most progressive engineering thought, the finest manufacturing practice, and the best value it is possible to give. Each is truly ". . . a car for the American family that, at a moderate investment, gratifies their finer tastes as well as satisfies their every need."

Now is the time to see these cars and to compare them with the latest offerings of the automotive industry. Make your own examination.

THE FOLLY OF FAT

PROVED FOR 22 YEARS—AND TO MANY

CONSIDER the fact that countless people, for many years, have been fighting fat in the modern way. No abnormal exercise or diet to bring harm.

Note the results you see everywhere. Slender figures now prevail. Excess fat is the exception. New youth and beauty, new health and vigor, have come to multitudes in the easy, pleasant, right way.

One great reason is a discovery that science made some years ago. It was found that most fat people had an underactive gland. That gland largely controls nutrition, and its weakness leads to fat.

Modern physicians, since that discovery, have applied a new treatment to obesity. They have fed the lacking substance.

Marmola prescription tablets, prepared by a famous laboratory, contain the factors they employ. So this effective and right method is at everyone's command.

Marmola has been used for 22 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others the results until Marmola now stands alone. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the reasons for results. So users know what they are taking and why the good effects appear.

Is it not folly to stay fat when so many have found an easy way to slender, normal figures? And the right way. Go try the method they employed. Watch the results from a box or two of Marmola, then decide for yourself what it means. A right condition means much to you. Go start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

it will outlast three ordinary pianos

The Steinway's astonishing length of life is not the result of chance. It is built in slowly — carefully, by skilled craftsmen using the finest materials. It is as much a part of a Steinway as its lovely tone. For 30, 40, or even 50 years and more the Steinway will serve you well. And when at last it has given all that it has to give, it will not be in your lifetime. You need never buy another piano. Such durability as this spells real economy. In the end it is far cheaper to buy a Steinway. A new Steinway Upright piano can be bought for $900. Grands $1,525 and up. The initial deposit may be as little as 10%, and the balance will be extended over a period of five years. Used pianos accepted in partial exchange.

HIGH ANNOUNCES ESSAY, ORATORY CONTEST CHAMPS

Anti - Saloon League Gives Winners Trip To Detroit.

Six Regional Oratory Victors Try For Title Sunday.

Announcement of the winners in the college essay and oratorical contest, sponsored by the Nebraska Anti-Saloon league was made Saturday afternoon by Frank A. High, state superintendent. The six regional winners in the oratorical contest will compete for the state championship Sunday night at St. Paul's Methodist church.

Those who will speak, the winners of regional contests among the school champions recently, are: Leland Johnson of Nebraska Central college, Marrill Whitman of Wayne State Teacher's college, Clifford Phillips of Grand Island, college, W. Gaius Watt of Nebraska Wesleyan university, Theodore Howard of Union college and Stuart Peterson.

Champ to Meet Kentuckian.

The judges of the contest will be: O. H. Bomson, assistant superintendent of the Lincoln schools; Rev. J. D. M. Buckner, Lincoln; Clarence L. Clark, Lincoln attorney; Dean James E. LeRossignal, University of Nebraska; John O. Rankin, University of Nebraska; Charles W. Taylor, state superintendent of public instruction, and Robert VanPelt, Lincoln attorney.

The winner of the state contest will compete in an interstate debate with a representative from Kentucky at the national convention of the league. Kentucky and Nebraska are the only two states that have sponsored a state college oratorical and essay contest.

Announce All Winners.

The complete list of winners in each college, with the winner of the oratorical section given first and the essay division last, follows:

Cotner college, Harry G. Parsons and Benjamin F. Parnell; Dana college, Dorothy Jensen and Esther Jensen; Doane college, S. Arlington Brugh and John Keeney; Grand Island college, Clifford Phillips and Richard N. Davis; Hastings college, Thelma Arnold and Emma Mosseman; Kearney State Teachers college, Leonard Christensen and Mildred Beadle; Midland college, Arthur Gallagher and Mildred Widman.

Nebraska Central college, Leland Johanson and Lawrence Selin; Peru State Teachers college, Virginia M. McNeal and Donna Jane Delzell; Union college, Theodore R. Howard and Mrs. Gladys Merkel; University of Nebraska, (Nor oratorical contest.) Lowell I. Thomas; University of Omaha, Stuart C. Peterson and Jeanette Winters; Wayne State Teachers college, W. Merrill Whitman and Jeanette Lewis; Wesleyan university, W. Gaius Watt and Christine Hardin; York college, Homer Crosby and J. Donald Fisher.

The winner of the college contest in each division have been awarded a free trip to Detroit to attend the annual convention of the Anti-Saloon league. The convention begins Thursday, Jan. 16, ad will continue for four days. The Convention is also celebrating the tenth anniversary of the prohibition law.

Wayne Leads in Contestants.

The contest, which was carried on in each of the fifteen colleges and universities in Nebraska, met with a response which was more than satisfying to the league. Mr. High stated. Wayne Normal school led the colleges with 174 entered in both section, the University of Omaha was second with 152, and Union college at College View was third with 149.

Many commendatory comments on the contest have come to the offices of the league, according to Mr. High. The president of one college wrote, "The student body as a whole discussed the question freely. Small groups frequently debated the merits of prohibition."

Another president wrote, "The value of the contest would be hard to estimate because the results will continue to be revealed for many years to come."

A third faculty head had this to say, "Undoubtedly, the contest has brought home the fact that we have an Anti-Saloon league that is an active organization with a work still to do in the world—and it is endeavoring to do it."

Lauds Thomas' Essay.

One of the most interesting essays that was written for the contest, according to Mr. High, was presented by Lowell I. Thomas, 6925 Frances street, a sophomore in the Arts and Sciences college of the University of Nebraska. The essay, with which he won in competion with over one hundred others, stated in part:

"Prohibition has revolutionized moral and economic life in America during the past ten years. The proof that prohibition has accomplished astounding readjustments in American society lies in the consideration of the changes prohibition has affected in the typical American city."

Using Lincoln as an example of a typical city, Thomas write, "The sight of a drunken person reeling tipsily down the street was so common, that, when unaccompanied by boisterous or vulgar action, it provoked little more than passing notice. Today, however, a drunken person upon the street is a curiosity and attracts widespread attention."

Commenting on the situation in the University of Nebraska he said that before prohibition it was not uncommon for students to carouse about, going from one business house to another and doing great damage. He defended prohibition on the grounds that if any drinking is done by students it is under cover and not done openly.

Taking statistics offered by public charity institutions in Lincoln, Thomas showed that many families who were regular applicants to charity organizations have become independent in the last ten years due to prohibition.

Claims Drunks Tenth Less.

"Prior to 1919, some twenty-five licensed saloons were in operation in this city. Saloon-keepers counted on the daily turnover of their stock of beer. How different it is today with the bootlegger with his tiny tiny cargo of forbidden drinks in his suitcase. Due to the reduction in the consumption of intoxicants, arrests for drunkenness in this city have decreased to a tenth of the pre-prohibition number."

In the closing remarks of his essay, Thomas stated, "The success of prohibition, however, as a beneficial movement in America during the past ten years cannot be questioned. Certainly the majority of people have received significant gains from it. Consequently they give little heed to the cries of those few who mourn the passing of the saloon. Since prohibition has succeeded in revolutionizing moral and economic life in America during the past ten years, the present role of those bodies which were instrumental in establishing it is only to lean back and say, 'I told you so'."

The highways of buying

"FOLLOW the highway markings and you can't go wrong."...That's the advice the Automobile Club gives you before starting on a motor trip. You follow the well-known, well marked roads. And you reach your destination the safest, most comfortable way.

Why not follow the same rule in your shopping? Why not stick to the "highways of buying?" They have been just as carefully plotted, and are just as carefully marked as the great motor roads you've come to depend upon. Marked by the trade-marks of reliable, advertised products.

The next time you go shopping follow these "highways." Before you start, look through the advertisements in these columns. Pick out the products you want. Notice the names and trade-marks that identify them. And then ask for them by name.

LET'S SHOP WITH

MODERN EVE

Soon To Be Displayed

AND greatly is it anticipated too, the new patterns of Armstrong linoleum. Griswold Comstock's are the dealers and will have this display as soon as possible and that will probably be around the first of March or the first of April. You know they tell me that this is the most beautiful and most complete line ever to reach Lincoln and that the new patterns are more colorful and more diversified in design. In fact, there is no color combination which cannot be suited when you choose from these.

Mrs. Champe Says

MY guaranteed perfect permanent waves are always $5.00—shampoo included. Lincoln's most expert operators to serve you. Our fingerwaves at 75 cents—shampoo included—are individual and more beautiful—finger wave alone, 50 cents. All work guaranteed and done under my personal supervision. Honey Beige Featured.

Honey beige is gaining in importance as the second spring collections appear. This color is promoted particularly in suede finish fabrics. Bright navy blue and the vivd blues have consistently appeared throughout the spring exhibits, but the consensus of opinion regarding dark and bright blues is that while these will have generous representation, the blue gamut is not expected to gain leadership in color selections.

Bon Bon Pink Shown.

Granting the prominence of black for day and evening does not indicate that colors are ignored. It is rather interesting to note the prominence of the pink range, from ashy pinks to a tint, named "bon bon" pink. Bon bon pink has a mauve cast that "gives pink a sophisticated personality." Slender, wrap-about capes in panne satin, panne velvet, sheer or chiffon velvets, shown shade.

Fabrics Highlights.

Wool crepes, suede cashmeres, coverts, granite weaves in soft woolens, and chiffon broadcloths are impartially represented in most collections, while tweeds, in monotones and variegated mixtures, continue as prominent as ever, although there is some tendency to emphasize monotones, in beige and yellows.

Big Surprise

BUT I can't tell you all about it now. In fact, I can't tell you any of it, you have to look at the Wednesday night Star for all the clues. I'm going to give you a tip though, this big surprise is to be an announcement from Harris Goar's that is deemed to be of great interest to all Lincoln women. See the Star Wednesday night.

THE persistence with which black retains its high style position in formal daytime coats and evening wraps, and the indication that it also will have a prominent place in spring suits, is one of the interesting turns in spring tendencies. The acceptance of black in formal coats is logical, since it permits of numerous fur treatments. Both black and white, galyak, as well as the soft dyed tints of beige and butter yellow in lapin, and the combination of black with summer ermine, all contribute to the dressy aspect striven for when black fabrics are chosen for coats. Black suits, on the contrary, are quite important minus fur adornment, especially in rough surfaced fabrics, such as wide wale cheviots, granite weave woolens and even black tweed.

IN numerous instances collarless necklines are advanced, while the sleeves are lavishly adorned with ermine, reaching in flared contours above the elbows, this treatment sharing favor with a more simple fur treatment in narrow tuxedo collars of ermine, bowed at the back. In addition there are many versions of wrap-around types, in collarless and cuffless versions, but accenting the hemline by a wide border of fur, sometimes white fox, or more frequently flat furs, ermine being given preference.

PARIS.—There are rumors in Paris that printed chiffons will enjoy a vogue this summer. At this time of writing, when the couture is making its choice, the printed chiffon is the wave on which favor seems to concentrate. Its success will be only a logical development of the marked tendency, on one hand, toward the elaborate long dressy silhouette for which chiffon is an appropriate material, and on the other for morning or sports dresses, which assume more or less a tailored effect, and for which silk makers have provided in novelties of sportive character.

50 Per Cent Off

OF a dime wouldn't be much but when I tell you that you can still get reductions on fur coats up to 50 per cent that is a different story. That runs into real savings and it's especially attractive at this time, for you won't have to wait until next year to start wearing it. Cadwallader's Sale is a blessing to lots of folks.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Not Unusual For Parents to Cling Selfishly to Children But Results Are Disastrous — The Job of Being Mother to the Children of Another Is Difficult But Is Worthy of Earnest Efforts.

A Difficult Problem.

One of the most difficult problems I am asked to solve is that of the young girl or boy (usually it's a girl) whose parents do not permit her to enjoy the normal outlet of friends her own age.

"Maxine" writes today that she is seventeen years old has never been out with a boy or had a boy friend at her home. She has many boy admirers but her parents object to them all. They likewise object to her girl friends. They are too loud or coarse—something is always wrong. They attempt to keep their daughter in a rarefied atmosphere. They give her everything she wants but friends. They adore her and do not wish to share her. She cannot hurt them, yet she is lonely and moody and sometimes desperate. "Almost going mad" is the way she terms it.

Not an unusual case at all. It is difficult to know what to say to the girl when it is the parents I would like to reach. I would like to tell them what they are doing to their girl in denying her a normal, social existence. She is in danger of being so marked with repressions, inhibitions (not trick words at all, but real physical and nervous states of being) that hse will in revolt ruin her life through some desperate, wild act, or merely through her lack of experience and poise that is gained through associating with others, make very grave mistakes.

To the girl all I can do is plead for the grace of time. I cannot encourage her to become a prevaricator and a sneak. Far from it. Stolen friends bring no good. They are as harmful as stolen goods of any kind.

"Almost going mad" doesn't help. In fact this is the worst state of mind that can be fostered.

The only solution for the girl in such a home is to find every means possible to keep her mind off herself, to cultivate a nobby of some type that will engross her, until such a time as her parents will see the light or until she leaves home.

Mothering Another's Child.

A girl should ponder long before she marries a widower with a child. "Alice E." writes that she is twenty years old, in love with a man of thirty who has a little boy four years old. Her parents are very opposed to the marriage because of the child.

I believe the girl contemplating a marriage which entails the mothering of another's child should be very sure of herself before she does so. Is she fond of children? It is not an easy thing to mother a husband's child, even for an older woman who loves and understands children. An own mother may do anything, but every word and action of a step-mother is criticised. The girl must ask herself if she is ready to stand up under that criticism.

As a bride, she may be inclined to be jealous of the little fellow and feel that her husband pays too much attention to him. It is not always easy to be a wise mother to another woman's child.

It is entirely up to the girl. If she is big enough to tackle the job intelligently and with open eyes to its dangers, then I wish her much joy for it is a very worth-while job. If she does it successfully it will bring very great satisfaction to herself and happiness to her husband.

Millions of Them.

There are just about 9,999,999 girls of sixteen and thereabouts with ambitions to become a movie star. "Ambition" is one of them and she feels that because it has been her ambition since she was a "little girl" that she is foreordained for success if she ever has the opportunity. Her parents oppose her, however.

So do most parents, very sensibly. There are many heartaches attendant upon that profession, so many more who fail than the few who succeed. It requires more than good looks. It requires perseverance, pluck, talent, training, genuine ability, all reports to the contrary.

Dear Minerva: Should a man feel disappointed and hurt when the girl to whom he is engaged to marry is reluctant with her affectionate responses, sparing of her kisses, and reticent in all expression of love?

JOE.

A—I think not.

It is rather unusual for the modern girl to show such reserve. It may result from one of any number of causes. Her training and environment may have been such that expressions of affections have not been familiar gestures. Her mental and spiritual life may be so strongly developed that the physical side of her being lies asleep. She may have been taught that maidenly reserve is woman's strongest lure.

But whatever the cause, if the man cherishes his sweetheart with respect, devotion and sympaty, love will dawn in her being.

Answered Briefly.

Troubled: No matter how disappointed the unlucky suitor may be, don't deceive him any longer. It is your privilege to choose whom you please. Don't worry about hurting his feelings. Men usually recover from such set-backs.

Daisy: Never let sympathy decide you in a love affair. Pity is akin to love, it is true; but it is only a very distant relation. You cannot wholly respect a person you feel sorry for, if he is the man who has charge of your heart. The man who deceived you is not the answer to your prayer, either. Better look a little farther.

R. F. M.: By all means send the note of congratulation to the graduate friend and invite him to come and see you. The fact that you met him in a summer hotel where he was working during vacation time as a writer should only commend him to you. His courage and ambition are admirable qualities.

Bobby: The same old question, "Why doesn't he propose?" There is nearly always the same old answer—because he doesn't want to. The postscript to this is, perhaps he would like to, but cannot afford it. A womaan can sometimes subtly bring the subject up herself; but in doing so she should be very sure of her standing with him.

BEGIN PRE-EASTER MID-WEEK SERVICES

Beginning January 15, and continuing each Wednesday evening until Easter Sunday, special mid-week services will be held at First Methodist church, Fiftieth and St. Paul streets. A series of lectures on the "Life of Christ" will be given by the pastor, Rev. H. P. Fox. Most of these lectures will be illustrated either by moving pictures or by use of the stereopticon.

Schools and Colleges

Doane College Notes

During the holiday vacation facilities in Boswell observatory were considerably improved by taking out the partition in the east part of the building, thus making one large room big enough to accommodate at laboratory tables the large astronomy class. Dr. Hawkes returned Friday, January 3, in order to see that the new room was in proper condition by Monday.

Russell A. Smith, instructor in mathematics, who was obliged to be absent from his work before the holidays has brought with him his brother, Milton Smith, who will register as a student in Doane next semester. He was enrolled the first semester as a sophomore at Sioux Falls. The parents have moved to Texas for the winter on account of the father's health.

Dr. Burrage went to Omaha January 2, to spend a few days of his vacation. He and Mr. Dudley O. Aller, '20, and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Burton, '09, (Jennie Mae Nuquist, '09), were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cockle, '14e, Thursday evening.

Dr. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell college has been secured to give the lecture in the Doane-Crete lyceum course this year. The lecture is scheduled for January 31 at Sokol hall. His subject is "The Making of a Great People as Illustrated by President Masaryk and the Czechoslovak Republic." Dr. Steiner's village is within the confines of the Czechoslovak Republic. He has recently visited President Masaryk gathering material for a biography which he plans to write. Dr. Steiner made a particularly deep impression, both at the ministers' convocation and at the local Rotary club meeting last week.

Professor J. Harold Ennis has just completed a fifteen hundred word article for the new Dictionary of American Biography which is being published by Scribner's, under the general editorship of Professor Allen Johnson formerly of Yale university. The subject of Mr. Ennis' sketch is A. J. Dallas, Famous Secretary of the Treasury in the Administration of President Madison.

F. G. Stephens, '01, of Nampa, Idaho who visited the land of the midnight sun last summer claims the distinction of having carried the Doane flag farthest north. On his trip he took a Doane pennant along with him and at a point far north where the waters flow down north to the arctic circle, had himself photographed with the Doane pennant. The result is an interesting picture for Doane people.

President Dean left the first of the week for Washington, D. C., where he will attend the annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges. Before returning, he will probably visit New York and New England and will be gone two or three weeks.

President D. O. Aller, '20, of the Alumni association is perfecting plans for launching the 1930 Doane alumni loyalty fund campaign about February 1. He is now lining up class agents and preparing printed material to be sent out to the individual members.

Wesleyan Notes

Dr. H. P. Fox, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church in University Place, adressed the university convocation Thursday morning on the subject, "A Glimpse at the Coast Guards." These guards, Dr. Fox pointed out, are drawing nation-wide attention on account of their efforts to stop illegal smuggling of liquor. He declared, however, that the coast guard is primarily a life-saving agency. The life of the guard is truly heroic, he said, whether he is engaged in preventing smuggling of all kinds of goods into the United States, or whether he braves the severest storms to rescue men and women.

At the meeting of the Mathematic club on Thursday evening Lloyd Ames discussed the history of the slide rule and Dwight Catlett explained the mechanics of the slide rule.

University Notes

Dr. R. J. Pool, chairman of the department of botany, has received advance copies of his new book, "Flowers and Flowering Plants," which is just off the press. The book contains about four hundred pages and nearly one thousand drawings and other illustrative materials arranged in 191 figures. The work is largely devoted to a treatment of the nature and work of flowers and the use of these features in the classification of flowering plants. Principles of natural relationships that are shown by flowering plants are stressed throughout. The general plan of classification adopted in the book is similar to the one suggested by the late Professor Bessey several years ago. This is the first book in which that plan has received extensive treatment. Another unique feature is the endeavor to represent the nature of flowers by means of empirical formula that superficially resemble the formulae for chemical compounds that are familiar to students of chemistry. This method involves the introduction of a large chart that shows the entire series of flowering plants arranged in such a manner as to show their natural affiliation.

The October number of Plant Physiology, just off the press, contains paper by Dr. J. E. Weaver and Dr. Walter J. Himmel on, "The Relation Between the Development of Root System and Shoot Under Long- and Short-day Illumination."

Prof. Paul H. Grummann addressed the York Women's club Friday on "The Opera." This is one of the series of atlks that he has given before the club this year.

Wilkinson, chairman, Davenport, Ia.; Harry Westcott, New Haven, Conn.; Chas. W. Bennett, Pittsburgh, Pa.; James M. Todd, New Orleans, La. The committee has supervision of the seventy local sections of the society located in the United States and Canada. Four regular meetings are held each year, the first of which will be at Tulsa, Okla., in early March.

Dr. Pierce has sent the museum a number of specimens of lizards from the islands. At present he is, located at Victorias, and is employed by the Victorias Milling Co.

Dr. G. A. Grubb, Dr. F. W. Webster and Dr. F. A. Pierson of the college of dentistry will leave this Sunday for Chicago, where they will attend the annual meetings of the Chicago dental association, the first of the week. Dr. Grubb, supreme president of Xi Psi Phi fraternity, is on the toast list at a banquet in honor of Dr. Verne Nillson of Minneapolis, given by the Chicago chapter of the fraternity.

Mr. Lackey was elected secretary of the council at the recent meetings, and Dr. N. A. Bengston, president of the council last year, was placed on the board of directors.

Meetings of the council of the American Library association, the university and reference librarians and the bibliographical society of America, in Chicago, during the holidays, were attended by Gilbert H. Doane, university librarian.

Gutzon Borglum, sculptor and artist, visited at Morrill hall during his stay in Lincoln last week. The noted sculptor was inerested primarily in the mural paintings by Elizabeth Dolan, and the exhibits. Miss Dolan has just completed the paintings on the floor of the African elephant case in the museum.

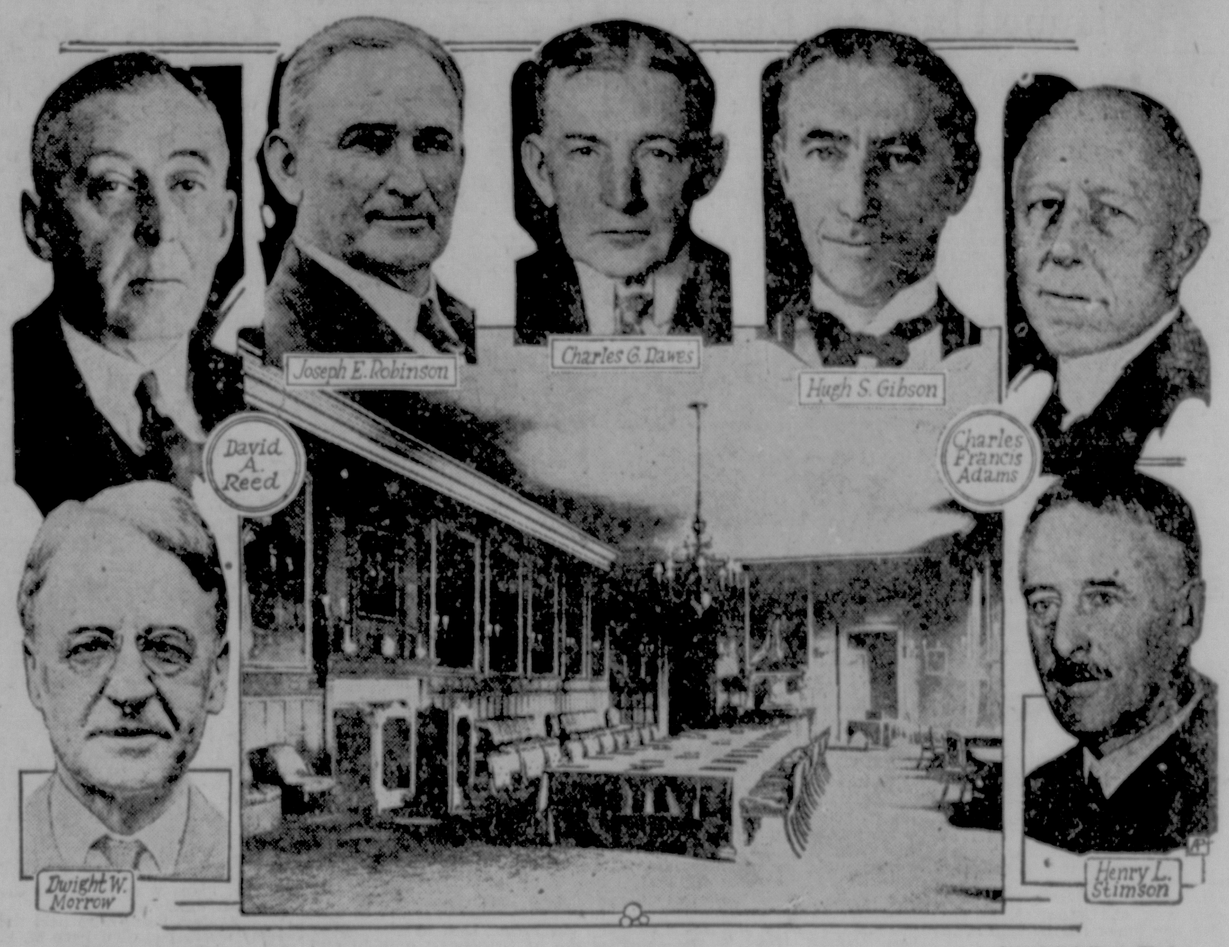

The past holiday season proved to be homecoming for many of the graduates of the college of engineering. Among those who visited on the campus were Floyd F. LeFever, '28, with the United States geological survey, on hydrographic work in Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska at the present time; Frank C. PULLS WILLIAM TELL STUNT; 90 DAYS IS REWARD

BOSTON, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—That it doesn't pay to do a Wm. Tell act in these days of high-powered civilization and shooting a pipe out of a fellow's mouth with a "gat" instead of an apple off the human roof-tree with a bow and arrow, is the conviction of Guovanni Vennal of Boston's North End.

Vennal was sentenced to three months for the stunt, although he claimed that Pasquale Papasatero, the other actor in the little drama of real life, threatened him with a knife. They wanted ot give Vennal more time as a "dangerous man," but the court couldn't see it. The defendant, according to the testimony, fired four shots, but the only damage done was Papasatero's broken pipe.

Will a National Murder Trust Be Revealed by New York Inquiry?

(By International Illustrated News).

Sensational developments are expected in connection with investigation of the "holdup" of guests at the testimonial dinner recently to Magistrate Albert H. Vitale in New York. Police Commissioner Grover Whalen was in Chicago, seeking to link the underworld slayings of Frankie Marlow and Frankie Yale with the underworld "murder trust," where killings are contracted for at so much per head.

A man may be put on the spot or taken for a ride for as little a sum as $20,000, payable in installments if you wish. The executioner collects $2,500, the trust gets $5,000 cash and the rest in installments. The motive behind the Vitale dinner holdup is alleged to have been the securing of a murder contract in the possession of a Chicago gangster who was a guest at the dinner. The dinner was arranged, the unknowing Chicagoan was "put on the spot," and when the holdup men went through the pockets of the guests the contract was among the loot.

This contract called for $20,000 and is believed to have had some reference to the killing of Frankie Yale in Brooklyn more than a year ago.

These sensational facts were gathered from evidence presented at the departmental trial of Detective Arthur C. Johnson, who was a guest at the Vitale dinner and who was compelled to surrender his gun to the holdup men at that time. Detective John J. Donovan, of the New York police department, intimated, when questioned at the Johnson hearing, that the Vitale dinner holdup was "staged" and that many of the guests knew in advance of the impending invasion and robbery.

FOOD MILEAGE

FUELING the household machine is an important item these days. After all, on the road of daily life, most of us have to get the last mile out of every dollar we spend.

High food mileage means careful buying . . . thoughtful selection of the foods that not only suit the tastes and physical needs of the family, but the pocketbook as well.

That's the value of advertising. Every day, here in your paper, are presented new and interesting food ideas. New ways of preparing old, reliable favorites. New combinations of the foods the family needs . . . in ways they'll like.

Standard, unvarying quality is the outstanding feature of advertised merchandise in general . . . and of food products in particular. Quite a factor in getting high food mileage!

BY FRANCES ELLIOTT.

BETTER days are ahead for the blood- pressure bunnies and the morphine frogs for today these experimental animals of the University of Nebraska are basking in the ultra violet rays of their new home, a cherry red, frame structure on the east side of the pharmacy building.

Before they were moved Saturday, the five hundred dogs, cats, guinea pigs, frogs, turtles, and white rats of the physiology department were crowded in the pharmacy building attic, a gloomy, cobwebby place more suited to the telling of spooky stories than the raising of animals for scientific study.

Now things are different. For Dean R. A. Lyman, who instigated the sanitary quarters planned them carefully for many months before the work of construction was started about the middle of November.

Skylights Are Installed.

To begin with,an expensive quartz glass was used in the windows admitting all the health-giving, ultra violet rays so that the animals will thrive the year around as if they were basking in the summer sunshine of a country pasture. Skylights of quartz and three large electric lights equipped with quartz bulbs further insure the health of the animals.

Summer temperature, seventy degrees also will be maintained in the rodent sanatorium,, as the students have dubbed the place, for the exterior of ship lap lumber is lined with drop siding, a thick tar paptr, and the inside walls are of composition boards.

Around the inside runs a steam line, so that the cages may be sterilised twice a week with live steam, and the cement of the floor extends about a foot up the sides of the walls making it possible to cleanse the place thoroughly every day.

As for the inhabitants of this ideal house, they are in metal cages in orderly tiers allowing plenty of space and air. The dogs and cats are at the bottom and the cages of the smaller animals are placed on top. While they may cafe at their prison walls, at least they are better fed, healthier, and peppier than manjof their brothers who are free.

Former Home In Attic

To realize the change, take an imaginary trip to their former home in the garret. Step carefully for the winding stairway is narrow and the light is dim. Not much more cheerful is your destination. Dust is thick on the piles of old boxes and discarded apparatus and through the gloom shine the cats' eyes for they are allowed the freedom of the place.

An energetic barking and rustling greets your entrance into the room where are the caged animals. Adding to your discomfort is the strongly disagreeable odor of chloride of lime used to disinfect, combined with the stuffiness of the room.

"With so many animals," says Dr. Lyman, "the danger of vermin cannot be guarded against too carefully." So the animals are kept in a room that almost suffocates one unused to it.

Just as in a fairy story attic, the tiny windows are covered with cobwebs and let in almost no light only a chill. In spite of these unfavorable conditions the dogs seem fairly happy and are sleek enough. This, according to Dr. Lyman is becaust they are fed cod liver oil containing fat soluble vitamin A. The white rats also seem contented and cling with their pink claws to the wire of their cages. You must go down in the basement to see the old haunts of the frogs, and turtles in two small damp cages.

Experimenting Is Painless.

Why all this fuss about simple, ordinary animals? While they are quite unaware of it all, they are actually invaluable to the work of the physiology department. Effects of poisons, stimulants and glandular changes on the human body are learned by the students who experiment on these animals.

emphatially pointed out, "is ever "Not a bit of pain," Dr. Lyman felt by any of these animals. Thev are always killed or anesthesized before any experiments are tried on them. That they suffer or that we are in any way cruel to them is all fiction.

"Cold blooded animals, such as frogs and turtles are used to show muscle contraction and nerve impulses, while the working of the organism as a whole under poison or stimulant is studied with warm blooded animals, rabbits, dogs, and cats."

For instance the effect of caffeine on muscular action is discovered by killing a frog andimmersing the muscles which continue to live for many hours after the frog is dead, in a caffeine bath. The activity of these muscles is then compared with that of untreated muscles. The same is done with alcohol and morphine.

Tests Made On Turtles.

Heart contration is noticed with turtles since difference in temperature has little effect on the results. Thus how caffeine, morphine and such drugs stimulate the heart is shown in clear object lessons to the physiology students.

Old fashioned shepherd dogs are used for many experiments. "One might think," explainsDr. Lyman, "thet the supposedly tenacious bulldog or the German police dog would be adapted to this, but not so. Instead of surviving under ether, they keel over and are of no value.

Determination of normal and abnormal heart beats is accomplished with dogs and the use of an electro cardiograph which makes a graph of the heart action. And, of course, the curve of the heart beat of a dog which has been treated with stimulant differs from that of the ordinary one.

The guinea pigs, tender looking little animals, are used to detect he effect of poisons such as digitalis, a medicine used for organic heart diseases, cobra poison, and ricin, as well as immunization from these poisons. Since they are very sensitive they react quickly to the absence of certain vitamins and are invaluable in this field.

Study Effect of Poisons.

Very important among the rabbits, which breed rapidly are are extremely susceptible. They are used in studying poisons and blood pressure. Cats are used the same as are dogs and guinea pigs, while chickens figure inthe study of ergot, a poison.

are better left to scientists. Enough that daily students are learning

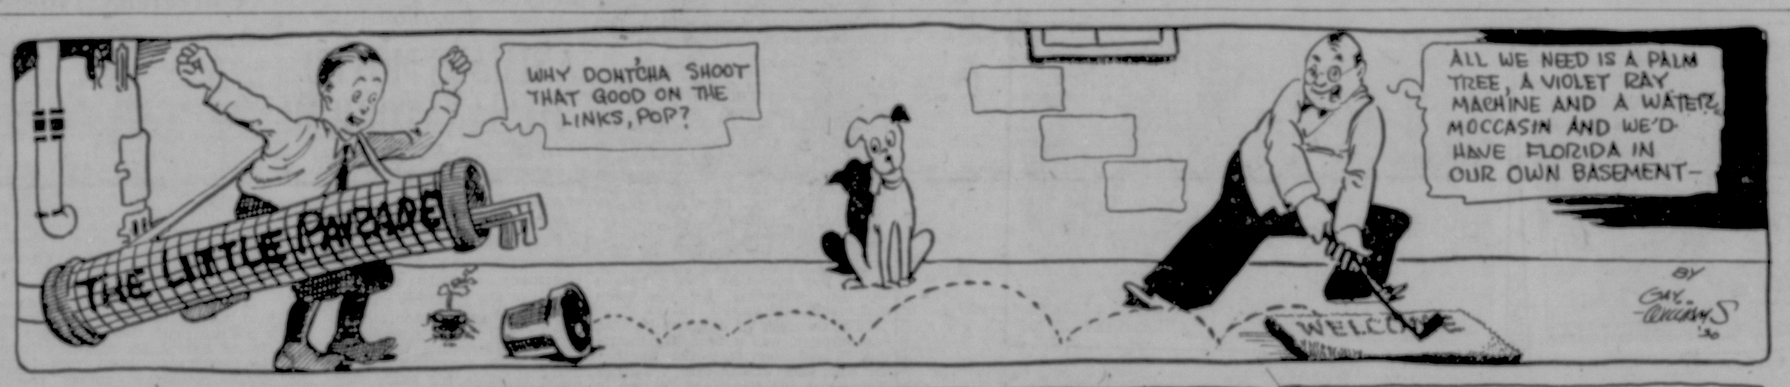

Perhaps the details of their use from experimenting with these animals facts which make them more efficient doctors, pharmacists, dentists, teachers, and psychologists.

Not the least of the fascination of such a scientific zoo is the story of its assembling. The immaculate looking white rats really are thoroughbreds. They are all of Wistar institute stock used because their habits and resistance are enough alike in all the members of the family to conduct efficient experiments. Otherwise changes in the animals' activity might not indicate the result of a stimulant but a difference between the animals.

Many Frogs Used.

Cats are bought for a dollar each, while dogs are bred there. Professor Leunis Van Es of the agricultural college provides Dr. Lyman with quantities of rabbits all of one breed. The original home of the frogs may be in any of a nmber of commercial frog ponds in Illin-

FARM WIVES FIND NEW INTEREST IN HOME

WOMEN GAIN NEW VISIONS OF BRIGHTER, HAPPIER, AND MORE COMFORTABLE HOMES FROM ORGANIZED AGRICULTURE SESSIONS.

THE women who attended their special sections of Organized Agriculture have returned to their homes.

As they clean the separator or do the morning's churning, while they bake the bread, wash the dishes, and peel the potatoes, they are mentally reviewing the sessions. Beds are made to the memory of some pertinent remarks of a specialist in her line, chickens are fed to the thought of interesting possibilities in enlarged extension work, hems are blind stitched in the recollection of the inclusive suggestions offered.

To the neighbors who did not go, the three days were merely a vacation in a dull time of the year. They offered a change, of course, from three meals a day, four walls of home, and sixty demands an hour from four to ten youngsters and adults.

The thinking woman knows that half week was far more than a vacation. And were she not a thinking woman, with a desire to raise her home life to the highest ultimate standards, she would not have gone to the home economics meetings, and taken actual and mental notes on vital points given.

As she looks back upon it, she finds she had a short course in art, biology, budgeting, home management, room arrangement, self-improvement more fundamental than a cosmetician can give, kitchen equipment, interior decorating, child study, adult education, and half a dozen tangents of each of these studies. Of course, only the surface of each subject was brushed, but the speakers confined themselves to the probable backgrounds of these hearers, so that each one could have a definite gain and an insight that would give her opportunity to think for a long time.

Children Demand Study.

They found that child study was more than a term. A subject that could well engage their attention.

That young Johnny or Mary represents only half of the parental characteristics was the theory of Dr. D. D. Whitney, university zoologist. Mothers who attended the sessions will more than ever regard their children as individuals, instead of trying to see in them small replicas of the parents. With those little beings such an unknown quantity, half of that elusive self inherited from some more or less remote, accumulated past the other half subject to—it has been said—17,000,000 combinations of the parent's characteristics, child study was brought to the listeners as a vital need, even though the idea came incidentally through a biological lecture.

Dr. Harlan C. Koch presented a similar thought:

"Parents must not attempt to solve a trial-and-error problem by rule-of-thumb methods. The child is a spiritual being—an unknown quantity. He refuses, and has refused, since the race began, to be compressed into a standard pattern. This means that we are dealing wtih soul stuff.

"The rearing of children demands a clear knowledge of the issues involved. The principle of precedence of values applies here."

Finds Own Place.

Perhaps many of them went home with a clearer idea of their own vital place in the farm home. After all, it is the women who have undertaken farm life who have made Nebraska's better farm life possible, but their position as home managers was definitely and frequently recognized at the sessions. They learned that this recognition has been a logical outgrowth starting first with preparation of food, and later its preservation, then interest in clothing, followed by detailed study of foods and nutrition, and then a gradual larger interest, to include home standards and efficiency of the home maker.

Since women have become interested in budgeting and home accounts, in balanced menus and vitamins, much of their interest has been objective. The three days sessions undoubtedly encouraged many of them to become intro-spective and to wonder if a little interest in self might not well be included with other modern interests.

Some evening, when the children are in bed, and she's doing a little mending, some attendant at the sessions of last week, this one representative of the number who were there, will go over in this brief half-leisure an outline personal standard of her physical and mental well being, as prepared by Miss Mary Rokahr. It's highly possible they can't check each item in the affirmative, but the suggestions are stimulating, at least, and like others gained at the sessions, illuminating for future attention.

For her physical well being, she will check, or fail to check, these ideas on air and light, ventilation in kitchen during the day, open windows at night, good light for work and reading, humidity throughout the house, and, further, for the same purpose, these items on good nutrition for health, wise selection of food for self and family, correct weight for age and height, sufficient time for eating, 20 minutes per meal, a physical examination annually.

Can Battle Fatigue.

Under the same general heading she is asked about her posture, does she sit and stand correctly, climb steps properly, sit down whenever possible when doing household tasks, and have correct work surfaces. Fatigue also comes in for its share of attention, and under this is mentioned good sleep at night, a rest period of 10 or 20 minutes daily, a plan of work to avoid over doing, disorder, confusion and hurry, fresh air and sunlight once each day outdoors, and the wearing of comfortable clothing.

Because a mind has great influence on health. Miss Rokahr also considered mental well being in her standards. Under attitude, she listed a dozen divisions definite home making goal, define housekeeping goal, her attitude toward homemaking, favorable or unfavorable, a sense of humor, the ability to laugh when inconsequential things go wrong, cheerfulness, interest and enthusiasm, freedom from worry, attractive dressing at home, co-operation, desire to make home enjoyable for the family, desire to have people enjoy visiting the home, and interest and part in community activities.

For mental poise, Miss Rokahr also advised wise planning, and she divides that thought into system, efficient methods, short cuts, efficient tools, wise expenditure of money household task schedule for the family. Although the amount of leisure time for farm women seldom amounts to more than two hours, this brief hour or so can be used for the woman's benefit. If she lives up to the suggestions, she takes some time each week to do something entirely different, for play, for reading something worthwhile, once each week, or to develop appreciation of music, books, pictures, birds, and flowers.

A Fresh Start.

It is highly probable these women are viewing their homes in a new light now. Even a short absence makes home seem a different place, and we view its defects or appreciate its charms with more understanding eyes. The easy chair under the lamp may appear very attractive, or the picture we scarcely ever notice through familiarity may suddenly appear a hideous thing.

The talks were all centered about different phases of home. When it was suggested that nine hundred odd dollars would furnish a living odd dollars would furnish a living room in a certain fashion, little murmurs of astonished amusement went around. They carried the thought "If I had $900—"

However, the women of organized agriculture learned from that speaker, and others, certain facts about room arrangement that each can apply to her own rooms, without an outlay of a copper, only with a little masculine cooperation in moving the heaviest pieces. Many little things were illustrated, which make an ordinary room into an interior-decorated sort of place, with only understanding of certain simple rules of arrangement necessary.

They all liked Chancellor Burnett's idealistic description of a farm home:

"It should be a shelter for the family, affording creature comforts, contentment, and physical well being. In its large sense it should be a spiritual blending of the ideals of husband, wife, and children in a common purpose. Cooperation in the interest of the family welfare should be its highest joy. Beauty of plan and harmony of arrangement will not be absent—cultural influences will be there.

"Restfulness and refreshment will ever be present, but the dominant note of such a home will be purposeful and effective living, directed by a will of the master homemaker, whose experience and courage give effectiveness to her labors."

Hints For Homes.

On that basis they were interested in hearing actual suggestions of Miss Evelyn Metzger and Miss Bess Steele for harmony in the rooms of rural homes. They were simple and clear hints, and as the speakers were talking, the women were busy taking notes that later will come into fact in many homes.

When they do make the change seeming suitable in the room, Miss Metzger urged them not to return to the old arrangement, if the new seems correct, for at least a week. If dissatisfaction continues, replace the furniture, and as a rule, it will be found that the old way of haphazard, criss cross arrangement of furniture, is no longer pleasing.

The women learned that it is well to put the large pieces in the center or near the center of each wall, and to place rugs parallel to the walls. A hall with long stretches of wall, a dining rom, bed rooms, if personally desired, are suitable for figured paper, but never in the living room, "where folks congregate." Small objects should be placed according to four rules, relationship in size and character, grouping, symmetrical balance, and placing for use and comfort.

If the floppy doll or the artificial flowers seem out of place, don't hestate to take them to the attic—or the waste bin, from which they can't be reclaimed. "Anything that is not useful and is used only as decoration must be good art."

Careful Purchasing.

Miss Mary Mason of the equipment laboratory and Miss Metzger had one thought in common—the women noticed. To consider if the ulttimate need justifies not only the expense, but the time, labor, and energy consumed in caring for the object. Miss Metzger urged her hearers not to purchase until after proper consideration, and then not to buy until it can be visualized in the place where it is to go—Miss Mason advised her listeners not to purchase any equipment until it was fully determined that the kitchen could not go on without it.

Pictures may be pictures, but their hanging, framing, and position tend to add to or substract from the charm of the room. Bright colored decorative prints or etchings for the hall—landscapes, marines, and fine portraits for the living room—garden scenes, fruit or flower pictures, done in a gay decorative manner, for the dining room—etchings, engravings, and historical scenes in the library—personal pictures in the bedrooms—and a colored print or two for the kitchen—that was Miss Steele's outline of suitable pictures. The frames should carry out the color and feeling of the picture, but should be minor in importance, picture should be hung so that they relate themselves to the other furniture, and, they appear best on a wall quieter than the picture.

They found these figures interesting, too,—as a possible basis for intensive study in their own lives. The results of a survey in thirty-seven half section farms showed gross receipts to be an average of $3455 annually, operating expenses, $3000, leaving a balance of $455 to care for $1600 deemed necessary by the women for living essentials, leaving a deficity of $1145. Are we living under those conditions, pondered the women who were listening to the speaker, and who carried the thought home with them.

The fields about their homes are bare today. The little grass plots and the gardens are softened by snowy drifts. In it, the women are seeing a certain, promising, austere beauty. While the burned out brown of late July and August, if not so beautiful, they may be thinking of the plea of Mrs. Paul Whisenand, a farm woman like themselves who has found time for active club work, "not to fail to see the beauties of the farm. The young calves, the little lambs, the green meadows, green trees, green grass, each its own shade of green—those make the real beauty."

Army Posts at Fort Crook and Fort Robinson Reminders of Perilous Days in Nebraska

Shown here are views of Fort Crook and Fort Robinson, two reminders of military activity during colonization of Nebraska. Pictured are: 1. Officers quarters at Fort Robinson. 2. Mounted troops of field artillery at Fort Robinson. 3. Airplane view of Fort Crook with wagon trains passing in review.

REMINISCENT of the days when Indian bands roved the country and menaced the lives and property of the early residents and the treasure and home seekers, making their way across the prairies of Nebraska in snail fashion, with their faces set to the golden west, two army posts in Nebraska are reminders of the pioneer days of peril.

With every advance of civilization and settlement the way was disputed by the Indians who viewed the influx of settlers and travelers as a threat to their ancient right of domain. To them the plains were given by the Great Spirit. That divine being gave them buffalo, elk and antelope for their exclusive enjoyment. The whites were trespassers whose presence must be resisted at any cost.

To protect white settlers and make the trails safe across the plains a number of army posts were established in Nebraska and some of them are rich in memories of visits of great generals and some have histories of great service to the settler people. All but two have either been totally abandoned or diverted to some other use. These are Fort Crook, near Omaha, and Fort Robinson, near Crawford.

Fort Crook.

Fort Crook is the largest garrison military post in the state and comprises one square mile of land. It is now garrisoned by the Seventeenth United States infantry under command of Col. C. A. Trott. The troops are recruited from Nebraska and neighboring states. It is the proud boast of the post that the Seventeenth infantry on two hours' notice could be prepared to leave on a mission of military service, fully equipped for the field and ready to protect life and property.

Fort Crook has an excellent landing field where army and commercial planes are constantly arriving and departing. It is the regular stop of the transcontinental mail planes. A fine band is stationed there.

Every summer the post is the scene of unusual activity. In July the embryo reserve officers from the universities meet there for instruction in military science and in August Nebraska boys gather for the summer school of the Citizens' military training camp.

Fort Crook, named for Gen. George Crook, is noted for its well kept quarters, barracks and grounds which are said to be the neatest in the army.

Fort Robinson.

Fort Robinson was established by executive order of President Grant in 1876 and then embraced seven square miles of territory. The present area of the post is 12,000 acres. The federal wood reserve adjoins the post and contains about 10,000 acres. Some of the adobe quarters for officers, erected in 1887, are still standing and in use. The permanent brick quarters and barracks for men and stables and hospitals were erected in 1912.

In July, 1919, Fort Robinson was made a remount depot and is one of the largest army depots of that nature. The activities of the post consist of breeding, conditioning, receiving and shipping horses and mules for army service.

The troops at Fort Robinson are the Fourth Field Artillery battalion, Pack Artillery, which was transferred from the Mexican border in 1928. In addition there are detachments of medical and veterinary corps. The Seventy-sixth Field Artillery band is a recent addition to the post. The approximate population of the post is five hundred.

The grounds of this post are replete in scenic beauty. Rugged hills and outcroppings of rock, pines and mountain verdure give a delightful setting for soldier life. Thusands of visitors visit or drive through the grounds on a fine gravelled highway each year.

Contrary to general belief these military posts are not closed reservations. Visitors are welcome. Guard mount, retreat and other daily observances of military life are of unusual interest to visitors.

Lost In Famous Blizzard Of 1888, Nebraska Pioneer Spent Night Safely In A Snowdrift

The following account of pioneer experiences during the famous blizzard of 1888 was writetn by M. D. Thompson, son of George N. Thompson, Holt and Garfield county pioneer.

"In the spring of 1883 there came from the mountain regions in Pennsylvania one George N. Thompson and settled at Atkinson, Holt county, Nebraska, with his wife and two small boys, one three years old, that is me, and one, one year old.

"After staying in Holt county for four years and fighting drouths and grasshoppers my father got a chance to sell out and in the spring of 1887 after looking around quite a bit he homesteaded in Garfield county about forty miles south of where we had been living in Holt.

"After some preliminaries, we loaded the most of our worldly effects on an old farm wagon and with a couple ponies and a couple cows wended our way south to the land of promise. After about three or four days plowing through the sand and wilderness we arrived at our new selected home. There was not as much as a post hole on it in the way of improvements.

Built Sod House.

After unloading our small amount of household effects we unloaded the wagon box and fixed up a place to live while we were building a sod house. When I say we, I mean dad and mother as we kids were just five and seven years old so we couldn't be of much assistance in building a house.

The first thing we had to do was dig a well and that wasn't much of a job as it didn't have to be very deep. We used the hoe and a bucket to draw water with. Well, everything went along very smoothly that summer. We raised some garden and some potatoes. In the fall we put up all the hay we needed to feed our stock and to burn in the stove.

"I remember how we kids used to sit by the cook stove and twist up hay in knots and keep the fire burning so mother could cook and bake, and it wasn't any uncommon thing for us to let it go out and spoil the bread. Well, Christmas always come around and it did that year to. Only Santy didn't seem to have much left when he got to our house. Well, the holidays over and we being very low on provisions, father took the ponies and made a trip back to the old place in Holt county.

"We still had some rye and some wheat over there and a little credit at the store at Atkinson and father exchanged the grain for flour and got a limited supply of some of the common kinds of groceries and a supply of ammunition. We always depended on the gun for meat as there was all kinds of game in the sandhills at that time and father was good at getting it.

Blizzard Strikes.

"Father got his supplies and a lot of things for the neighbors and was on his way home. He went prepared to stay wherever he was when night caught him.

"The morning of January 12, 1888 came and it was a beautiful morning. It had been very nice weather for that time of the year. Father stopped at the last place he had to leave some things he had brought from town, and of course the mail and he stayed there longer than he should so he hadn't gone far on his last lap when that memorable blizzard struck.

"He was about four miles from home and going nearly with the storm. The snow was so fine and coming so fast that it was soon dark as night. I remember we had to light the lamp and if we opened the door we couldn't see an arm's length into that storm. There wasn't any road, only a dim trail in the prairie grass and that soon filled up with snow so he couldn't follow it. When he passed the buildings he was close enough that he heard the dogs bark but he couldn't locate it.

He tried to turn around and go back but he couldn't make the horse face that storm. He thought he could drift wit hthe storm and hit a ranch farther south till he was just about to drive off into the Little Cedar creek. When he got stuck in a snowdrift he couldn't go forward or backward and the team was played out so he just unhitched them and tied them to the back of the wagon and gave them some feed and took some quilts he had along and after digging a hole in that snow drift he used the quilts to line it with and turned in for the night.

Sleeps In Drift.

"He was awful tired and it wasn't long until the wind had him covered up so he was just a part of that drift. When he woke up he was nearly smothered and after some difficulty he succeeded in digging out and found that the wind had gone down and that it had quit snowing and the sun was shining and it was January 13. He was bewildered and didn't know where he was so he just got out the scoop shovel he had along and started to dig the wagon out and it must have taken several hours to do it.

"After he finally got out the horses were exhausted and he was too. He hit a dim trail and followed it for several miles and it finally led him to Somers ranch. That was about ten or twelve miles from home. Of course, we knew he was to be home the twelfth and there was some concern when he didn't get there.

"The next day when the storm had abated the hay was all blowed full of snow and wouldn't burn and the most of it was snowed under so we couldn't get it at all. We were practically out of provisions and the well was froze up so we couldn't get any water. But thanks to the old cow, she sure saved the day. But you known that even a cow has to have water to give milk.

Sadness In Home.

"Of course, mother didn't think it was possible for any one to survive that storm and there was a lot of sadness at our house. Of course, we kids were to small to realize the situation. I think it was the extra work that she had to do that kept mother from breaking down entirely. We had a few chickens and she got one that had its feet froze and got up some real chicken dumplings, using corn meal as we had no flour.

"Well, you will have to use your imagination to help you understand the joy and surprise on January 15. Just a little before sundown father and the old ponies came driving into the yard, having taken all that time to fight his way back through those snowdrifts.

"I might add that he caught cold and was laid up for a long time. I could write a book about those good old times that we hear the younger generation tell about but won't do it at this time.

ois or Wisconsin. They are purchased by the gross, and the classes use from one to five gross a week.

Pure Leghorn chickens used in the work are bred at the college of pharmacy as are the guinea pigs.

One of the greastest advanages of the new quarters, according to Dr. Lyman will be the possiblity of doing more breeding there. While this is more expensive, they are far more valuable for study since the ancestry gives many clues to the eccentricities of certain animals.

E. E. Blackman, curator of the state historical society, spoke to the women's club at Bethany, Tuesday afternoon, on "Nebraska Indians." A group of Camp Fire girls also attended the program.

Prof. Clark Mickey was a speaker at a public meeting held in Minden, last week, where he spoke on the conservation, utilization, and control of water resources in Nebraska. Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska senior senator, appeared at this same meeting.

L. W. Hewitt of the conservation and survey division, has accepted a position with the Continental Oil Co. at San Antonio, Tex. This is the fourth man taken from the Nebraska geological survey recently by large companies, Jerry Upp, Stephen Brock and M. E. Upson having been the trio to accept other positions previously. Mr. Hewitt has done special research on the Dakota group of beds in Nebraska and adjacent areas, reading a paper on a phase of this research at the recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science held in Des Moines. An average of one man every four months has been employed from the Nebraska division, by large companies.

Meetings of the state well drillers association will be held on the campus, January 29 and 30, in the geological survey division. More than a hundred members are expected to attend. The association is sponsored by the United States geological survey and the state geological survey. A. G. Fiedler of the U. S. survey will be the principal speaker at the meetings. C. J. Frankforter, Dr. A. L. Lugn, Prof. M. I. Evinger and Dr. George E. Condra are also on the program.

Iron Horse Built 100 Years Ago Was Forerunner of Modern Engine, Capable of Pulling Two-Mile Train

(By International Illustrated News.)

Just one hundred years ago a steam locomotive was matched against a horse and the horse won! Looking at the gigantic locomotives in use today, it seems scarcely credible that the tiny engine built by Peter Cooper blazed the trail for steam locomotion in America.

The history of the railroad in America is closely entwined with the career and memory of Peter Cooper, although the building of it was but an incident in the life of this great philanthropist and equally great engineer. Cooper, with two other men, had arranged to buy three thousand acres within the city limits of Baltimore in the wave of enthusiasm that had swept the country subsequent to the plans to build the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. Eventually he became the owner of the whole tract, but at first was forced to shoulder the whole financial burden himself. Thus he became interested in the railroad, and found that things were not progressing favorably with the company.

It was realized here, following the successful tests and runs in England, that the age of steam had arrived. But the nature of the country over which the proposed railroad was to run forced the engineers to make curves with a radius of 400 feet and grades of 18 feet to the mile, while English engineers predicted failure for anything less than a 900-foot curve. And thus Peter Cooper entered the lists with an offer to build an engine that would successfully negotiate the road and haul loads upgrade. The result was "Tom Thumb," with its boiler twenty inches in diameter and five feet high. The boiler tubes were made out of old musket barrels, and the engine was mounted on a vehicle roughly resembling a modern handcar.

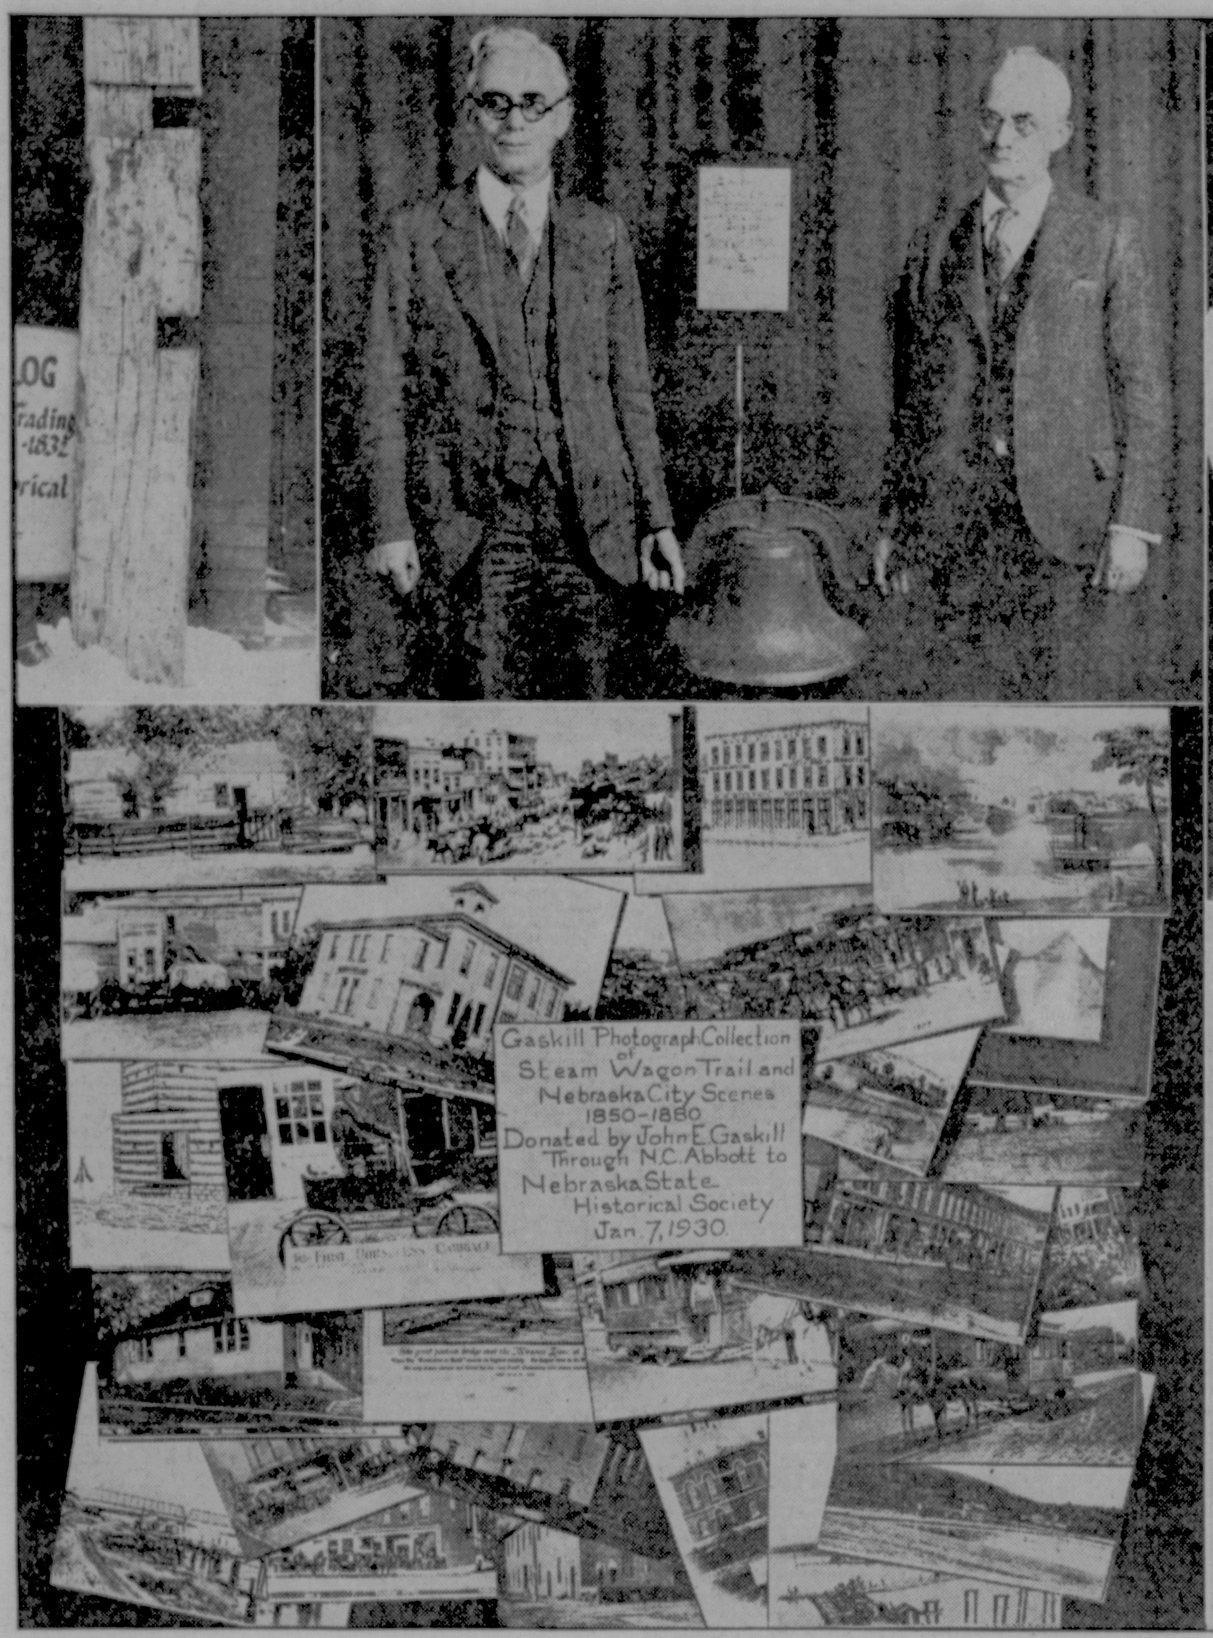

The trial run of the Tom Thumb was made from Baltimore to what is now known as Ellicott City in Maryland. The distance was thirteen miles, and the little engine propelled a car with eighteen passengers at a speed that varied from five to eighteen miles an hour. The outward journey was in the nature of a triumphal procession, but on the way home it was the loser to a horse, because of mechanical trouble.

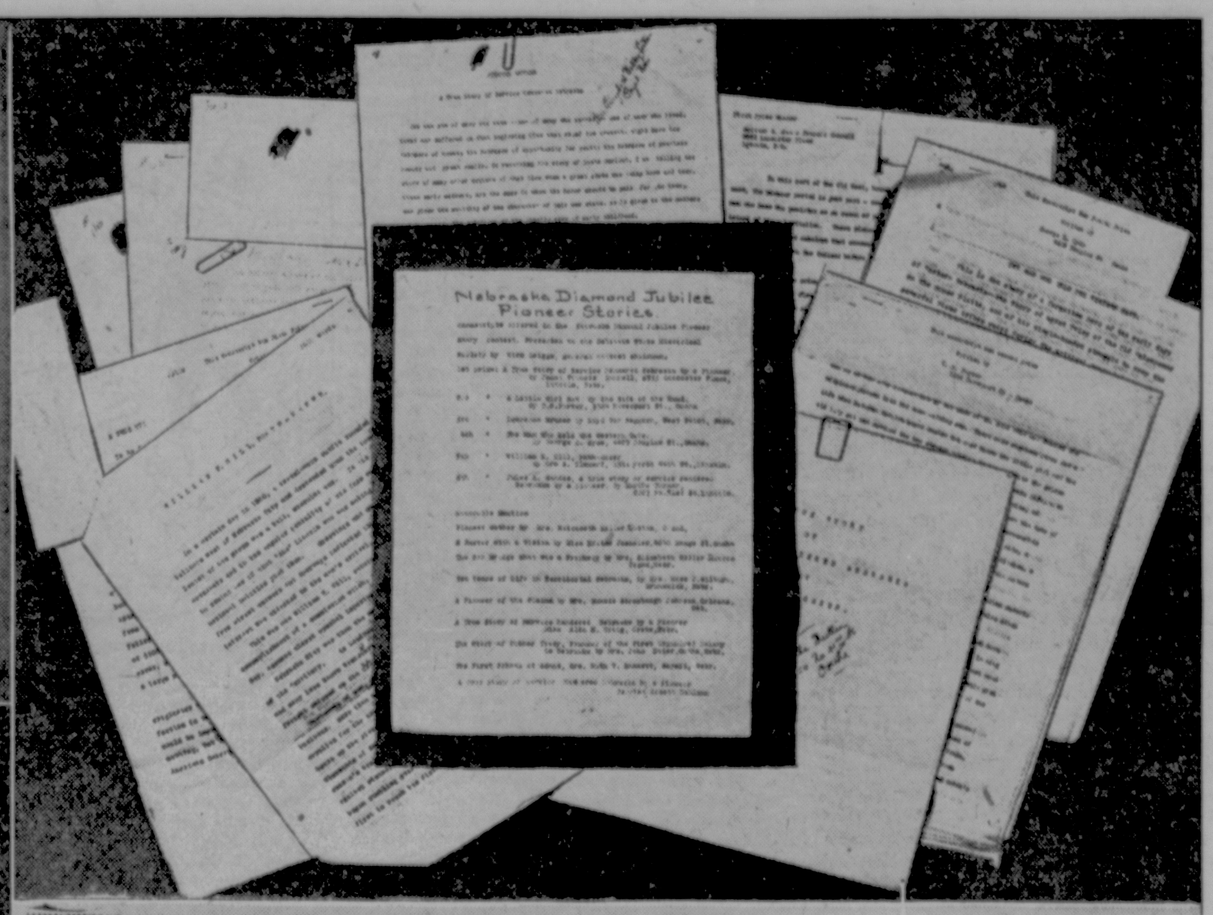

The failure, however, did not cloud the importance of the test, and Cooper, who had successfully demonstrated the practicability of his engine, soon succeeded it with more powerful locomotives, and on the wave of enthusiasm that followed the introduction of steam locomotion, the railroad traveled the road to success. The company has still in its possession, parts of Tom Thumb, grand daddy of all its enormous engines.

Soon the world's greatest locomotive will be put into commission. It will be capable of hauling a two-mile-long train, and will consume in an hour sufficient coal to keep two houses of the family type warm for an entire winter. But it is safe to say that the Northern Pacific railroad won't regard their giant engine with more pride than did the practical dreamers who laid the first tracks of the iron network that has contributed immeasurably to he greatness of our country when they watched Tom Thumb do its stuff.

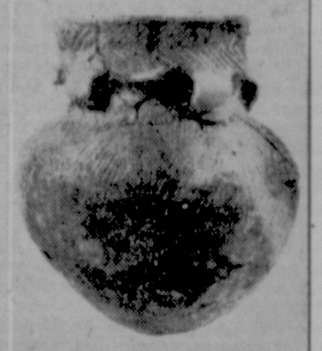

VALUABLE MEMENTOES OF EARLY NEBRASKA PRESERVED

STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY RECEIVES PRICELESS RELICS, RARE PHOTOGRAPHS, AND MANUSCRIPTS DESCRIPTIVE OF PIONEER DAYS

—Photos from Nebraska State Historical Society.

During the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Historical society last Tuesday, a number of unusually interesting presentations of relics of Nebraska's early days were made to the organization which is seeking to preserve manuscripts and actual mementoes of the state's and territory's beginning.

On the left is a cottonwood log three-quarters again as tall as a man, from the Peter A. Sarpy Indian trading post at Bellevue, which was built between 1822 and 1832. Roy Sorenson of Fort Crook made the gift. In the center is a dinner bell, used by the parents of the donors, John M., and William L. McAllister, as early as 1865 in Otoe county. The sons, who brought the gift, are shown with the bell. The upper right shows the prize and honorable mention manuscripts of the diamond jubilee contest, presented by Kirk Griggs, general chairman of the jubilee pioneer story contest. The center square gives the names of the winners and of those awarded honorable mention. They include "A True Story of Service Rendered Nebraska by a Pioneer," James Francis Connell, Lincoln, first; "A Little Girl Sat by the Side of the Road," T. R. Porer, Omaha, second; "Lawrence Bruner," Boyd Van Seggern, West Point, third; "The Man Who Held Up the Western Gate," George E. Hyde, Omaha, fourth; "William E. Hill, Path-Maker," Ora A. Clement, Lincoln, fifth; "Jules A. Sandoz, a true story of service rendered Nebraska by a pioneer," Martha Turner, Lincolin, sixth; "Pioneer Mother," Mrs. Elizabeth Miller Lutton, Cozad; "A Pastor with a Vision," Erline Jaskalek, Omaha; "The Sod Bridge that was a Prophecy," Mrs. Elizabeth Miller Lutton, Cozad; "Ten Years of Life in Territorial Nebraska," Mrs. Mose J. Wilburn, Brunswick; "A Pioneer of the Plains," Mrs. Gussie Stromb augh Johnson, Orleans; "A True Story of Service Rendered Nebraska by a Pioneer," Miss Alta M. Craig, Crete; "The Story of Father Tracy, Founder of the First Organized Colony in Nebraska," Mrs. John Boler, Omaha; "The First School at Adams," Mrs. Ruth V. Bassett, Bayard; "A True Story of Service Rendered Neraska by a Pioneer," Harriet Abbott Dahlman, Omaha. The first picture in the lower row shows the photograph collection of early scenes of Nebraska life, donated by John E. Gaskill of Nebraska City. The scenes are respresentative of Nebraska from 1850 to 1880. One of the outstanding gifts is the buffalo head, pictured in the center, and found by T. J. Pinson of Platte Center in the '70s, and thought by him to be a message by an advance party with Brigham Young to a later party of Mormons. It is believed to be the only relic of its kind in existence. The remaining picture is a piece of Pawnee pottery, found on Prairie creek, and presented by John F. Mueller of Central City.

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

Jean Bart and the Admiral fought it out, hand to hand.

The little town of Dunkirk, on the French coast of the English channel, is rich in history and tradition of the sea. But its chief pride is Jean Bart, French hero and corsair, who spent most of his life there. I was in Dunkirk last July viewing the great new statue erected by the town in honor of Jean Bart. The townsfolk showed me about the little city and the coast near it. Almost everything was in some manner associated with Jean Bart. Thus will the citizens of Little Falls, Minn., two hundred and fifty years hence, show visitors the statue of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, and tell about the hero's association with all the landmarks of the country-side.

At Dunkirk I heard from patriotic lips the stories of heroism and almost superhuman daring that are associated with Jean Bart.

France was in trouble. Her enemies were many and powerful. The English and the Dutch were out to starve the French into submission. Not that there was much point to starving the French at this particular time, but war was the fashion, and everybody had his hand into some sort of scheme for conquering the world. International relations were very complicated. Corsairs were pirates part of the time and privateersmen the rest of the time, depending upon whether their country happened to be formally at war or uneasily at peace with other important nations.

Jean Bart was one of the greatest corsairs of all time. I shall pick up his story in the year 1693, when he was at the height of his exciting career.

He was "resting" in Dunkirk. The English and Dutch fleets had the harbor blockaded. Bart had command of three frigates, the Compte, 44 guns; the Hercule, 36 guns, and the Tigre, 36.

He slipped through the blockade on a dark and stormy night, and with his three frigates captured four richly laden English merchantmen, bound for Russian ports. He took the prizes into a French port, and set off after more game.

The English fleet was still guarding Dunkirk harbor, believing that Jean Bart was safely within. Fortunately for Bart, it took news a good while to travel in those days. Before the naval authorities heard of his capture of the four merchantmen, Bart had come upon the best catch of the season—eighty-six merchant vessels, mostly well laden. Bart didn't want to risk trying to herd this fleet into a French harbor. He transferred as much of the cargoes as his three frigates and a couple of tenders could hold, then ordered the English sailors into rowboats, and set fire to the merchant fleet.

After delivering his cargoes of foodstuffs at a French port, Bart made a spectacular raid upon the town of Newcastle, England, where he burned five hundred buildings, loaded up some more supplies, and made a quick dash back to France.

One more Channel raid, a few more English and Dutch merchantmen brought in, and Bart planned to return to Dunkirk, expecting to stay there for the winter. It was late in November. But he heard of a Dutch merchant fleet that was sailing under convoy of three powerful warships. Specifications of the convoy reported to Bart indicated that the enemy would have a great advantage in weight and guns, but the corsair did not hesitate to go cruising for the game.

With his 44-gun frigate, Bart attacked the 54-gun Dutchman, and his two other frigates were fairly matched against the other two Dutch warships. Bart boarded after an exchange of broadsides, and was beaten back from the deck by the determined Dutchmen. Rallying his men, many of whom were wounded, Bart gave the order to board again, and once more there was a terrific battle on the Dutch warship's deck. Most of Bart's men were killed, and the survivors were again forced back upon their own deck.

The third time, the intrepid Jean Bart gathered his handful of French fighters and ordered a final effort. The Frenchmen gained the Dutch deck and fought like madmen, but the Dutch were not such bad fighters themselves, and were in the majority. It was steel to steel, and blood mingling with blood. While the remnant of the French attacking party reeled back toward the rail, the Dutch flagship was getting up her sails. She was not going to stay longer than necessary in these waters. Bart ordered his few survivors back to the Compte. All worn and wounded, the Frenchmen lay upon their own deck and watched the Dutch flagship sail for home.

"Well," said Jean Bart, "he got away from us, boys, but there isn't much left of him, and we have the prizes we came here for."

The two French frigates had captured their warships, and, without further resistance, Jean Bart took charge of the fleet of merchantmen and shepherded it back to a French port.

The French had made arrangements with the Queen of Poland for relief from the famine that threatened the country on account of the English-Dutch blockade. The Poles had loaded three hundred vessels with grain, and these ships were lying in northern ports, awaiting a chance to sail under convoy to French ports. Jean Bart heard that there was much hunger in France, and determined to go out and bring in the ships.

The blockade of Dunkirk had been made rather tight by this time. English ships lay in force directly off the harbor, and at night or when there was fog, some of these vessels came close in and lay right across the exit channels.

Jean Bart devised a strategem that was as effective as it was clever. He collected six small vessels that were without cargo, and could make good time with a fair breeze to fill their sails. These six light sailors on a fine evening put out toward sea, from a point below Dunkirk. They coasted along until they were off Dunkirk harbor, where they hoisted lanterns in their shrouds and made sail toward the west.

The English blockade fleet was aroused by signals from its flagship, "Bart is escaping with six ships! After him!"

And the English squadron, chasing six empty little vessels, left the harbor unguarded, as Bart had expected it to do. The French corsair sailed right out with his fleet, and went in search of those Polish grain ships. This was in June, 1694.

Bart met a fleet of one hundred and thirty of the supply vessels, making for the French coast under convoy of two Danish warships and one Swedish armed vessel. It is characteristic of the muddled international relations of the time that neither the Danes nor the Swedes knew whether they were at war with England, but accepted the commission to convoy the grain fleet without any intention of fighting anybody.

The Dutch had heard that this richly laden merchant fleet was moving down from the north, and sent Admiral de Frise, known also as Hides de Vries, in charge of eight warships, to head off the supplies, however convoyed, and bring them into a Dutch port.

De Vries met the grain fleet before Bart did. He captured it without firing a gun. The Danes and Swedes explained that this was a neutral fleet, and that they were neutral, too, as far as they knew. They didn't want any part in anybody's war, but they thought they ought to be allowed to go whither they chose with Polish grain.

De Vries laughed pleasantly, and took command of the fleet.

When Bart learned that the grain fleet he had been looking for was in the hands of the Dutch, who were guarding it with eight powerful warships, he clapped on all sail. While the lookouts were straining their eyes to catch sight of the enemy, Bart was making a pep speech to his officers. Usually, the corsair was silent on the eve of battle. This time he felt it would take a little talking to inspire his fighters.

"I will take the flagship first, and will not expect aid from my other vessels in doing this. You will do your best with the others until I have pulled down the Admiral's flag. Then I can, perhaps, lend you a little aid. In any case, we'll take all of the merchantmen, and as many of the warships as will remain to fight us."

Bart ran the flagship aboard without firing a shot, and the battle was on the Dutch deck.

Admiral Vries was a giant of a man, tall and broad and dignified.

The Tournament of Roses.

Do the bathing beauties of California go in the water?

We do not know. It ain't nice to look through a keyhole.

We were a judge when Bull Montana Montana was Miss California Bull had just ordered a bowl of clam chowder and was getting ready to plunge for distance.

Fannie Brice had leased Norman Kerry's home in Beverly Hills and invited everybody to a party on the wrong date.

Having heard that Kerry's estate had a sunken garden Fanny ordered three yeast cakes.

The swimming pool is beautiful but the plumbing is extravagant.

"It costs twenty-five dollars to fill the pool," Fanny said, "I'm praying for rain."

"Are you sure it costs that much?" we asked Fanny.

"Well," she said, "I ain't tried it yet."

"I have got the house three months now. The swimming pool was nice the first week but it don't taste so good now.

"The last time they drained the pool they found three stale guests on the bottom."

Fanny wore a one-piece bathing suit in front.

She was herself in the back.

We skimmed the broccoli off the top of the pool and went down to the Pacific ocean for a swim. The bathing beauties were parading up and down the beach under gauzy galvanized roofs.

They had magnificent physiques of mascara and rouge.

There were twelve judges with keen-eyed opera glasses.

"There's a pip," said the main judge, "but there's one thing I could never understand."

"What's that?" we asked him.

"Why Lady Godiva rode a hoss," he said.

Maybe he was right. But that was before they invented chummy roadsters.

The only trouble with being a judge in a beauty contest is that the judge wants to make himself first prize.

"Yet's get out of here," wired Bull Montana, "There's a Tournament of Roses up at Pasadena."

So Bull and I went up to Pasadena and threw roses at each other until our voices started to change.

"Who started this rose business?" asked Bull who used to wade in old bottles and rags and imagine himself knee-deep in petals.

I cracked Bull in back of his neck with a red, red artichoke. He appreciated it. The last time he had been knocked unconscious was when he was grazed by a butterfly's wing.

"For thee a rose," Bull sang, as he scalloped the Mayor of Pasadena on the chin with a budding cabbage.

"Love sends a little gift of violets," warbled the Mayor as he stabbed Bull with a bouquet of cactus.

Bull is so tough that he would make Big Bertha look like an eye-dropper. He is a natural actor.

When he played the gorilla in the Murders of the Rue Morgue all he had to do was to shave the back of his neck.

No gentleman should pick his teeth with pointed lapels of his coat. During an ungarded moment Bull lowbridged an innocent jay-hopper with a handful of roses.

It was a beautiful handful of roses.

But Bull forgot to open his hand.

We were arrested free of import duty. The charge was boisterous rose throwing.

There is such a thing as being too boisterous.

Also too girlsterous.

"No more pansy Olympics for me," said Bull, "I'm going in for rhododendron rodeos."

When Bull talks like that it ain't an educational relapse.

The air was charged with the dynamic brutality of attar of roses. It was another example of the atrocities of civic pride.

Then we went to Palo Alto to see Stanford play Army in the Rose Bowl. Eleven flower girls kicked Cagle unconscious in the first half.

When they say it with flowers in California it's a command.

STANDARD OIL'S ANNIVERSARY.

Martin Van Buren was president of the United States when John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was born on July 8, 1839, at the little village of Richford, New York.

What the boyhood of this man, who was to gain the distinction of becoming the richest man in the United States, and one of the wealthiest in all the world was, may be appreciated by recalling the America of that day.

The original Nebraska bill, which was drawn to organize a great slice of that territory acquired in the Louisiana purchase, and out of which was carved six great states—Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, and North and South Dakota—was not introduced in congress until Rockefeller was 5 years of age. He was an apprenticed clerk in a commission house when the stirring battles of territorial days were being fought in this state, and he was a full partner in a commission merchants' firm at the close of that era. His first connection with the industry which was later to yield him fabulous wealth came he same year Nebraska was admitted to statehood.

In 1840, a year after Rockefeller's birth, the official census gave the United States a population of 17,065,453 people, which is about a seventh of the present population of this country. The national wealth of the country was estimated at approximately five billions of dollars, which is less than John D. Rockefeller might himself have possessed had he devoted every energy through his long and illustrious life toward making and accumulating riches. The national wealth then was only slightly greater than the amount which we spend each year for the maintenance of the federal government, and much less than we now spend annually for all of the various subdivisions of government.

These figures are recalled because Friday, the Standard Oil company, which is the monument built by Mr. Rockefeller's amazing industrial genius, celebrated its sixtieth anniversary.

It was organized in 1870 before the birth of the electric light, and nearly thiry-five years in advance of the automobile. It became a trust in the early years of the present century and was dissolved after the magnetic Teddy Roosevelt had conducted a long and bitter fight against it while he was occupying the presidency.

Thousands of other men had the same opportunity which John D. Rockefeller grasped. As a boy he came west, for Cleveland was a western city in the forties, and it was years later before he returned to the state where he was born. At the height of his career as an industrial captain, Rockefeller undoubtedly was relentless and brutal. He went after a competitor savagely and spared no one in squeezing him and driving him from the field. He and the institutions which he represented probably were not as bad as one prominent novelist of that era pictured him, and certainly the Standard Oil company when John D. Rockefeller was the most active and aggressive in the conduct of its affairs was not the concern which it is today.

Today Mr. Rockefeller is over ninety years of age. He, and all of us, have more enlightened social senses than prevailed at the time the oil capitalist was making his name feared throughtout the United States, and the mere mention of the institution with which he was connected a red flag in the faces of overwhelming masses of the American people. What he did then was the common business and industrial practice, only he was just a little more efficient at it than anyone else.

It is not the money which Mr. Rockefeller and the Standard Oil company made for which they will be remembered by countless generations to come. Since his retirement he has been outstripped in wealth, and there are in America several with fortunes greater than his. It is the use to which Mr. Rockefeller has put his wealth. He is beyond challenge the greatest philanthropist of all time. There was little of philanthropy and charity in his boyhood, and early manhood. It was years later before people developed a sense of social responsibility.

The last figures made public in connection with Rockefeller's gifts to humanity indicated he had made contributions in excess of $500,000,000. That was in 1927 and since then, no doubt, he has added enough more to raise the total to well towards three-quarters of a billion dollars.

In philanthropy John D. Rockefeller revealed the same brilliant ability which enabled him to become one of America's greatest industrial leaders for the Rockefeller Foundation represents one of most efficient organizations in the world. It has performed work, particularly in medical research, of untold value to humanity. It has conquered diseases which were scourges for centuries and in that conquest averted the frightful wastage which they entailed. Born in the age of tallow candles and covered wagons, John D. Rockefeller has moved forward progressively with each generation, understanding it and its life, sympathizing with it, and contributing to it. Few men have exerted a more profound influence upon the world than he has.

NEBRASKA YOUTH.

That was a remarkable record which the Extension department of the Nebraska College of Agriculture established in 4-H club work in 1929. The total enrollment was 12,571 boys and girls, and three out of every four who identified themselves with the organizations performed the allotted tasks. As compared with 1928, the increase in enrollment was 47 per cent, which is said to be the highest of any state in the Corn Belt. The natural result of larger registration, it was anticipated, would be a larger percentage of incompleted assignments but in Nebraska completion was 3 per cent higher in 1929 than in 1928.

The most significant development in agriculture in recent years is found in the activities of these 4-H clubs. The hundreds of thousands of boys and girls are educating themselves along the most scientific principles of farming. They are being taught the value of blooded stock, of good seed, and of careful methods of soil cultivation. It will be years before the cumulative results of this education make themselves felt. Certainly the farmer who had the advantage of the training offered in these club activities will be a better and more productive agriculturalist. He will receive greater assistance from the woman, who as a girl, likewise came to acquire a knowledge of the rural conditions which must be met while a member of the 4-H club.

Already there has been an enormous addition to the material wealth of the country by these young people. They have been raising prize hogs, and prize cattle and fine corn, all of which has been sold, and the money placed to their credit.

Nebraska should derive a deep satisfaction in the knowledge that 4-H club activities are growing for it means a better agriculture and a better citizenship.

RUSSIA'S IMPOSSIBLE TASK.

Over in Russia people engage in a different sort of bootlegging than that practiced in the United States, according to Dr. Paul Monroe, a Denver educator, who recently returned from the land of the soviets. There vodka flows freely and legally, but religion is bootlegged, parents secretly instructing their children in the faith of their ancestors.

That the efforts of the Russian dictators to eradicate religion is doomed to failure is just as certain as would be any attempt upon their part to stay the movements of the heavenly bodies. For belief in a supreme being and trust in immortality are inherent in the human mind. It is just as impossible to eliminate them as it is for the mind to function after the heart has ceased to send the life stream coursing through the veins and arteries. Since the first dawn of reason man has looked beyond mortality, and expanding intellectuality has but served to brighten the vision.

Hundreds of miles in the interior of the vast island of New Guinea exploring scienists just a few years ago found a tribe of pygmies who are still living in the stone age. Their civilization is what it was on other portions of the globe thousands of years ago. Yet these people are religious, and in everything they see manifestations of their deities. In all history there has never been a tribe or clan discovered that did not believe that there was a power more potent than themselves. In different places and among different peoples this power took on different form, but it was never absent.

Civilization nor science has served to banish this belief, for it has been held by the greatest soldiers, statesmen and philosophers of all ages. Conquerors of empires have called upon their deities to prosper them in their undertakings, and the men who have uncovered the most deeply hidden secrets of nature have bowed their heads in obeisance to a mightier power than that of mortality.

The conviction that this earthly life is not final is practically universal, and man cannot banish it from his mind if he would; while the hope of a more perfect and glorious existence is equally prevalent. Men may disagree with the religions practiced among their immediate neighbors, but they cannot, try as they may, and profess what they will, bring their own innermost souls to say, "This life is all."

The dictators of Russia may succeed in every other thing they have undertaken, but they will never be able to tear religion from the hearts of men. And as a matter of fact they will find it in their own. For when the final hour comes, and the light burns lower and lower, its last flickering gleam illumines for every man, the features of his deity.

AN OLD ART REVIVED.

Years ago nearly every Nebraska housewife knew the art of rug hooking. With their variegated bright colors, more than one pioneer home in Nebraska was made more comfortable and more attractive because mother had worked far into the night, after the other household tasks had been completed, in hooking rugs.

In most of the towns and the cities of the state rug making in the home passed out with the coming of the telephone, and the electric light, and other modern conveniences. It is still practiced to some extent upon the farm, however. Reports to the Agricultural college of the University of Nebraska indicate 944 rugs were made by Nebraska women—235 in Furnas county alone, and 147 in Otoe county.

Machinery has been perfected to such an extent that little, if any saving results, if the house wife is to credit herself with a salary for the hours which she devotes to hooking a rug. And yet there is a satisfaction to it that cannot be expressed in dollars and cents. Perhaps we would think more of our homes, and be more happy and contented in them, if we lavished more loving care in making them beautiful. Of course any woman is thrilledd with the prospect of magnificent drapes, luxurious floor coverings, costly pictures for the walls, lamps which reflect genius and individuality and all of the other accompaniments of the home furnished along modern lines. But it is not hers. She has had no part in its creation. The pride which she may have in it is a different sort than that feeling which surged over the pioneer mother as she surveyed the rug which she had wrought with her own loving hands.

That which we cherish most comes with the greatest sacrifice and the greatest labor. That which is secured without effort upon our part rarely is prized as highly. Those thousand Nebraska women, who, in 1929, hooked rugs and their homes, have an accomplishment to their credit which cannot be computed. It is a testimonial to their efforts to make home life more comfortable and more attractive.

INCREASED WHEAT ACREAGES.

Much of the winter wheat had been planted before the federal farm board began functioning. All of the fields were prepared before the new farm agency had any opportunity to begin its work towards stabilizing prices. These facts are pertinent in connection with the statement by Former Governor S. R. McKelvie of Nebraska, a member of the board, containing a warning against increasing the acreage.

The Kansas increase of 4 per cent should not be attributed to a speculative faith the farm board would raise wheat prices. Kansas farmers, with a smaller crop than in 1928, made more money on their wheat, due to the failure of the Canadian crop. Both Kansas and Nebraska sold most of their wheat when prices soared because of the drouth damage in Kansas. It was this which inspired both states to increase the wheat acreage.

But Mr. McKelvie's warning is timely. No one can say with certainty what conditions will be in 1930. In Nebraska and Kansas, however, producing more winter wheat than any other region, went into the winter with the crop in ideal condition. Here in this state the federal crop statistician placed it at 103 per cent, and with an abundance of moisture in the subsoil the outlook is bright. On top of this should the spring wheat producing states materially increase their acreage, it is inevitable that a huge surplus will tend to depress prices.

Before the federal farm board has had an opportunity to function more than two months, there is an impressive demonstration of the folly of the government endeavoring to dispose of the surplus. It would mean increased acreage each year if the farmer were to have positive assurance profitable prices would be paid. Just on the belief that the federal farm board will lift prices higher, spring wheat producing states are planting to increase the acreage.

They'll throw him into the Thames.

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. Now just what has been adjitating the natives in the public prints here lately? Course they got Xmas and New Years off their minds and are just now getting through exchanging all the presents, and so we can settle down to the serious side of life.

Its only a few days now till the opening of the big dissramament conference in London. I wanted to get over there and see what the boys were doing, but it looks like these people that I am working ro are actually going to demand some of my time here in Beverly Hills making Taces and odd sounds for the benefits of posterity.

Can you imagine just when I wanted to get to London and see what my old friends Mr. Dawes, Mr. Morrow, Joe Robinson, Dave Reed and Admiral Hilary Jones were doing, why these Fox people got the nerve to tell me I have to go to work! Just for a little I would tell them something. (A little salary.)

Course I dont need to tell you that I dont think the boys are going to do much over there. Mind you I think its a fine thing, and it may be a step in the right direction. But the road is so long that step dont make much showing. You know they say that all the education, all the learning we have is just from reading and studying what was done in the past. Everything after all according to the learned, is what was the past taught us. Mind you thats what all the educated people say. But I am kinder personally like Henry Ford. History dont mean much to me. Never mind what some other old Geeser did in 324 B. C. It's what are you doing to do in 1930. And to my mind the less you read about him the better. For no condition that existed during his time is around today. Now mind you thats only the ignorant view. We must string the educated for they are the ones that taught us what little us ignorant ones know.

Dampens the Fire.

So the educated say that everything is based on what has happened, in other words there is a historical precedent to everything. Now here is where we will lick em on their own argument in regard to the success of this conference. If there had never been a dissarmament conference in the past why we would look to this one with great anticipation. We would figure that they was going to really disarm. But since 1922 in Washington at one when I had the good fortune to be, (not as a deligate) Secretary Hughes was pinch hitting for me there, and then there was another in 1926 in Geneva. I went over on the Leviathan with our deligation. Mr. Hugh Gibson, (who was then not an ambassador as he is now but only minister to Switzerland) and a very competent man, he will be on this one too, then Admiral Jones, Admiral Andy Long, Mr. Alexander, all a fine bunch of men.

Well I went down to Geneva too, to see what they would do. Well outside of paying board they dident do anything. We had sunk and sunk at the Washington conference, till we dident have anything else left above water line, so naturally at the Geneva one, as we had nothing to sink, there was no sinking. So it flopped.

It was like going to a prohibition New Years party, there was just nothing to keep the thing going that was all. Then the next year they had another. But it did nohing. Now this is just another one. Of course mind you they will decide on some little things such as the limiting of battleships, (which are washed up anyhow) and they may do something about cruisers. But there will be nothing done about instruments of war.

If some fellow gets up and says, "What do you say about prohibiting the entire use of chemical gases during the next war?" Say they will throw that guy in the Thames river.

Don't Want War.

Suppose some deligate says, "aeroplanes are an unfair method or warfare, for they can drop things on defenseless people, what do you say we abolish them" Well I will tell you what they would say, they would say, send that deligate home and have his head examined.

Now you see what I mean by us profiting by what has taken place in history is that we have held all these dissarmament conferences and nothing has been done, so if we base the future on the past why nothing will be done. It just is not in the cards. Naturally every nation wants to protect themselves according to their own needs. They done want war. Neither do they want tobeleft mh mh mmfwyppupupupp to be left entirely defenseless, so you cant blame em. England and America may make a big too-doo about cutting down till its a parity in battleships and cruisers. But that wont mean a thing. If you and I are evenly matched, that dont mean that we wont fight. It really means that we are more liable to fight, for each will naturally think they have the edge on the other.

But the whole thing may lead to something. It sets people thinking in the right direction. But as far as doing anything to prevent war, why its not liable to do that. There has been war since the beginning of time, and we are no smarter than the people that have gone before us, so there is awful apt to be some more war. So lets sink something with em, but dont sink anything that we are liable to need.

A Supporter Turns On Simmons

(Houston Post-Dispatch)

When Senator Simmons of North Carolina launches his campaign for renomination for the senate at the hands of the democrats he will have opposed to him a candidate who in former years was his loyal supporter and warm friend, Joseph W. Bailey, who has announced that "the self-respect and inegrity of the party demand the defeat of Senator Simmons," led the campaign for Simmons's renomination in 1912, and on many occasions since has referred to the venerable senator as a man he looked upon as a father to him.

Simmons's announced opponent is no stranger to North Carolina politics. He was editor for a time of the Biblical Recorder, a Baptist periodical, and in that caapcity built up a considerable following. Later he was an active leader of the Anti-Saloon league in North Carolina. He trained with the Simmons group until 1928, when he parted company with his old comrades and undertook the leadership of the Al Smith campaign in the Old North State. The memory of his failure to put Smith across in that state is fresh. Some may have forgotten that he was defeated for governor in 1924, even though he had the Simmons support.

It will be a strange contest for the senatorship, with this former Baptist leader and Anti-Saloon league superintendent attempting to eject from the senate North Carolina's "Grand Old Man," who has served five terms in the senate and is today its oldest member. And because, according to Mr. Bailey, the senator declined to vote for Governor Smith.

Here and There

A Royal Wedding.

(The Omaha World-Herald.)

A wedding ordinarily is a happy affair, with the bride and groom, much in love, disappearing on a honeymoon to the friendly salute of rice and old shoes.

But a royal wedding may be somthing else again.

So the stories that have been told about the plans for the nuptials of Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and Princess Marie Jose of Belgum have carried an ominous note. The salute that is feared is one of bombs and bullets. Elaborate preparations have been made to guard the royal train at every frontier, and all along the travel route.

It will be a pity if Marie and Humbert can't have some of the happiness of other married folks. Her pictures represent her as a charming girl, and the prince seems to be a likable young man. She come of one of the popular royal families of Europe. The king and queen of Belgium sit securely on their thrones, their distinguished war work having endeared them to their people.

But Humbert's future looks dark. It is one that will demand of him great skill in exercising authority and great wisdom in judgment. For he will probably eb king when Mussolini, the dictator of Italy, dies, and what will happen then is a puzzle in the lap of the gods.

Italy's king now regins through tolerance of this dictator, who is content to be a puppet sit upon the throne while all the real power is in the hands of the head of the Fascisti, Will Mussolini be as compliaisant when Victor Emanuel dies? Will his growing power thrust him forward to the final step, the assumption of the throne itself, as it thrust Napoleon—his hero—to a throne?

When Mussolini dies, and a second Itadtr of Fascisti, not so strong, not so wise, not so popular, reaches for the seat of power in Italy, what will Humbert do then? Will he try to regain for the royal house its old dignity and authority? Will he seek to upset fascism? Will the new, would-be tryant decide to have done with puppet kings, and like the "mayors of the palaces" in early feudal times, finally oust the ruler?

There seem to be dark days ahead of Humbert and Marie Jose, even though they are now at the crest of life's greatest happiness. The troops along the railroad lines are harbingers of evil. All who remember the consequences of the bullet at Sarajevo on June 28, 1914, that killed Archduke Francis Ferdinand, will hope that no new atrocity, with all its simplications of war, will mark this royal wedding.

Women Can Keep Secrets.

(Boston Globe)

Lucky it is for every man who does not write his own letters that women can keep secrets. There was, of course, an ancient tradition that the women told all they knew just as fast as their tongues could wag. On this theory rumor was called "Dame Rumor" and the joke about the three ways to spread news was evolved. It ran "telegraph, telephone, tellawoman."

When the American delegation crosses over to London for the coming naval conference nearly two dozen women will go alng as secretaries. Between them they will know everything that is said and done at the meetings, but no one of them will drop a syllable of her inside information. They are steeped in a professional tradition that seals their lips. The prospect of news leaks is rather better if men, old or young, are cultivated than if attempts are made to get a stenographer to drop hints as to what is happening. Perhaps it is that fewer of the men have been disciplined in the same school of strict confidence.

Every office expects women to keep secrets. If they should cease to do so the business world would suffer tremors such as are only felt during the crisis of a financial panic.

A Sepoy Reminder.

(The Oklahoman)

Indian nationalists may never press their demands for independence and war might not ensue even if the Indians should declare their country's independence of the British crown, but the stirring of the spirit of freedom in the far east may easily lead to real war. And memories of the Sepoy uprising and of the tragedies of Cawnpore tell us how fearful war may be when waged between the British and Indian forces.

Religious fanaticism rather than the yearning for freedom precipitated the murderous conflict of the last century. Sepoy anger is said to have been aroused by the action of army officers in furnishing native troops cartridges greased with tallow, which was regarded as a mortal insult by religionists of the Indian type. Because of the tallow, insurrection developed, and this insurrection led to a murderous and merciless war. In the war which waged because cartridges had been dipped in tallow the names of Campbell and Havelock became mighty names in the military annals of Britain, while the names of Cawnpore and Lucknow are still recalled with horror by the citizens of the empire.

Americans in spite of their material advancement and world wide commerce are still disposed to sympathize with those who are willing to fight for freedom. An Indian war for independence would command the best wishes of millions of our countrymen. But other millions shrink from all possibility of war. Even if other nations should escape the maelstrom, a wasting conflict on the Indian peninsula might easily bring disaster to many distant portions of the world. Fifteen years ago the world learned how easy it is for the flames of carnage to overleap national boundaries and subject many nations to their remorseless fury. Such a thing could happen again if the long docile Indian population should decide to take up the sword.

Notable Exceptions.

(Daily Oklahoman)

Zane Grey has written a great deal of fiction and seems to have been writing some more when he broadly asserted that "No journalist ever became a literary figure of the first rank." The fictional character of the Grey assertion is pretty well demonstrated by the Minneapolis Journal when it mentions Walt Whitman, Edgar Allen Poe, William Cullen Bryant, George William Curtis, and Mark Twain. The Journal could have included Dickens and Thackeray, both of whom had sufficient experience in the world of journalism to acquaint them with amateur journalism at least.

George Dennison Prentice was a master journalist of his day and he at one time loomed rather large in the literary world. And if the brilliant autobiography of Henry Watterson is not pure literature, perhaps Zane Grey can tell us just what it is. In the meantime the prolific writer of popular fiction can undertake to reconcile his comprehensive assertion with the literary and journalistic triumphs of Walter Lippmann and Claude B. Bowers.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1929, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

London, England.

I am a boy 18 years old, and when one Sunday at Bible class the parson asked us why we attended church I answered: "Because I have to go." This offended my father, who insists on my attendance there. I do not care to go to church and believe I would be better off if I gave up going until I have had a chance to find myself and get a better hold on my ideals of manhood.

What is your idea of the values of church going in my case?

ANSWER.

If you consult those who have sought the ideals to which you refer, you will find that the vast majority found them in the institution you wish to avoid. What are the regenerating forces on which you depend apart from the church? Books, friendships and private spiritual cultural culture are admittedly helpful, especially the latter. But there is no literature to compare with that of the Bible; no friendships more congenial to your soul's development than those to be found in the assemblies of the faithful, and no place which surpasses the church for self-examination and and self-amendent.

Your reply to the "parson" was entirely characteristic of a boy, and you did absolutely right in telling him what you really felt. But you are no longer a boy, and when you become a man I presume you will put away childish things. It is detrimental to carry over into manhood the erroneous prejudices and ideas of your youthful period.

Face the facts of life where you are and with what you are. No one can always compel your attendance at the house of God. Yet as a voluntary act on your part, done with the sincere desire to obtain the better being you crave, it is charged with great possibilities.

Man is not only an individual, he is by nature a social creature. Why should you ever sever yourself from fellowship in worship while you observe it in nearly everything else? I see no valid reason for doing this in your case, but there are manifold and weighty reasons against you doing it.

You feel the need of reconciliation with your highest ideals; of recreative energies to realize them; of strength to be the man you ought to be in order that your daily routine may receive the impress of your best selfhood. I suggest that you frequent the company of like minded people who are found in all churches, and whose fellowship helps you to build a life which will stand to the last.

QUESTION.

A and B and C and D, two couples are married at an early age. They married for money or for some other reason than for love, and are incompatibles as now mated. The real sex affinity which should have determined the mating exists between A and D and between B and C. But obeying the civil law, and what they conceive to be the moral law also, these couples are sexually true to each other until all four are past the age of 50, no children having been born to any of them.

Is there any reason now why these four people should not come together by mutual agreement in any way that they see fit outside the marriage bond?

Kindly omit address.

ANSWER.

I suppose it is easy for one who is happily married to give advice by the yard to one who is not. Doubtless much unhappiness lurks behind married respectability. The suppressed groans, struggles and resentments covered by social conventionality stagger one's imagination. Yet I submit that the institution of marriage is far more essential for society's welfare than is the happiness of specific individuals.

Nor can the sanctity of marriage be cheapened to please Tom, Dick and Harry without the gravest danger to personal character and national stability.

It is well enough to say that every person is entitled to happiness. But life has in it an absolute element which man defies at his peril. Sometimes that element exists independently of your choice. For example, a man can never be anything but a man, nor a woman than a woman. Again, there are instances when the absolute element is deliberately chosen. Marriage heads the list. By its contract two individuals freely agree to surrender their personal freedom for their mutual benefit and the consort crown of procreation in children. They choose an absolute and they have no more right to repudiate a chosen absolute than they have power to change a natural absolute.

The American people need more careful forethought in entering the matrimonial relations and less casuistry as to how its sacred obligations can be evaded. So to your quest'on I personally have but one answer. Adultery is adultery whether committed at 50 or 30 years of age, regardless of the knowledge thereof on the part of the husband or the wife.

THE AGE OF CLIFF-DWELLINGS

(New York Times)

It is an apparent anomaly that in the area without forests the age of the cliff-dewlings and pueblo ruins should have been determined by trees. Yet this is what happened as the result of work begun nearly a decade ago by Professor Douglas of the University of Arizona, aided by numerous archaeologists and now finally completed.

By studying the rings in the trees in the mountains of Arizona and New Mexico, and by prolonged observation of weather conditions, it was discovered that a definite relationship exists between the width of the rings and the nature of the season. Extensive comparisons of tree rings from the different parts of the Southwest showed that the variations were constant throughout the entire area.

With this established, beams from buildings in the pueblos known to have been put in at a given date were studied and coparison made with cross sections of beams used in deserted ruins. It has at last been possible to date almost with precision the age of most of the important cliff-dwellings in the Southwest. This runs back only to about the year 1000 A. D.. The importance of this discovery will not be underestimated by students of archaeology and ethnology. It tends to confirm the comparitive newness of the culture of American Indians.

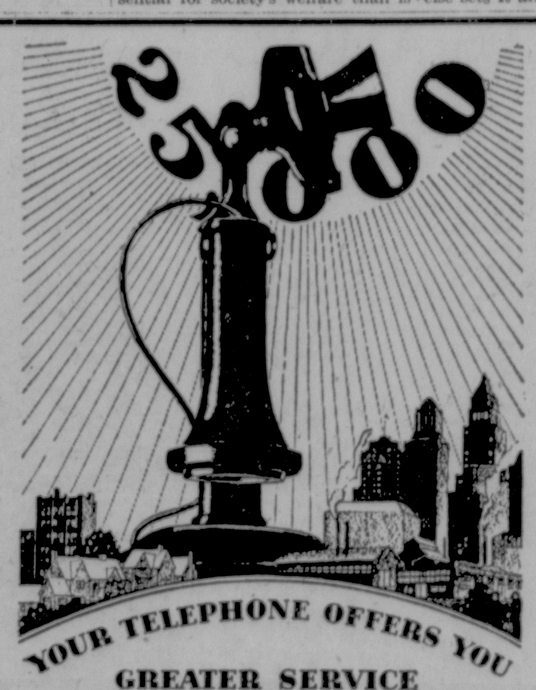

PARAGRAPHS

Paying for experiences wouldn't be so bad if the payment would stop when the experience does.

Correct this sentence: "Jane's children were here all afternoon," said the matron, "and I never once thought what I'd do to them if they were mine."

Now Mussolini is jailing spendthrifts. About the only human weakness still tolerated over there is swellhead.

GREATER SERVICE IN LINCOLN

The Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company has more than 25,000 telephones in service in Lincoln. This is an increase of more than 23,000 telephones since the company was organized twenty-five years ago.

Not only has the scope of the service grown but the transmission has been improved so that you can hear more clearly Calls are handled with greater speed and accuracy.

Telephones are put in usually on the date you fix, and service troubles which are becoming fewer, are corrected with greater promptness. Most out-of-town calls go through while you hold the line.

Further improvement and expansion of the service in Lincoln and our territory in Southeastern Nebraska will require an expenditure of more than $2,000,000 during the year of 1930. This is in line with our policy of giving the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety.

BUSINESS NEWS IMPORTANT.

That business news is of the highest importance and can be fascinatingly interesting if properly presented long has been the contention of observers interested in seeing such a feature on the air. Radio seems to have discovered in Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, a person able to import to his topics all the color and romance inherent in them. The fifteen minute program in which Dr. Klein speaks every Sunday evening at 6:45 central time, over the Columbia network, has a widening circle of listeners for a feature which not a few studio managers heretofore have viewed as "impossible."

MAKES PIANO ROLLS.

Maker of more piano rolls than any other person. That is the record held by Victor Arden of the Ohman and Arden piano duo, radio artists. Most of the rolls were made back in the days when a person pedaled a piano to obtain music instead of turning a dial.

RADIO STAR RESIGNS.

G. Underhill Macy, who for nearly two years has been taking the part of Hank Simmons in Showboat over the CBS netword Wednesday nights has resigned. He will continue his characterization of Tony and Fred Tibbetts in "Real Folks," on WJZ and chain.

Famous Viennese Contralto to Sing Leading Role in 'Carmen' at Grand Opera Here March 20

Maria Olszewska, famous Viennese contralto, will sing the role of "Carmen" when the Chicago Civic Opera company presents the ever-popular Bizet opera at the University of Nebraska coliseum, Thursday, March 20. The March appearance will be the third visit of the Chicago organization to the Nebraska campus and will be sponsored, as usual by the university. Announcement of the cast is made today by John K. Selleck, student activities agent and treasurer for the opera guarantors.

The university coliseum again will be transformed into an opera house for the musical event. During the past few months the university has gone to considerable expense to better equip the building for opera. A mastic floor covering around the entire concourse will eliminate the noise which has accompanied the arrival of later opera-goers. Greater floor elevation and wider space between rows will provide an improved view from every seat on the main floor.

Tour Begins February 1.

The "Carmen" cast of leading artists, supjporting choruses, ballet and orchestra will be the same which featured the presentation of that opera in the new twenty million dollar home of Chicago Civic opera. Leaving their home on Wacker drive Feb. 1, the great operatic caravan will head east for sixteen performances in Boston before startling their westward journey. The company numbers 250 people and two special trains are required to carry the operatic personnel and elaborate scenic equipment.

Included in the cast of artists to sing leading roles in the performance at the coliseum next March are Rene Maiso, Belgian tenor; Edith Mason, who sang "Marguerite" in the "Faust" performance last year; Giamcomo Rimini, who appeared in "Il Trovatore" here two years ago; Antonio Nicolich, Ada Paggi, Desire Defere, Alice d'Hermanoy and others.

The entire ballet of the Chicago company will be used in "Carmen" and the incidental dances which accompany the work promise to lend beauty to the entire production. Ruth Pryor, Harriet Lundgren and Edward Caton will leade the forty dancers in the ballet.

Moranzoni To Be Conductor.

The entire performance will be in charge of Roberto Moranzoni, a leading conductor, and under the direction of Giorgio Polacco.

The opera cast:

Jose	Rene Maison
Morales	Eugenio Sandrini
Zuniga	Antonio Nicolich
Carmen	Maria Olsewska
Frasquita	Alice d'Hermanoy
Mercedes	Ada Paggi
Escamilo	Giacomo Rimini
Micaela	Edith Mason
Dencairo	Desire Defere
Remendado	Lodovico Olivero

The past two seasons the Chicago Civic Opera Co. has appeared before record crowds of more than 8,000 at the university coliseum. Mr. Selleck declares early interest forecasts another great throng for the March appearance.

Mail order reservations for the opera are being accepted now at the office of John K. Selleck, University coliseuf. The city ticket office sale opens Monday, January 20.

Amos 'n' Andy Theme Song Is Taken From Former Film Classic

"Ain't that sumpin?"

Correll and Gosden, known nation-wide by their famous "Amos 'n' Andy" characterization, have made that saying a household phrase. It's their sentiment again on hearing that popular demand has brought about the revival and recording of their radio theme, "The Perfect Song," a number relegated to musical memory several years ago.

"The Perfect Song" had a prominnet spot in D. W. Griffith's film classic, "The Birth of a Nation," the first moving picture to have a definite musical score, but it didn't catch as a seller. When Amos and Andy adopted it as the introductory theme to their ten minutes of repartee, hundreds of requests flooded every broadcasting station using the program for the name and publisher of the song.

This recently has brought about its recording to a concert orchestra, the arrangement having been prepared on exactly the same lines as used by the NBC chain by Louis Katzman. Lucas and Briel are composers of the song.

Charles Evans Hughes, noted jurist, will deliver an address on the World Court at a meeting of the New York Bar association in New York City Thursday evening, which will be broadcast over radio in a nationwide hook-up through WEAF, New York, and affiliated stations of the NBC network. The address may be heard from 7 to 8 p. m., central standard time, over WOW, Omaha; WHO, Des Moines; WDAF, Kansas City; and KOA, Denver.

Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees, who ordinarily occupy this hour, voluntarily have stepped aside for the evening. The program, in which Graham McNamee was to have appeared as guest artist, will be presented at a later date.

MARY NOLAN TO APPEAR DURING WHITEMAN HOUR

Paul Whiteman's dance hour over the Columbia network Tuesday evening from 8 to 9 p. m., will bring to the air not only the "King of Jazz" and his orchestra, but also a popular moving picture star in the person of Mary Nolan. Music from "The Shanghai Lady," one of her current releases, will be featured during the program at which time Miss Nolan will appear.

Mary Nolan has become very prominent of late in talking pictures, although many will remember her as Imogene Wilson, Broadway star of several years ago. Other standbys of the Whiteman hour, including the Rhythm boys, Bing Crosby, Jack Fulton and Mildred Bailey, will sing individual and in combination, while the orchestral numbers, led the mazz maestro himself, will include many of the latest dance hits and current musical comedy selections.

The program may be heard over KOIL, Council Bluffs, and KMOX, St. Louis.

Vernon Dalhart Guest Artist On NBC Chain

First of a series of programs featuring composers and exponents of popular American music, with examples of their songs, will begin Wednesday evening over WEAF and the NBC network when Happy Wonder Bakers have Vernon Dalhart as their guest artist. RADIO NOTES.

That the ultimate perfection of television will not mean elimination of the theater is the opinion expressed by America's leading broadcasters.

"The Girl of The Golden West," Puccini Opera, On Air Saturday

A little more than nineteen years will have elapsed between the operatic premiere and radio premiere of Puccini's "The Girl of the Golden West." The former took place in the Metropolitan opera house, New York, on Dec. 10, 1910, and the radio inaugural occurs over station WEAF, New York, and a coast-to-coast NBC network next Saturday evening, Jan. 18.

In all the years that have gone since the first performance, it is estimated that less than 150,000 persons have heard the opera. When first produced, public interest was so intense that after performances by the Metropolitan company in New York and Philadelphia; and in Boston and Chicago by opera companies in those cities, Henry W. Savage toured the United States presenting the opera in English. But the capacity audience of the average opera house is scarcely 3,000 and the radio presentation is expected to avail many thousands the opportunity of hearing the opera for the first time.

"The Girl of the Golden West," third in the series of Puccini broadcasts which are being presented over radio for the first time, illustrates the fondness of the composer for American themes. The story is based on the history of the "wild west," its locale being in California during the gold rush period. Puccini determined to write it after seeing a dramatic performance of the David Belasco play of the same name.

Pasquale Amato, who created the rôle of Sheriff Jack Rance nineteen years ago, again will portray the part Saturday. Mario Chamlee will sing the tenor role of Dick Johnson, outlaw, which first was created by Caruso. Frances Alda, illustrious soprano, who has forsaken opera for radio, will sing the rôle of Minnie, originally portrayed by Emmy Destinn, now in retirement in Czechoslovakia. Gennaro Papi, a veteran of the Metropolitan company, will direct the performance. The first director was Arturo Toscannini, now in Italy. Alois Havrilla will narrate the story after the version by Robert A. Simon.

Radio Digest

Short Wave Adapters.

Foreign broadcasts are available to the listener almost entirely through the short waves. A common and frequently very satisfactory method of obtaining short wave reception at a moderate cost is by means of the short wave adapter. The general method of operation is to remove the detector tube in the receiver and plug in a cable from the adapter in its place. The aerial is attached to the adapter and is then all set for short wave reception. This applies to battery type sets at least.

Cause of Weak Reception.

The rectifying tube in the receiving system is the most general cause of weak and distorted reception. This tube, generally of the '80 type, is described as the heart of the receiver, the burden of the entire plate voltage supplied to the receiver being placed on this tube. All but the best rectifying tubes often break down under the strain, resulting in lowered plate voltages, which, in turn, introduces distortion and weak signals. The rectifying tube can easily be located, it being the only tube having double elements—two plates and two lighted filaments. A blue haze in the rectifying tube generally indicates one that will not last long or is already weakening.

The Ideael Radio Set.

The qualifications of a good radio set are as follows: The tone must be convincing, real and lifelike, not merely noisy; the bass should be rich and clear and deep and not rumbling, "muddy" reverberation, the middle tones of voice and instrument should be clear, natural, full and resonant; the upper tones should be bright and distinct, and not cloudy o full of shrills; the voice should sound present and not appear to come through a megaphone; the music should be perfect at full volume, and not rattle or distort reception at full strength; he music should sound real rather than just reproduced; the set should be sensitive enough to bring in distant stations at satisfactory volume, and tune out unwanted programs without difficulty; its tuning should be simple, instantaneous, micro-exact; the cabinet should be modern, compact and of best workmanship and it should finally be worth the money invested.

Energy Loss in Antenna Circuit.

Loss of energy is common in the antenna circuit, and losses of this kind may be caused either by leakage or absorption. The former is usually caused by accumulations of soot on the strain insulators, by dirt in or around the lightning arrestor or at the point where the lead-in enters the house. Particularly in large cities is it likely that the insulators have been coated with grime from the smoke that is always found in a greater or lesser degree. t is a good plan to lower the antenna and wipe off the insulators about once a year, though if there are frequent heavy rain storms to wash the dirt away, this may not be necessary. In the winter, snow or ice will cause similar leakage. Absorption losses are caused by running the lead-in too close to a wall or long stretches. The urther this lead can be kept fro the wall, the better. However, the ordinary stand-off insulators, affording about five-inch spacing, are adequate. The losses when a lead-in is brought down five or six stories, running close to the wall, are astonishly large.

For the Notebook.

The electric ignition on the oil burner will create considerable radio interference, especially for a receiver located close to it.

The contacts between the socket springs and the tube springs can be cleaned by merely working each tube up and down several times in its socket.

A short wave receiver is generally more sensitive to the antenna characteristics than is the broadcast receiver and the immediate surroundings greatly affect its characteristics.

When selecting a place for the set in a room, dead spots, or places where waves from different directions meet and neutralize each other, must be avoided; also echo, due to the bouncing back and forth from wall to wall, or from ceiling to floor, of sound waves.

Radiograms.

The University of Minnesota is planning to build a new 1000-watt transmitter in place of the 500-watt type used in its former broadcasting station.

A train, fitted with headphones to every seat, is being tested on the Hungarian State Railways, wih a view of supplying radio entertainment to passengers.

Price ranges on complete receivers, with few exceptions, vary from about $150 to $300. Receivers, housed in elaborate console cabinets, range in price from $500, and as high as $2,500.

The United States now has 606 broadcasting stations with an aggregate power of 1,155,340 watts, as compared with 614 stations having a voltage of 591,500 on September 20, 1928.

The character of all mechanical reproductions sent out by broadcasting stations in the United States must be announced clearly and distinctly, whether made by phonograph, player piano, etc.

TO REDEDICATE LINCOLN'S TOMB

Extensive Remodeling Plans Announced For 1930.

$175,000 Mausoleum To Replace Present Structure.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11 — (INS) — When spring comes, a labor of love that will touch a responsive chord in the heart of every American is to begin at Springfield, Ill. The tomb of Abraham Lincoln, too long neglected, is to be reconstructed and rededicated.

Charles Herrick Hammond of Chicago, state supervising architect, has announced competition of extensive plans for the remodeling. The start of actual work has been deferred until spring, but in the meantime contracts are to be let in order to prepare preliminary essentials for a speedy consummation of the task. Approximately $175,000 is to be expended in this job that many officials have dreamed of in the past—and passed on to successors in office.

Project Is Pushed.

Governor Emmerson, Director of Public Works Harry H. Cleveland, Architect Hammond and legislative leaders, however, pushed the project to the utmost of their powers, and in another year rehabilitation of the Great Emancipator's shrine will be a reality.

The plan as it stands at present envisions a majestic mausoleum in place of the present structure. Enlargement of the crypt containing the bodies of Lincoln's immediate family is called for, which will necessitate moving the caskets about nine feet, although Lincoln's body will not be moved.

The exterior is to be repaired in its entirety and rebuilt in places, but the bulk of the improvements are to be made on the interior. The inconvenient layout that has hitherto forced visitors to leave the building in the course of their inspection, walk around the outside of the monument to re-enter at a small door on the north side is to be simplified. A corridor will embrace the entire base of the monument.

Second Improvement.

The second improvement specified will transform the rotunda housing the Lincoln collection of Herbert Fay into a beautiful reception room. Unused space under the shaft will also be utilized.

Future visitors, entering the new reception room will pass through a door at the rear and enter wide marble-lined faultlessly lighted halls that lead to the north end of the monument and there be gratified with an unhindered view of the Lincoln sarcophagus. The present south wall of the room containing the Lincoln sarcophagus will be moved back ten feet. The crypts of the family members will be in this new inner wall. The corridor is to run past this crypt wall with a plush cord marking the sarcophagus room from the hall. Natural light will be provided by a grilled window at the north designed to replace the present doorway.

The exterior appearance of the building will not undergo changes, although the open tower will be closed to eliminate rain seepage. The monument has sustained much damage during recent winters from freezing and thawing, therefore the shaft is to be replaced entirely.

St. Genevieve Marble.

St. Genevieve marble panels set between fluted pilasters of marble are to grace the new reception room. A bronze wreath will be placed over each pilaster. Indirect lighting through globes resting in coves of the decorative cornice are specified in place of the unsightly skylight. Gold leaf over plaster will decorate the ceiling, and the panels around the room will bear the Lincoln speeches inscribed on bronze tablets.

Dignity and subdued color on the reception floor will be furnished by a composition of octagonal pieces of Roman tracertine marble connected by small squares of red Arkansas fossil. A conventional scroll design, executed in red fossil and pink KaSota stone is to border the room.

Passing through the door at the rear the visitor will find himself in a magnificent marble-lined passage way, seven and one-half feet wide that follows the base of the monument to the sarcophagus.

MUSIC DEBUT AT FOUR.

Playing a cornet that was almost as big as he was, Arthur Pryor, famed band leader who conducts the Schradertown band over radio each Friday evening, made his first public appearance at the age of four. The debut took place in St. Joseph, Mo. during a concert by his father's military band.

PROGRAMS FOR FARMERS.

Special agricultural information and programs by the United States department of agriculture are carried by 297 stations to farmers all through the country. Although the time on the air devoted to this radio farm service is given free in the interest of agriculture, at commercial rates it would command more than $1,000,000 a year.

WANTED TO TRAVEL.

Rudy Vallee, famous leader of the Connecticut Yankees, once cherished ambitions of going to South America. He now croons his Spanish into a microphone and reaches millions of senoritas where he might have reached a mere handful making "personal appearances" as a music salesman in South America.

ACTORS GET AUDITIONS.

Actors both in and out of work are given auditions at the studios of the National Broadcasting company at the rate of thirty per week. Some get on the air and others "get the air."

FEATURE SPANISH ARTISTS.

An unusual program featuring three eminent Spanish artists will be heard over WEAF and the NBC system Thursday evening at 9 oclock central time. The soloists include Emilio De Gogorza, baritone; Andres Segovia, guitarist; and Olga Albani, soprano. Nathaniel Shilkret's orchestra will play several selections.

RADIO NOTES.

Arthur Brisbane has said that a home without a radio is like a house with out a window. Another writer answers saying that homes with radios have windows and usually they are open about one o'clock in the morning.

Another station has been added to the Columbia network. It is WBCM, Bay City, Mich.

The furthest north radio station on the North American continent is at Point Barrow, Alaska. It is operated by the Signal Corps.

Youth Has Queer Trade—Shoots Catfish—and It Pays Dividends

The "Commodore" piloting his launch and shooting a "cat."

(By Central Press)

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 8—Gene Barnes doesn't fish for catfish. He shoots them. And makes a living at it. It's a unique trade for a young man—but it pays dividends.

In the green, moist confines of the great Dismal swamp of tidewater Virginia, Barnes, 21 a true backwoodsman and known to the region as the Commodore, spends almost all his time.

Barnes is handsome and sturdy and intelligent, but the roaring ways of great cities are not for him. He loves the gloomy green depths of the swamplands, where he was born and where he plans to stay.

Easier Than Fishing.

The "Commodore" shoots catfish, he says, for that is the easiest way to get them. Daily for the last four years he has filled his market basket with the sluggish catfish he has spied sunning themselves upon the surface or a little distance beneath, as standing in the bow of his little launch he penetrates the almost unknown waterways that tread the 15,000 square miles of lake and jungle—the great Dismal swamp. Food in the swamp is abundant and the catfish are fat and toothsome.

Shooting them is a much quicker and more certain method than attempting to catch them with a night line among the numerous stumps and concealed logs that are found where "cats" abound.

Barnes can follow the devious water trails among snaggy roots and cypress with the skill of a pilot taking a liner out of New York harbor. He has also mastered the water.

The six members of the central committee, of which John Barton Payne is chairman, were re-elected.

Law Suit May Bring Trotzky to Germany

BERLIN, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Relected as a tourist, Leon Trotzky, former Bolshevist dictator, hopes to be able to come to Germany as a witness in a law case.

The publishing house of Karl Reissner, of Dresden, sued Trotzky because he withdrew the publication of his memoirs on the ground that the same firm had published the memoirs of Kerensky in which the latter had some hot things to say about Trotzky and Lenin.

It is understood that Trotzky will ask permission to come to Germany to testify in order to safeguard his rights.

OZARK NANNY GOAT SHIPPED TO INDIA

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Arkansas milk from contented goats is the latest fad in India.

An Arkansas nanny from War Eagle, located near here in the Ozark hill country, was shipped to the Presbyterian mission at Etah, U. P., India, accompanied by several northern goats. The Ozark goat withstood the long ocean trip better than he res of he herd, it was said.

WOMAN LEAVES $1,000 FOR CATS

DALLAS, Jan. 11—(INS)—A will left by Mrs. Francis A. S. Snyder, who died here recently created a trust fund of $1,000 for the perpetual care of the woman's cats.

Mrs. Snyder had few friends and spent most of her time with her beloved tabbies.

When the cats die, the money is to be turned over to the Hollywood Humane society.

SINGING IS PASTIME.

Frank Crumit, who with his wife, Julia Sanderson, stars in the Plantation radio program each Tuesday evening, started out to be an engineer. The enthusiasm his singing and ukelele playing provoked at college caused him to take to the stage where he became an outstanding musical comedy success. He is now a bond broker in a New England town and singing is just a profitable pastime.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I do hope you have room in your column for another fan. I am thirteen years old and this is my first letter to you, so it will be quite long, but I think you will excuse its length.

Here are my favorites and will you please tell me the height, weight, color of eyes and hair, age and also the birthdays, and if married to whom of the following? Ladies first: Clara Bow, Nancy Carroll, Evelyn Brent, Loretta Young, Alice White, Buddy Rogers, Gary Cooper, Richard Dix, Richard Arlen, Arthur Lake and William Bakewell.

I saw Alice White in "Broadway Babies" and thought she was darling.

Didn't Charles Delany play the part of "Carlos" in "The Girl in the Glass Cage?"

Some people don't like Clara Bow because she throws her head. Some people have told me so. I have a lot of hair and it is red. I know how it feels to have a lot of hair and have it in my face, and I, like her, can't help but throw my head back once in a while.

Why doesn't "Buddy" play with Clara in pictures? Which actor is next to Buddy Rogers in popularity?

Do you know what pictures Carroll Nye and Loretta Young will be seen in next?

Will you please give me the cast for "On With the Show," "The Girl in the Glass Cage," "Betrayal," "Smiling Irish Eyes" and "Careers?"

Thanking you in advance,
JUST A CLARA BOW ADMIRER.
Superior, Nebr.

When you meet Mrs. Harry Edwards, you recognize her as Evelyn Brent of screen fame. She has dark hair and eyes, and was born in 1899. Miss Brent weighs 112 and is five feet four in height.

Loretta Young is single, but engaged to Grant Withers. She is a little under a hundred in weight, and is five feet three in height. Loretta is seventeen and has brown hair and blue eyes.

Alice White was born with reddish hair and gray eyes on July 25, 1907. She is five feet tall and weighs 105. Alice is single, and so is Buddy Rogers. Buddy is as dark off screen as he appears on, and lacks an inch of being a six footer. He weighs 160 and was born August 13, 1904.

Gary Cooper is a great big boy, six feet two and a half inch tall. He weighs 175 and was born May 7, 1901. Gary has not yet said "I Do."

Richard Dix is said to be engaged to a Miss Glass of Long Beach, Calif. He was born July 18, 1894 with dark hair and eyes. Mr. Dix is six feet tall and weighs 185.

Richard Arlenis the husband of Jobyna Ralston. He is six feet tall and weighs 160. Mr. Arlen was born in 1900.

Arthur Lake is single and twenty-four. He has light brown hair and blue eyes. He is five feet ten and weighs 150.

William Bakewell is also single. He lacks a half inch of being a six-footer, and weighs 145. William was born May 2, 1908 with gray eyes and brown hair.

Not Charles Delaney, but George E. Stone, as 'Carlos" in "The Girl in a Glass Cage." Here is the cast, so you may see for yourself: "Gladys Cosgrove," Loretta Young; "Terry Profret," Carroll Nye," Carlos, George E. Stone; "Doctor Striker," Mathew Betz; "Sheik Smith," Lucien Littlefield; "John Cosgrove," Ralph Lewis; "Mrs. Promfet, Julia Swayne Gordon; "Dan Jackson," Charles Sellon; "Attorney Fellowes," Robert Haines; "The Judge," William Holden.

Buddy Rogers and Clara Bow are no longer cast together in pictures because they are both stars in their own rghti, and both big drawing cards. Stars of such magnitude as these two are seldom seen in the same cast, because their combined salaries make too big a hole in the production cost of the feature

John Gilbert and Ronald Colman have been running close seconds to Buddy Rogers, but the talking pictures will probably change the figures considerably.

I have no new picture announcement for Mr. Nye, but Loretta Young has started work on "Murder on the Second Floor." Sidney Blackmer, a stage player, will be featured with her in the picture.

Here is the cast for "On With the Show:" "Nita," Betty Compson; "Sarah," Louise Fazenda; "Kitty," Sally O'Neil; "Ike," Joe E. Brown; "Sam Bloom," Purnell B. Pratt; "Jimmy," William Bakewell; "Twins," Fairbanks Twins; 'Durant," Wheeler Oakman; 'Jerry," "Sam Hardy; "Dad," Thomas Jefferson; "Pete," Lee Moran; "Joe," Harry Gribbon; "'Harold," Arthur Lake; "Harold's Fiancee," Josephine Houston; 'Father," Henry Fink "Bert," Otto Hoffman; "Ether Waters," Ethel Waters; "Harmony Four Quartet, Four Cowans and Angelus Baba.

The cast of "Betrayal" is: "Poldi Moser," Emil Jannings; "Vroni," Esther Ralston; "Andre Frey," Gary Cooper; "Hans," Jada Weller; "Peter," Douglas Haig; 'Andre's Mother," Bodil Rosing.

This is one place where there's always room for one more.

Your prime favorite was born July 29, 1905 with red hair and brown eyes. She is single at this writing, although she insists that she is to become Mrs. Harry Richman. Clara is five feet three and a half inches tall and weighs 110 when she's counted the calories rigorously.

Nancy Carroll is Mrs. Kirkland in private life. She is also a red head, with blue eyes. Nancy was born in 1907, weighs 118 and is a half inch taller than Clara.

Following is the cast for "Smiling Irish Eyes": "Kathleen O'Connor," Colleen Moore; "Rory O'More," James Hall; "Michael OConnor," Claude Gillingwater; "Shamus O'Connor," Robert Romans; "Granny O'More," Aggie Herring; "Frankie West," Betty Francisco; "Goldie Devore," Julanne Johnston; "Sir Timothy," Robert Emmett O'Connor; "Ralph Prescott," Edward Earl; "Black Barney," Tom O'Brien.

The "Careers" cast features: "Helene," Billie Dove; "Victor," Antonio Moreno; 'Hortense," Thelma Todd; "The President, "Noah Beery; "Carouge," Holmes Herbert; "The Wooman," Carmel Myers; "Lavergne," Robert Frazer; "Biwa PPlayer," Sojin.

Dear Movie Editor—I have written to you before, but I have some more questions I would like you to answer.

Some time ago I wrote to you and said I didn't like Clara Bow, but I saw her in "Dangerous Curves" and thought she was good in it.

Please tell me all you know about Lillian Sullivan and what is her next picture?

What is the exact day, month and year that Nancy Carroll, Charles Rogers, Anita Page, Janet Gaynor, June Collyer, Clara Bow, Jackie Coogan and Colleen Moore were born?

Is it true that Colleen Moore has one brown eye and one blue eye?

What is Janet Gaynor's next picture and who plays opposite her? What is her address?

My favorite movie stars are Buddy Rogers, Nancy Carroll and Colleen Moore.

Thanking you in advance, I am,
GLADYS, Fairbury, Neb.

Another feather in Clara's cap!

I'm sorry that I have no information about Lillian as yet. There are so many of these new players springing up that it looks as though I'll have to put on an extra force of sleuths to get them all catalogued.

Nancy Carroll celebrates her birthday in November, but she does not give me the authentic date. She was born in 1907. Charles Rogers arrived at the home of his parents on August 13, 1904. Anita Pagé also claims August as her birthmonth, the fourth, to be exact, and she is 19. Janet Gaynor celebrated her birthday October 6, and she was 23.

Clara Bow claims July 29, 1905, as her birthdate.

Jackie Coogan has fifteen candles on his birthday cake, October 26.

Colleen Moore was born August 19, 1901. Yes, Colleen has had to convince the producers that the eyes did not interfere with her appearance on the scren. She had a hard time in her early career to get a real "break" because of her eyes.

Janet Gaynor has just started work at the Fox Studio, 1401 N. Western avenue, Hollywod, Calif., on a new picture, "High Society Blues." Charles Farrell will again play opposite her.

Dear Movie Editor—This is my first letter to you and I have enough questions for one time. I enjoy reading your column every Sunday.

How old is Eddie Quillan and how do you pronounce his last name? I saw him play in "Noisy Neighbors," "Geraldine" and "The Sophomore" and I liked all of them very much. I was out of town when "Show Folks" was here and didn't get to see it. What is his next picture?

What is Sally O'Neil's right name? How old is she? What is the color of her hair and eyes and what is her weight?

How old is Sue Carol? Please tell me the same about her as about Sally O'Neil.

Please give me the cast for "Girls Gone Wild" and "The Sophomore."

How much should you send for a picture of a movie star?

In the show "Weary River," was there some one singing for Richard Barthelmess?

How old is Phillip De Lacy? I saw him play one time in a show about him being in a military training school. Could you please give me the title of it. I don't know if it was "Strong Boy" or not.

Well, my letter is getting long, so I'll quit. BROWN EYED SUSAN, Dunbar, Neb.

You are starting the New Year in the proper manner.

Eddie is in his early twenties, and seems to be doing nicely for a lad of his age. He will be seen in "Breezy" next, and it appears that Pathe is grooming him for stardom.

Pronounce his name with a "I."

Sally O'Neil used to answer "present" in school to "Chatsy Noonan."

Sally was born October 23, 1908, with black hair and blue eyes. She is five feet two inches tall and weighs 106.

Sue Carol was originally known as Evelyn Lederer. She is a year older than Sally, and is the same height but weights a pound less. Miss Carol has dark hair and eyes.

The cast for "Girls Gone Wild" is: "Babs Holworthy," Sue Carol; "Buck Brown," Nick Stuart; "Dan Morelli," Roy D'Arcy; "Augie," Mathew Betz; "Boots," Leslie Fenton; "Dilly," Louis Natheauz; "Mrs. Holwrtohy," Hedda Hopper; "Mr. Holworthy," Lumsden Hare; "Judge Elliott," Edmund Breese; "Speed Wade," John Darrow; "Grandma," Minna Ferry.

"The Sohpomore" cast is: "Joe Collins," Eddie Quillan; "Margie Callahan," Sally O'Neil; "Barbara Lange," Jeanette Loff; "Tom Week," Stanley Smith; "Dutch Gehring," Russell Gleason; "Mrs. Collins," Sarah Padden; "Armstrong," Brooks Benedict; "Cupie," Grady Sutton; "College Students," Lew Ayres, Marilyn Morgan, Jimmy Aldine, Dorothy Ward and Greta Tuttle.

A quarter is the ordinary amount that the players expect to receive to defray the mailing expenses of their phonographs. If you wish larger and more elaborate likenesses of your favorites, increase your remittance. They have them as high as a dollar.

It is no secret that Richard Barthelmess had a double for the singing episodes in his "Weary River," but hereafter he will do his own talking, and leave the songs out of his productions.

Philippe is 12 years old. I wonder if you haven't confused him with Douglas Scott, who took the boy's role in "Strong Boy," and was seen in a military school. I expect Philippe has also played in a picture of that type, but I don't recall one. You will see him soon as "Terry," in "The Marriage Playground," a Paramount picture which was just released.

Dear Movie Editor: I'm back again. I can't stay away very long at a time, because there are always so mny things I want to know bout my favorites, and you seem to be a regular "Who's who on the movies."

I saw John Boles in "The Desert Song" and thought he was the best player I have seen in the talking pictures. He is good looking as well as a good singer. Some of the New York players are good singers, but not so much for looks. What is Mr. Boles picture after the "The Desert Song?" Who will play with him in it?

What is the real name of "Farina," who plays in "Our Gang Comedies." He is a cute little youngster. What is the name of the fat boy who has taken the place of Joe Cobb in the Gang?

Who is Betty Compson's husband? I have heard, but can't remember. She is a wonderful actress. I hope we see lots of her.

I'm getting tired of Marion Nixon. She's always the same with her sweet little piping voice. I've seen her in several talking pictures, and hereafter when I see a picture with her in it, I'm going to stay at home. The last time I saw her was in "Say It With Songs."

I've seen John Davidson several times, too, and each time have mistaken him for Ricardo Cortez. I think they look very much alike. Are they brothers?

It's time for me to get to work, so will close for this time. Anxiously awaiting your reply, I am AN OLD FAN.

We are always glad to hear from you.

John Boles is at the Universal studio now, but perhaps you saw him recently in "Rio Rita" with Bebe Daniels, and he is making another he in that picture. Bebe is no slouch, either. Her voice is practically untrained, but she is on par with any of the other players in the new sound features.

When Farina signs checks it is as Allen Clay Hoskins. Movie fans have watched him grow up on the screen, because he started in the "Our Gang" comedies as a mere baby. Norman Chaney is the chubby nine year old who replaces Joe Cobb in the Gang.

Betty's husband is famous in his own line as a director. His name is James Cruze, and he was responsible for The Covered Wagon" hit.

Mr. Davidson and Ricardo Cortez are not related, even though you do see a great resemblance between them.

Dear Movie Editor—This is my first visit to your movie page, but I have long been a reader of the "Answers to Fans." I have a favorite that no body seems to say much about, and that is Morton Downey. I saw him in "Mother's Boy," and he struck me as being just right. I wonder why more Fans don't rave about him.

Eddie Nugent is another one of my favorites, and I don't see many inquires concerning him. How old is he? How long has he been in pictures?

I was away on a visit recently and saw "The Great Gabbo." Could you tell me who took the part of the ventriloquist? I don't recall ever having seen him before. Betty Compson was the leading lady and she did some very good acting, but wasn't in it with the ventriloquist.

Why do we never see Constance Talmadge any more? It has been two or three years since I last saw her. She was always so clever in pictures that I miss her.

Is it true that Hoot Gibson formerly lived in Nebraska? Who played opposite him in "King of the Rodeo?"

I seem to be running into a lot of space, so had better move along. Sincerely, BABY BLUE EYES.

That's a nice bouquet for Morton. Take your bow, young man.

Mr. Nugent is twenty-five and has been in pictures for a year and a half, or thereabouts.

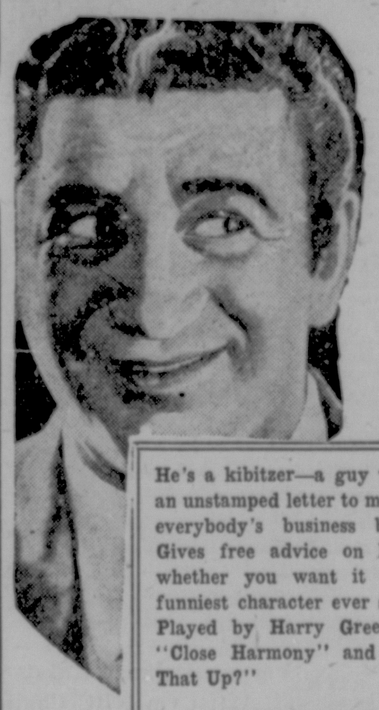

You met Erich Von Stroheim, the director, in "The Great Gabbo." Mr Von Stroheim is an actor and writer as well as a director. He played the role of a German Officer in many of our war time pictures.

Constance is merely a housewife these days. She has made no pictures since she became Mrs. Townsend Nechter.

Mr. Gibson was born at Tekamah. That was Kathryn Crawford with him in "The King of the Rodeo."

Sign Mary Lawlor—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feel that they have added a feather to their cap in signing Mary Lawlor, one of the brightest lights of Broadway, for the leading role in their screen production of "Good News." Miss Lawlor played the lead in the original stage version of this musical comedy of college life. She also starred in George M. Cohan's 'Rosie O'Reilly," and the Ziegfeld production of "Annie Dear."

Novel Cards—Gary Cooper's Christmas cards were hand-made color prints of a snow scene from his Montana ranch. Gary's newest picture is titled "Seven Days' Leave."

Leave it to me I'll supply the laughs!

He's a kibitzer—a guy who gives you an unstamped letter to mail! He minds everybody's business but his own! Gives free advice on life or love—whether you want it or not! The funniest character ever seen or heard! Played by Harry Green, big hit of "Close Harmony" and "Why Bring That Up?"

Speaking of resolutions: Moran and Mack resolve to give the worm a better break with the early bird in 1930.

Jack Mulhall rises to remark that he will never bet again on the varsity of Southern California against the Notre Dame warriors.

Buddy Rogers, who plays the trombone, trap drums, cornet, piano, Hawaiian guitar, xylophone, and organ, has decided that during 1930 he will learn the bass viol, zither and ocarina.

Clara Bow, who has had about 100 dogs to date, has resolved to have no more than ten new pets during the year.

Richard Barthelmess has promised himself a trip to China during the year—but then Richard will take the role of a Chinese boy in his next picture, 'Son of the Gods.' It was Richard's role as a Chinaman in "Broken Blossoms" that made him famous.

Skeets Gallagher, one of Hollywood's "wits" says: "I'm swearing off trying to learn to ride horseback. I'm tired of eating from the mantel."

Jack Oakie, another wise-cracker of the screen, resolves to learn at least one new joke.

Screen Siftings

Paramount Building—B. P. Schulberg, general manager of west coast production of the Paramount studio has announced a new building program to be started immediately on the twenty-six acre lot in Hollywood. A four story administration building will replace the one story business managers and library building. Two new sound stages will be added to the lot, making twelve in all, and sound picture projection rooms will also be installed.

Elaborate Wedding—Bessie Love's wedding to William B. Hawks, Pasadena business man, is said to have been the most elaborate ever seen in the screen colony. It took place at the St. James Episcopal church in Los Angeles, December 27. Miss Love is a veteran in pictures. Her screen career dates back to her school days, but she has won new fame since the advent of talking pictures.

Fourth of Series Started—The fourth of the 'Cohens-Kelly" series has gone into production at Universal City. It is called "The Cohens and Kellys in Scotland" and will feature Charlie Murray, George Sidney, Vera Gordon and Kate Price. New members of the cast are Lloyd Whitlock, William Colvin, and E. J. Ratcliffe. William James Craft is directing the comedy.

Continues Work—Marriage is not forcing Marian Nixon into retirement. She has been signed to play the leading role opposite Eddie Dowling in his new musical comedy, "Honeymoon Lane," which Sono-Art is producing. The picture is adapted from the stage production in which Mr. Dowling made such a hit.

Cooley In Cast—Hallam Cooley is the latest addition to the cast of "Back Pay," which Corinne Griffith is now making at the First National studio under William Siter's direction. The picture is adapted from the Fannie Hurst story. Grant Withers is the leading man.

Strong Support—Victor McLaglen will be surrounded by an unusually strong supporting cast in his new Fox picture, "On the Level," which has gone into production under Irving Cummings' direction. Arthur Stone, who has made good as a character actor in talking films, will take the role of the chief racketeer. Lee Tracy will play McLaglen's buddy, and Aggie Herring and Ben Blewett also have important parts.

In the Swim—Yola D'Avril has been cast as one of the three French girls in the canal swimming episode of "All Quiet On the Western Front." Lewis Milstone, who is directing the picture for Universal, is about a third through with his work. Lewis Ayres, a newcomer to the screen, will be seen in the leading role as "Paul."

Has Comedy Role—Stuart Erwin, one of the new faces on the screen, will be seen in a comedy characterization in Buddy Rogers' new feature, "Young Eagles." As may be suspected from the title, the picture is another air spectacle, and is being directed by William A. Wellman of "Wings" fame. Jean Arthur is the leading lady.

Casting Under Way—Casting is now under way at the Paramount studio for "The Benson Murder Case," a successor to "The Canary Murder Case" and "The Greene Murder Case." William Powell will again act as Philo Vance, the detective, and E. H. Calvert will take the part of District Attorney F-X Markham. Louis Gasnier, who just completed "Slightly Scarlet," co-starring Evelyn Brent and Clive Brook," will direct "The Benson Murder Case."

Drives Across Continent—Sidney Blackmer, the stage player who will be featured opposite Loretta Young in her new picture, "Murder On the Second Floor," made the trip from New York to California by automobile, and alone.

Cast As Father—Edward Martindel, the noted character actor of the screen, has been cast as the millionaire father of the heroine in "The Song Writer," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is producing. Lawrence Gray and Helen Johnson are featured in the cast, and others of note are Wynne Gibson, May Boley and Benny Rubin. Harry Beaumont is calling the action.

Gets Biggest Card—Al Jolson is the recipient of the biggest postal card ever delivered in the United States. It is ten feet long and four and a half feet wide and weighs 200 pounds. Farnam To Give Organ Concert Here

Lynnwood Farnam of New York City, who will appear in organ concert Monday evening, January 20, at the First Presbyterian church, Seventeenth and F streets. The public is invited, and there will be no admission charge.

Mr. Farnam, who is a Canadian by birth, began his musical studies as a pianist, winning the Montreal scholarship at the age of fifteen, which made possible further study of both piano and organ at the Royal College of Music in London. It was then that he decided to devote his greatest time to organ.

Soon after Mr. Farnam's return to Canada in 1904, he became organist of Christ Cathedral, remaining there until he accepted a like position in Boston at Emanuel church where the organ recitals which were given by him became part of Boston's musical life until interrupted by the war. After his discharge from service he was engaged as organist at the Fifth avenue church, New York City, and since 1920 has held the same position at the Church of the Holy Communion.

STUDY WAY TO LAND AIRPLANES IN FOG

OAKLAND, Jan. 11— (INS) — Speedy elimination of the human element from airplane control was predicted today by Mr. Elmer A. Sperry, president of the American society of mechanical engineers.

Mr. Sperry, inventor of the "mechanical mike" gyroscope stabilizer, which automatically steers steamships, was a visitor in the bay district following his return to America recently on the liner President Taft from Japan.

"Operation of heavier-than-air planes must be entirely automatic while they are in the air," said Dr. Sperry, who headed the American delegation to the engineering congress in Tokyo.

He is now perfecting a mechanical pilot which was tried out recently by Lieut. Albert Hegenberger.

Dr. Sperry forecast the next notable scientific achievement as the development of the intra-red ray which will penetrate fog and dispel darkness.

This ray, Dr. Sperry believes, eventually will be used to land planes during thick fog.

March 2-8 has been named as Art week and at this time efforts will be made by the committee to stimulate greater interest in art in all forms, particularly as it applies to every day life.

The activities which will take place during this week in March, include displays by the merchants of the city of highly artistic merchandise and several outstanding displays of the fine arts; exhibits by schools, exhibits by manufacturers through their trade organizations; and conferences on art under the auspices of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs.

SHORT LUNCH IS CHANGING PARIS

PARIS, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—The American short time lunch-hour is fast replacing the usual pre-war two-hour French recess with good results both to worker and employer. Gradually becoming accustomed to the change it is said that the workers prefer stopping an hour and a half earlier in the evening and certainly more work is accomplished in the end. Communications have also become so difficult with the growing traffic that a large number of working people are unable to reach their homes for the midday meal and are at a loss as to what to do during the long two-hour period.

Wilbur Chenoweth On Air With Rudy Vallee

Radio fans of Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees were surprised Thursday evening when Rudy sang "Dreams," a recent composition by Wilbur Chenoweth of Lincoln, announcing that Chenoweth himself would play the special piano accompaniment. The Lincoln composer has been in New York during the past week.

DISPUTE STARTS OVER JAZZ MUSIC

Pianist and Composer Argue Over Modern And Classical.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Which will you have: jazz music, or classical? Write Charles Wakefield Cadman or Dmitri Tiomkin about it.

Cadman and Tiomkin recently elected themselves champions of the two opposed types of music, and are having a battle royal of statements. Each is marshalling arguments to overwhelm the foe.

Cadman is the defender of the classical. The famous composer, who was enticed to Hollywood to recite musical scores for the cinema declares that "the motion picture industry will gain neither dignity or respect from the encouragement of jazz, which is a shallow and soulless mode of musical expression."

Tiomkin, pianist who is credited with being he first to play Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" in concert, counters with:

"On the contrary, modern jazz as composed today is a direct reflection of the spiritual as well as the mental life of the people. To say that modern jazz has no soul is to accuse the citizens of the world of being soulless, automatons —a condemnation which I think is unjust and ridiculous.

"Jazz music with its quick tempo reflects the activity of modern folk, their restless, quieting spirits, their hungry, dissatisfied natures.

SOVIET CLOSING PRISONS; USING PENAL COLONIES

MOSCOW, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Soviet Russia will soon be a nation without prisons. All convicts sentenced for more than three years will be concentrated in prison camps in isolated regions far from civilization.

The recommendations to this effect were made by Attorney General Nikolai Krilenko and the commissariat of justice, and are certain to be adopted. M. Krilenko said 135 prisons ought to be closed before January 1 and the 30,000 long-term convicts sent to penal colonies which must be at least self-supporting. Farming, woodworking and handicraft will be the principal occupations for the prisoners at the start. Others will be added as funds for necessary machinery become available.

The location of the colonies has not yet been decided upon.

DR. ECKENER TO CHANGE SHAPE OF FUTURE ZEPPELINS

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the "Graf Zeppelin," has adopted many English ideas in the construction of the new giant airship which is to begin in about two weeks.

The new "L. Z. 128" will resemble the "R100" and the "R101" in so-far as it will be much "plumper" than the slender "Graf" and will accommodate its passengers inside the giant bag, in the center of the ship, instead of the front cabin which will be reserved for the commander and navigation officers.

The new ship will be about 230 meters long, 40 meters in diameter, and contain about 150,000 cubic meters of gas. That is, it will be about 50 per cent larger than the "Graf Zeppelin" and approximately as big as the two British airships.

A special shed for the new giant has just been completed.

EGYPT'S WOMEN PRISONERS DOPEY

CAIRO, Jan. 11—(INS)—In the women's prison at Manchyah there are 483 prisoners, of which 315 are under sentence for dope using and peddling. Of this number 90 per cent are addicts of heroin while the rest use hashish or cocaine.

Lessons In "How To Live" Are Taught To Young Men and Women By Lincoln "Y" Organizations

"How you play determines how you live" is the principle upon which two of Lincoln's best known community chest agencies, the "Y" and the Y. M. C. A., are operating. And incidentally they now have the largest memberships in their respective histories.

Miss Frances Drake, secretary of the Y. W. C. A. says that this organization solicits and desires a large and representative membership because it is only through such a membership that it can fulfill iits purpose of creating spiritual values which come from blending human experience on different levels and the setting to work of those spiritual values in the solution of the outstanding problems in the lives of women.

Secretary W. A. Luke of the "Y" stresses the fact that an active drive is necessary for members because in this way a great many young men and boys are supplied with a guidance which they need but do not seek for themselves without urging.

The "YW" has more than 1,000 members, while the Girl Reserves, junior organization of the association, has about 1,100, according to Miss Drake. The "YM" has a membership of more than 3,000 men and boys.

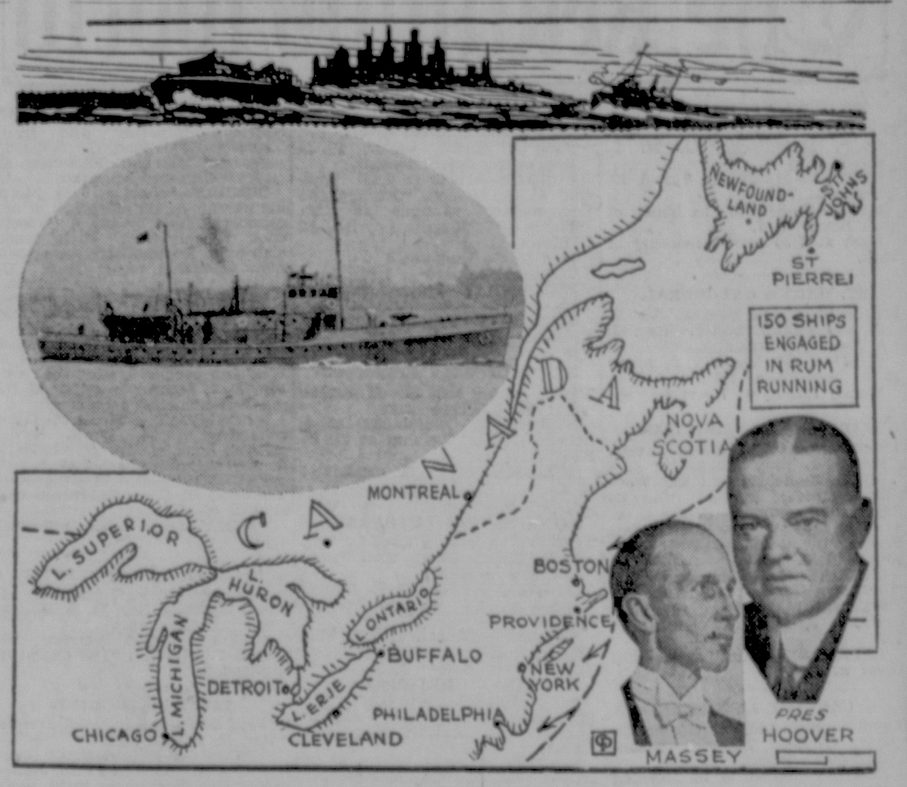

Lives Enriched.

The "YW" seeks to enrich the experience and knowledge of its members by a mingling of women from the business world, the home, and the campus. Its members represent many races, nationalities, and religious affiliations. Miss Drake cites the case of one girl for whom the Y. W. C. A. found employment. The girl paid a membership fee to the organization out of her first week's wages.

Mr. Luke calls the Y. M. C. A. a department store of activity because of the variety of needs which it meets—physical, mental, spiritual and social. This organization seeks to build healthy bodies and to aid the spiritual development of boys.

The individual youth must have help and guidance, according to Mr. Luke. The person himself and those around him may not realize this need. He told of a seventeen-year-old boy who was considered sub-normal. He would do what he was told but seemed unable to go any further with work assigned to him. When he was taken from the detention home, in which he had been placed, and put on his own responsibility he developed amazingly. It was found that all his desires for self-expression had been suppressed when he was a child and he was afraid to trust to his own initiative. The "YM" helped him to develop this latent responsibility.

U. S. Asks Canada's Aid in Liquor Enforcement

Proposing to increase the number of ports of entry on the United States-Canadian border from 100 to 600, and generally tightening the customs watch on liquor smugglers, dry officials at Washington are seeking co-operation of the Canadian government in checking the rum flow across the border. Vincent Massey, Canadian minister at the capital, has discussed the matter with treasury officials, and President Hoover has asked congress to appropriate $302,000 for thirty fast boats to combat the smuggling along the New England coast, where, according to dry navy admission, there are 150 boats engaged in rum running. Layout above shows map of the territory affected, a typical rum chaser, President Hoover and Vincent Massey.

NEW TESTS FOR BRITISH AIRMEN

Navigators Must Study To Meet Numerous Regulations.

LONDON, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—British airmen from 1930 on will have to know almost everything.

The British air minister, Lord Thomson, has just issued regulations, which come into force in the New Year, whereby airmen will have to pass an examination in such things as trigonometry, radiogoniometry and meteorology.

There are to be two classes of navigators, first and second.

Even the second-class navigators have to be flying encyclopaedias. Their examination includes these subjects:

The form of the earth; its divisions and their notation; mathematical calculation of the various elements by 'plane trigonometry; International air legislation; regulations for the prevention of collisions at sea; publications for the assistance of navigators.

Must Know Signals.

They must then answer questions about signalling, "semaphore, flashing, and international code flags" and must know all about meteorology. There are a few other things that they must know:

Flight by dead reckoning; with the use of instruments for the measurement and calculation of the element of the triangles of the velocities.

Maps and charts; how to use and read them; practical properties of the common forms of projections.

The first-class navigator will in future be termed, "Professor of the Skies." The schedule of the things he has to know says brusquely:

Astronomical Navigation.

"Astronomical navigation; various methods of fixing the position of an aircraft with the use and care of tables, diagrams, and instruments for the solution of this problem; knowledge of the mathematics involved."

The new regulations say that a first class navigator who holds a first-class license shall be on board every flying machine used for the international carriage of passengers or goods, and on board every airship of 700,000 cubic feet capacity or more for every flight by day or night.

It is also now ordered that every British aircraft registered in Great Britain and northern Ireland and capable of carrying ten or more persons, including the crew, "shall, when carrying passengers or goods, carry radio-electric apparatus capable of emission and reception by radio-telegraphy or radio-telephony which is of a type approved by the secretary of state."

Lay Largest Under Water Phone Cable

BOSTON, Jan. 11—(I. N. S.)—A big submarine telephone cable, the largest of it type that can be manufactured at the present time has been laid between Martha's Vineyard, off the southeastern coast of Massachusetts, and the mainlaid. This new cable will serve the Islands of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket and will supplement a small cable which was laid in 1916 which is still in operation.

Considerable tape-armored cable is being laid, also, in the territory of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., as a part of an extensive toll cable development covering a five year period with an approximate cost of $45,000,000.

London May Beat Paris Erecting Statue of Foch

PARIS, Jan. 11—(INS)—While London is getting ready to erect a Foch statue the Paris project is still in the talkative stage.

The city intends to do something great and worthy of the grand marshal, but neither the site nor the form of the monument have yet been determined.

Porte Dauphine, at the entrance of the Bois de Boulogne, finds considerable favor, but the authoritics are divided on this site.

An equestrian statue is also spoken of, but nothing has been decided as yet.

Nearly 500 Moving Pictures Donated to Show Inmates of Many Nebraska Institutions

Motion pictures for those in institutions who have little or no opportunity to go out. Movies brought to them and arranged so that they can enjoy them, even though they may be invalided shutins, denied almost all of the world's entertainment.

Nebraska will have a large share of the 1,000,000,000 feet of films to be distributed without charge by the motion picture industry during 1930 for the entertainment of 500,000 shutins of the United States and Canada, it has been announced, following approval of recommendations by Miss Regina Molseed, secretary of the Omaha film board of trade. Nebraska's contribution provides for approximately 500 features, newsreels, and comedy pictures. They will be shown weekly in orphanages, hospitals, detention homes, and other institutions.

The gift is made through Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. It has been an annual event since Mr. Hays became the producer head seven years ago.
